

URA INGALLS SETS
NEW AVIATION RECORD

Establishes Woman's Mark of 10 Hours, 27 Minutes for Flying Across U. S.

Associated Press.
LOS ANGELES, Cal., Oct. 9.—
Flying storms and groping foggy conditions did not deter
the last 300 miles of a transcontinental flight. Miss Laura Ingalls, 25-year-old aviatrix of St.
Louis, has established a mark for an flyers—an elapsed time of 10 hours, 27 minutes for flying from Los Angeles to St. Louis.
She left New York Sunday, making nine stops en route, to Grand Central Air Terminal, Glendale, completed the last leg from man, Ariz., her last fueling
in four hours, 40 minutes, arriving at Glendale at 4:35 p. m.
Monday.

The aviatrix made the crossing in same plane with which she recently set the world's record of 714 miles and the woman's record of 10 consecutive loops. Miss Ingalls is a transport pilot and has been flying two years. She won place last summer in the Air Derby, held in connection with the National Air Races at Waco, Tex.

Ingalls said the last leg of the flight was the worst of the entire. Besides terrific headwinds, I flew up and down drafts, fog, rain squalls and fog," she said. "I was glad to see Los Angeles up on the horizon."
The completion of the flight, Ingalls said she would take gain in an effort to set a mark
in eastward flight.

The westward flight is the first recognized as setting a record for women by the National Aeronautic Association.

Ingalls said she was flying cockpit biplane. She was accompanied by a service plane piloted by Milford Sater and Ross Cheek.

7000 GUESTS SEE PROPHET SELECT
HIS 1930 QUEEN

Miss Jane Perry Francis
Crowned at 51st Ball in Settings Which Resemble Royal Court.

3-HOUR CEREMONY
AT THE COLISEUM

Matrons of Honor, Maids, Special Maids, Former Queen, Guard of Honor and Krewe Take Part.

Photographs of the 1930 Velled Prophet Queen and her four special maids of honor are published on today's pictorial page.
St. Louis has outgrown its boundaries and St. Louis' largest social function, the Velled Prophet's ball, has outgrown its hall. Hundreds of men and women, invited guests of the Prophet's fifty-first ball, dined last night in the Coliseum's great spaces, or sat on papers spread on dangerously blocked aisles, because they had not arrived before 7:30 p. m.

But they stayed for three hours or longer, and saw a ceremonial of richness and splendor, culminating in the coronation of Miss Jane Perry Francis as Queen of the Velled Prophet's Court of Love and Beauty for the season 1930-31.
The dark-haired young woman in white, her arms filled with rare flowers, who knelt before the Prophet and arose wearing his crowned crown of platinum and spin, is the daughter of Mr.
and Mrs. Talbot T. Francis of Upper Meramec road. She is a granddaughter of the late Gov. David R.
Francis, a leading figure in the annual ball from the days when it was held in the Merchants' Exchange.

Those who shared with Miss Francis the splendor of the gathering of 7000 or more, in the loves, balcony and gallery of the overcrowded Coliseum, were the one special maids of honor, Miss Betty Rathmann of St. Louis, and Miss Louise Augustine Goddard of Brentnour Park. Miss Adeline Ely Smith of 5221 Waterman avenue and Miss Jane W.
Blackmer of 1443 Lindell boulevard, and the 1929 Queen, Miss Jean Ford of 54 Westmoreland avenue.

Appearance of Royal Court.
The designers who prepare the Coliseum for this event succeeded,
this year, in creating the appearance of a royal court. They used no Oriental images or arabesque features, but built a row of massive gold and silver pillars, forming a structure into which small balconies projected like chariotwheels. Flower-like purple bells, which to be the horns of sound approaching, were beneath each of the pillars. A great peacock spread its tail over the velvet draperies above the Prophet's throne. Visibility from the south end of the hall was unusually good,
only one narrow aisle of seats
being wholly cut off from the view.
From the Washington boulevard entrance, the throne at the south end of the hall, and the spacious platform extending before the higher level of the dais, rose in a majestic perspective. The whole central space, glistening with white drapery, was kept clear for the activities of the participants in the observance.
First of a series of processions along this highway of fashion and beauty was the march of the 83 matrons of honor. Colors of autumn were worn by many of these promenaders, escorted by men wearing the purple or orange rhibos of the Prophet's service. Matrons they were, but many of them were young and charming matrons. Some had been active, as the deep tan of their arms and necks showed, in the outdoor sports of summer.

Maids of honor, numbering 32
without the four special maids, came next. Members of the Prophet's committee, some of them elderly, escorted the young women, looking mature in their long gowns, to their lavender-draped chairs on the royal platform.
Spotlights followed the matrons and maids and their escorts, until the last of the women was seated,
and the men had made their way to the now crowded promenade,
where many of them stood for want of seats, or to visit with the occupants of boxes.

Reigning Queen Ushered In.
Miss Ford, still reigning Queen, was ushered in at the main entrance to the strains of Chopin's Polonaise Militaire. Tom K. Smith conducted her across the floor and to her seat on the throne, vacant until then. General applause greeted the fair-haired and smiling young woman, whose gown was of trique hue.

Here the march of beauty and youth was interrupted for a professional of masked mummery, the stare crew, or Krewe, which tonight will pose and prance upon the stage in the Prophet's parade.
Their costumes related to periods of American history, and their dances were in a new case appropriate and in others merely prospective. Each of the long line had an escort.

of the previous procession, there
Love and Beauty until his coming again. He commands his loyal subjects to do homage to his Queen,
Miss Jane—Perry—Francis.
Again the gathering rose, as the 18-year-old Queen-elect appeared beneath the musicians' balcony, and took the arm of I. A. Stevens for a stately progress to the throne.
There was earnest cheering from all parts of the house, while Miss Francis, looking straight ahead, approached the rows of matrons, maids and maskers, who stood to greet her, the retiring Queen having taken her place among them.
Meyerbeer's "Coronation" changed to Kreisler's light "Caprice" as the ceremony of coronation was performed.

In an atmosphere now noticeably easier, the court and the gazing guests sat through a ballet program by a trio who made several changes of costume. The dancers were Edwin Strawbridge, Valeska Hubbard and Margaret Fischer.
Led by the Prophet and Queen,
the chief honorees of the evening marched into the central space and stood before the box occupied by former Queens. In this group were Mrs. J. Clark Streett, who as Maid
Wells was Queen in 1902; Mrs.
Harrison Hoblitzelle, formerly Miss Mary D. Jones, 1916; Mrs.
Marion Niedringhaus, formerly Miss Grace Wallace, 1923; Mrs.
Lindell Gordon Jr., formerly Miss Maud Miller Streett, 1925; Mrs.
Louis A. Hager, formerly Miss Alice Busch, 1922, and Mrs. Royal Kercheval, formerly Miss Jane Shapleigh, 1915.

Dancing Follows.
Back up the carefully numbered steps, to their places on the platform, the Prophet, Queen and chief maids went, while the maskers, matrons and maids descended and began dancing to the air of "Little White Lies." This was at 10:30, and a few minutes later the balcony guests were moving toward the floor or toward the cloakrooms, while those invited to the Queen's supper at Hotel Jefferson were starting in that direction. There were 1500 invitations to the supper, which was followed by several hours' dancing.
As announced in advance, the committee in charge of the ball enforced strictly the rule requiring dress coats and white neckties, and "tux" effects were not visible in the balcony. Gallery guests were under no costume requirements.
The ball, and the parade tonight,
are the annual repetition of a civic event which took place first in 1878, and which, if held every year, would be given this year for the fifty-third time. As the Prophet's visit was omitted in the war years of 1917 and 1918, these are the fifty-first ball and parade.

Each maid's name, and the document calling for her presence, had to be delivered to W. D. by a nimble page in yellow. Each time, there was much business of studying the parchment, then a loud pronouncement that His Majesty commanded the presence of, first, Miss Blackmer, then the three other special maids, ending with Miss Rathmann, first maid of honor.
Following the jewel-hued suggestion of the retiring Queen's gown,
Miss Blackmer was in emerald,
Miss Smith in topaz, Miss Goddard
in amethyst and Miss Rathmann—
the first brunette of the group—in ruby. Samuel Graham Wilson, Claxton E. Allen, Dr. Walter Fischel and Edward M. Durham Jr. were the escorts to the special maids,
in the order of their appearance.

Again the page in yellow tripped toward the black-bearded W. D.
Herald, who cleared his throat for his most important announcement:
"His Most Excellent Majesty, the Velled Prophet, in his great wisdom, has selected the fairest maid of his beloved city of St. Louis to reign as Queen of his Court of

FAILS TO RESCIND
SALE OF SHARE IN M'MILLAN ESTATE

Mrs. Alice McMillan Warfield Took $25,000 from W. K. Bixby for Interest
Now Worth $371,000.

Mrs. Alice McMillan Warfield's suit against the St. Louis Union Trust Co. and William K. Bixby, to set aside a settlement affecting her share of the $8,000,000 estate of her uncle, the late William Mc-Millan, was dismissed today by Federal Judge Paris, on the motion of counsel for the trust company and Bixby.

Mrs. Warfield sold to Bixby, as trustee of the estate, one-half her possible future share of the estate for $25,000. The will of William McMillan, who died in 1901, provided that if his son, Sir Northrup McMillan of West Africa, should die childless, his estate should go equally to the heirs of his two brothers, including Mrs. Warfield.
At the time of her deal with Bixby, Mrs. Warfield alleged in her suit, she did not know what,
according to her allegation, was known to Bixby, namely that there was no prospect that Sir Northrup McMillan would have an heir. He died in 1925 without issue.

One of the chief points decided by Judge Paris was that it was not improper for Bixby, a trustee of his estate, to make the deal with a potential heir. Judge Paris pointed out that the will provided two sets of trustees, and that the Union Trust Co. of Detroit was trustee for the group of heirs which included Mrs. Warfield.

Judge Paris, in his decision, said
it was "too clear for argument"
that the defense motion for dismissal of the suit should be sustained. He left permission to Warfield, if she should choose, to file a new and amended plea. One of the requirements is that the plea must show definitely the value of the estate, which Mrs. Warfield said she believed to exceed $8,- 000,000.

Sir Northrup McMillan's widow, Lady Lucie McMillan, was in this country recently, and it was announced to the lawyers in the case that she would give a deposition
Aug. 19 in a law office in Springfield, Mass. When that came, it was announced that the deposition would not be given. Former Senator James A. Reed was her lawyer. James R. Claiborne of St.
Louis is counsel for Mrs. Warfield, who lives abroad.

In the settlement of the William McMillan estate, made by Bixby and the Union Trust Co. of Detroit in 1927, Mrs. Warfield received $371,668. This was one-half what she would have received if she had not sold half her expectancy for

URGES CHURCH TO CONSIDER
UNFIT CHILDREN PROBLEM

England's "Gloomy Dean" Says
"We Cannot Repeal Laws of Nature by Ignoring Them."
NEWPORT, Wales, Oct. 9.—
Dean Inge, known as the "gloomy dean," in another of his pointed speeches on social problems, warned the Church Congress today that the church should not be indifferent to the question of producing children from unfit parents.
"The eugenists have no wish to introduce unseemly methods of bettering humanity," Dean Inge asserted, "but we cannot repeal the laws of nature by ignoring them."
The advance of knowledge has laid upon church people new moral obligations, he said, among them being duties to posterity. "When knowledge is available," he added,
"and we do not use it, it is counted
to us for a sin."

MILLIONS OF EGGS
AT 27c A DOZEN IN CHICAGO COMBINE

Dealers Organize to Market
Stocks at Lowest Price
Since 1889.

By the Associated Press.
CHICAGO, Oct. 9.—Chicago egg dealers yesterday organized the United Egg Producers' Association, described as a non-profit organization, which proposes to place millions of dozens of eggs on the market to be sold at what officials said would be lowest prices since 1889.

The association, it is announced,
will furnish the eggs to retail distributors at a price which will enable the dealer to sell the eggs at 27 cents a dozen and make a fair profit. The advertising campaign emphasizing the nutritive value of eggs also was decided upon.
This move, spokesmen for the new association said, is unique in the history of the industry. It was made, they said, with the idea of reducing the excess of eggs on hand and increasing consumption during the remainder of the winter.

SUES FOR $50,000 ALLEGING ALIENATION OF AFFECTIONS

Mrs. Johanna Carr, 36, Charges George Vossler and Wife Induced Husband, 70, to Leave Her.
Suit for $50,000, alleging alienation of affections, was filed in Circuit Court today by Mrs. Johanna Carr, 4915 North Broadway, against
Mr. and Mrs. George Vossler, 1433
Rowan street.
Mrs. Carr, who married Mrs.
Vossler's father, R. S. Carr, last year, alleges in her petition that the Vosslers induced Carr to leave her last February. Mrs. Carr is 26 years old, her husband more than 70, and a retired, private dealer in real estate.

A divorce suit filed by Carr is pending in Court of Domestic Relations.

SERVICE CAR MEN FILE SUIT Seek to Enjoin City From Alleged Indiscriminate Arrests.

The St. Louis Service Car Association filed suit in Circuit Court yesterday to enjoin the city from alleged indiscriminate arrest of its members.
The petition stated that although the association had complied with a recent order of Director of Streets and Sewers Brooks requiring each of its 45 members to carry public liability insurance, he has threatened to order arrest of drivers of the organization, Brooks explained he had information that the insurance was in a company not licensed to do business here.

GIRL, 19, CONFESSES KILLING MAN AT PARTY

Says She Fired When He Ignored Command to Stop Fighting.

By the Associated Press.
CAMDEN, N. J., Oct. 9.—Mary McClyment, 19 years old, formerly of Philadelphia, is held on a murder charge, police say, on her confession that she shot and killed a man in Blackwood, N. J., Tuesday night as a climax to a party. The victim was Edward Nicholson Jr., Camden.
Two of the girl's young woman companions and two men are held without bail as material witnesses.
"I didn't mean to shoot him,"
she told detectives, she said Nicholson and one of the other men in two party were fighting. The girl ordered Nicholson to stop and when he paid no attention she fired three shots, she said.

$1,900,000 TRUST
BROKEN IN FAVOR

Kerens' daughter by his first marriage, Mrs. Janavince Pierce, was also named as a "remainderman, interested in the estate."
When the case was being heard last June, Judge Paris excluded evidence as to the arrest of Vincent Kerens in 1926 with a woman in a Los Angeles hotel, and affidavit relating to this incident, made by Kerens and others. Attorneys for the sisters argued that this matter was relevant and important, inasmuch as false affidavits had been permitted to remain on file with the trust company during part of the 5-year period in question. Regarding this, the Court today said:

"The negative act of Vincent Kerens in permitting a false affidavit to remain on file from Jan.
17, 1923, to May, 1925, and the possibly inadvertent act of verifying a brief or statement of the case made and filed by his attorney, into which the false affidavits had been copied, do not constitute bad behavior in the light of the uncontradicted explanation of the reason, intent, or motive of Vincent Kerens in originally making the affidavit.

"These two facts should be considered and weighed in the light of all the circumstances touching whether thereunder they were wholly venal, or whether they fell within the category of human faults, which, to paraphrase but slightly a sentence from an English classic, 'might tend to cause the Kerens Coming to St. Louis.

Kerens, now 54 years old, lives on a ranch near Dallas, Tex., with his second wife and two adopted children. They were in Chicago today and Kerens, speaking by telephone from a Chicago hotel, was asked by a Post-Dispatch reporter as to his plans, in view of the court's decision. It has been stated previously that Kerens will execute a new trust agreement, providing for his family, whenever he obtains control of his share of the estate.

"I haven't dared to make any plans until I knew something finally," Kerens said. "It has been 14 years now." (The elder Kerens died in 1916), "and I have been fighting back, and naturally I am pleased with this news, but there is nothing more I can say now. I will be in St. Louis next week on my way back to Texas."

Kerens has been receiving $1000
a month from the income of the trust fund. His former wife, Mrs.
Jane Henry Kerens, has asked that provision for her husband and her daughter, Mrs. Pierce, be assured in the final disposition of the Vincent Kerens trust fund.

CLAIMS PART OF ESTATE
AS COMMON LAW WIFE

Mrs. Mary Strickland Seeks
Half of $150,000 Property Left by Grocer.

A claim to establish her right to a dower interest in the estate of Albin Strickland, a grocer, has been filed in Probate Court by Mrs.
Mary Theis Strickland, 47 years old, of 4527 Clayton avenue. Mrs.
Strickland contends she is the widow of Strickland, who was 70 years old, and as such is entitled to one-half of his property, valued at $150,000.

The probate proceedings augment litigation over Strickland's estate which was previously filed in Circuit Court by collateral heirs to set aside his will. They allege that Mrs. Samuel Ludwig, 4559
Wichita avenue, a niece, principal beneficiary, exercised influence over her uncle but this is denied by her lawyer, William F. Woer-ner.

According to Attorney H. Randolph Mudd, representing Mrs.
Mary Strickland, a civil ceremony of marriage was entered into between Strickland and Mary Theis
in 1915. At that time, the attorney said, the claimant was led to believe his wife was dead. But she learned to the contrary two years later, when Strickland informed her his wife had just died at the Fulton State Asylum, the attorney said.

However, according to Mudd, Strickland continued to live with the petitioner until his death a year ago, which had the effect of creating a common-law status, as the law withdrawing recognition of such marriages did not take effect until 1921.

Counsel for the estate deny the existence of any legal marriage and contend that the woman was merely Strickland's housekeeper.

25th ANNIVERSARY SALES

The Progress of Kline's Has Been St. Louis' Progress for Twenty-Five Years

Walking hand in hand—a progressive city and a progressive institution. Years in which St. Louis has grown to be a city of over a million souls. Years in which Kline's has grown from a tiny shop in St. Louis to a nationwide institution, with huge stores in many leading cities. Symbolizing the magnificent public faith and confidence that has gone into its making. For twenty-five years we have been specialists! We have known only apparel and accessories—and for those years we have been known as a store of youth — of fashion — of moderate price!

Kline's is St. Louis' own store . . . born in St. Louis . . . owned by St. Louisans . . . managed by St. Louisans . . . its founders still actively interested in this great structure that has been built by your loyalty.

Our Silver Anniversary Sales Begin Friday, October 10th

In appreciation of the debt we owe you, our builders, and in celebration of our growth, we announce our SILVER ANNIVERSARY SALE . . . beginning Friday and bringing to you, at the height of the season the most Unusual Values in the Newest Fashions that we have offered in Many Years. ## TESTIFIES HE WAS ASKED TO HAVE DRY AGENT KILLED

Bootlegger Says Bruce Stokes, Co-Defendant of Springfield, Mo., Mayor on Trial, Made Proposal.

Special to the Post-Dispatch. SPRINGFIELD, Mo., Oct. 9.—Jesse (Hamburg) Smith restaurant keeper and bootlegger, who said he was a close friend of Mayor Thomas H. Gideon, caused a stir in Federal court here yesterday where the Mayor is on trial with four others charged with conspiracy to violate the prohibition law, by testifying he had been asked to employ gangsters to "bump off" W. O. McDonald, chief of the Federal investigating officers.

The proposal, Smith said, was made to him by Bruce Stokes, a co-defendant with the Mayor. Smith testified he replied: "I may be a bootlegger, but I'm not engaged in anything like that."

Smith told of various automobile trips with Gideon and Pike, on which he said he had drunk liquor. He told especially of a trip to Eureka Springs, Ark., in September, 1928.

"Got Plenty Laid Up." Smith said he had frequently given liquor to the Mayor and that he had introduced the Mayor to Cecil Foster, a wholesale bootlegger from whom the Mayor is alleged to have received frequent donations of liquor, varying from a quart to 20 gallons at a time.

While at Eureka, the witness said, the Springfield men, accompanied by several Eureka Springs men, went on a fishing trip. He said while they were on White River the "Mayor got plenty laid up."

Smith said that on the Saturday after his arrest by Federal authorities he was questioned at the Government building here for five hours by Government agents and that he went home immediately afterward and went to bed. He remained in bed under a physician's care until Thursday. In response to Wear's final question as to whether W. O. McDonald, Federal narcotic agent who directed several raids here, had struck him during the questioning, Smith said he "didn't remember."

On cross examination he admitted being under indictment on various liquor violation charges, and said it was understood that he would not be sentenced until after he had testified in the Gideon trial.

Federal dry officers testified they had purchased liquor openly over the bar of Tom Fuzzell's saloon, situated across a 20-foot alley from police headquarters. Plate glass windows in the rear of the saloon looked into the police court across the way, they said.

Fuzzell told them, the witnesses declared, they need not be afraid to carry his liquor home as he "stood in well" with the police. If they stop you, just tell them it's Tom Fuzzell's liquor," they quoted him as saying.

Guy Rogers, a bootlegger, swore he had often paid money to Bruce Stokes, which Stokes was to pay to Chief of Police Pike, Assistant Chief H. L. Teaff, and Mayor Gideon. Rogers had twice paid Pike himself, he testified, $10 on each occasion.

Says Mayor Drank on Trip. The first testimony tending to link Mayor Gideon with several others in an alleged conspiracy to violate the Volstead act was given by Mose W. Kelton, Springfield coal dealer, this morning. Kelton described a trip to Jefferson City in August, 1928, made by Mayor Gideon, G. C. Pike, then Chief of Police; Oliver Gideon, the Mayor's son; Kelton and a driver.

The witness said both Pike and Oliver Gideon had "plenty" of liquor and that all of them drank. He said the Mayor became sick when the party went to a restaurant for supper.

On cross examination by Sam M. Wear, chief of defense counsel, Kelton said the trip had been made in an effort to obtain an appointment for him in the State Laborhibition agent, described liquor purchases he made during October and November, 1928, at the saloon operated by Tom Fuzzell, one of the defendants.

$4000 FOR YOUNG'S TRUSTEE

Mrs. F. C. Young's Offer for Equity in Home Accepted. Referee in Bankruptcy Colies yesterday approved the offer of Mrs. Dorothy Young, wife of Fred C. Young of the bankrupt brokerage firm of W. H. Young & Bros. Inc., to pay Trustee F. E. Williams $4000 for the equity in the Fred Young home, "Country Life Acres" at Clayton and Ballas roads, St. Louis County. No objections were offered by creditors.

Although title to the property is held by Mrs. Young, Williams had filed suit to prevent her sale on the theory it had been purchased at least in part, with funds of the bankrupt company. Williams agreed to dismiss the suit and pay the court costs. The property is subject to mortgages totaling $51,172 and lien claims totaling $27,095, and has been valued at $75,000.

Rat Bite Fatal to Boy, 13. QUINCY, Ill., Oct. 9.—Dale Walt, 13 years old, of Ursa, died yesterday of an infection resulting from a rat bite. At play two weeks ago he caught a rat by the tail and the rodent bit him on the hand.

DRIVER HITS MAN, SPEEDS ON

Fred Link, 65, Suffers Fractured Skull When Struck. Fred Link, 65 years old, 5223 Nagel avenue, suffered a fractured skull at 1:30 o'clock last night, when struck at Broadway and Peralta street by an automobile occupied by two men. The driver switched out the lights and increased speed, escaping north in Broadway. Link is in a serious condition at City Hospital.

Acid Stomach Disorder 3 Years

Relieved Quickly With New Prescription, ACIDINE

For the last three years I have been bothered by food souring, causing a burning sensation, that at times I felt like jumping in the river," says Mr. E. J. Moore, Cincinnati, Ohio. "I tried innumerable medicines, consulted a stomach specialist, but no relief. Finally I heard about ACIDINE and got some. No more burning or discomfort of acid stomach, no headaches. ACIDINE is wonderful."

Similar reports from all over rave about this amazing new prescription that succeeds where others fail. The reason is that ACIDINE is entirely different. Contains the marvelous digestant called Japane, in laboratory experiments Japane has been tested on certain starchy foods which caused so much stomach distress. It digested 800 times its weight of such foods in only 20 minutes!

Five other ingredients in ACIDINE instantly neutralize burning acid, soothe irritated stomach lining, relieve gas and headache from acidity. No other remedy contains this scientific combination to end acid stomach. Don't risk serious and more painful troubles. Get ACIDINE from your druggist today. Costs only a few cents. Watch how quick acid indigestion, burning stomach, pain, heartburn, fullness, short breath, vanish. Eat, drink, and smoke all you want. Results guaranteed. Make or give money back if not delighted.

MASS PRODUCTION OF PIANOS TO CUT PRICE

Handicraft Abandoned for 25 Per Cent Reduction Plan to Meet Radio Competition.

By the Associated Press.
NEW YORK, Oct. 9. — Pianos manufactured on a mass production basis and selling for 25 per cent less, will be put on the market next month by seven piano companies. The competition of mounting radio sales has forced the industry to adopt "scientific production methods" and to abandon handicraft almost entirely, Berthold Neuer, vice president of William Knabe Co., explained today.

The new type of piano is the result of experiments conducted by Dr. C. N. Hickman of the Bell Telephone Co., under direction of George G. Foster, president of the American Piano Corporation. The concerns which will manufacture and sell the new pianos are Knabe, Chickering, J. & C. Fischer, Marshall & Wendell, Ampico, Haines Brothers and Foster & Co.

"Until now pianos were produced chiefly by hand," Neuer said. "Workmen actually whittled out the keys and turned out each leg separately. The parts of one piano could not be changed to another. The price was necessarily high. Now we purpose to make pianos by mass production, just as automobiles are made, and they naturally become cheaper. The price cut will in no way affect the quality."

HEAD OF NAVAL OIL RESERVES

Admiral Chambers Succeeds Late Admiral Rousseau.

By the Associated Press.
WASHINGTON, Oct. 9. — Rear Admiral Frank Taylor Chambers of the Civil Engineer Corps today was named director of naval petroleum and oil shale reserves. He succeeds the late Rear Admiral Harry H. Rousseau and will represent the navy on the technical and advisory committee of the Federal Oil Conservation Board.

Late this month, Admiral Chambers will assume direction of naval reserves in California, Wyoming, Alaska, Colorado and Utah. He has been public works officer for the Third Naval District. Admiral Chambers was appointed a civil # engineer in the navy in 1897 and has served in various capacities with the United States Shipping Board and Board of Engineers for Rivers and Harbors.

SCRUBBING ROOTS BEGGARS

Mexico City's Campaign Results in Arrest of 200.

By the Associated Press.
MEXICO CITY, Oct. 9. — Beggars who ordinarily infest Mexico City's streets by hundreds have virtually disappeared as a consequence of a thorough scrubbing they got from the police, who rounded up 200 Wednesday and lodged them in jail. Most of those who were not arrested fled or are in hiding. The beggars at present in jail will be sent to the poor farm, which is nearing completion outside the city.

NEW $8600 REFUGE FOR DOGS

By the Associated Press.

CHICAGO, Oct. 9. — A new haven for friendless dogs, a two-story building with steam heat, a modern lighting system, hot and cold water and two attendants always on duty, has risen from the ashes of Mrs. Irene Castle McLaughlin's "Orphans of the Storm" dog refuge, destroyed last winter by fire. The new refuge, with accommodations for 150 dogs, and built at a cost of $8600, obtained by subscription, was opened today. Eighty-nine dogs were destroyed in last winter's fire.

LEGION TABLES CASH COMPENSATION PLAN

Proposal Involved $2,000,- 000,000 Distribution—Kansan New Commander.

By the Associated Press.
BOSTON, Oct. 9.—A resolution to request the Government to cash adjusted compensation certificates of World War veterans to the amount of 80 per cent was killed by being placed on the table at an American Legion convention meeting here today. The vote was 967 to 244. The proposal involved a distribution of about $2,000,000,000.
In the legislative committee session yesterday Massachusetts and 11 other states favored the plan and eight states opposed it.

A motion presented today by the New York delegation calling for a resolution favoring the repeal of prohibition was defeated. Commander Bodenhamer ruled that the motion was not germane to the purpose of the American Legion and that it conflicted with the political restrictions of the Legion constitution.

Ralph T. O'Neil of Topeka, Kan., was elected national commander of the Legion, defeating Munroe Johnson of Marion, S. C. The vote was: O'Neil, 479; Johnson, 246.
The convention elected the following vice commanders: Harry B.
Henderson Jr., Cheyenne, Wyo.; Burt S. Hyland, Rutland, Vt.; Dr.
Neal Williams, Excelsior Springs, Mo.; Roland B. Howell, Thibod-aux, La., and Dr. James A. Duff, Martinsburg, W. Va.

Mrs. Wilma Hoyal of Douglas, Ariz., was elected President of the Women's Auxiliary.
Preparedness Resolutions.

Preparedness was the keynote of a series of resolutions adopted by the Legion at the opening of today's session. The first of these called for a standing army of 125,- 000 men and a National Guard of 210,000, with 12,000 officers in addition to the enlisted personnel in the standing army.

The convention went on record as favoring a navy up to the strength permitted by the naval treaty; purchase of a 17,000-acre plot adjacent to West Point for development of the U. S. Military Academy; better means of promotion for Navy Warrant Officers;
more adequate congressional support for the Merchant Marine and increased co-ordination between the military and aeronautical forces.

A resolution calling on Congress to reduce the interest rate on loans made upon veteran's adjustment certificates from 6 per cent compounded to 4 per cent not compounded, was unanimously adopted.

The Legion has chosen Detroit for its 1931 meeting.

Mrs. Peabody Condemns Drinking.

Members of the Legion who drink and officials who "insult the constitution" were denounced by Mrs. Henry W. Peabody, national chairman of the Woman's Enforcement Committee last night. Major-General Clarence R. Edwards, wartime commander of the Yankee Division, was assailed for officially opening a booth of the Woman's Organization for National Prohibition Reform.

Mrs. Peabody condemned liquor conditions, which, she said, were attendant upon the American Legion Convention, in an address before a dry mass meeting, under auspices of the Roxbury Constitutional Defense Committee.

"I would rather see my boy or my grandson dead on the fields of France than in the condition in which I have seen some of our soldiers the past three days," Mrs.
Peabody said. She declared that many of the Legionnaires have, by their demonstrations in the city,
"failed to keep the faith for which others died in the war."

GETS 3-YEAR PRISON TERM ON MANSLAUGHTER PLEA

Henry Meyer, 42 years old, a laborer, was sentenced to three years in the State penitentiary by Circuit Judge Leahy at Clayton today on a plea of guilty of manslaughter, which was reduced from second degree murder on recommendation of the Prosecuting Attorney.

Meyer, who is crippled, fatally wounded Otto Rauhut, 32, a transient laborer, with a rifle last Feb.
4, when Rauhut picked up coal from railroad tracks near Meyer's cottage at 800 East Mary avenue, Luxemburg. Rauhut died three days later and Meyer, who fled following the shooting, surrendered.
He explained that he fired to frighten Rauhut.

ADDRESSES STAMP MAKERS

D. K. Wallace of the microdosing research division of the Department of Commerce told members of the International Association of Stamp Manufacturers meeting at Hotel Jefferson yesterday, that an analysis of stamping businesses in five cities had disclosed bad debts were responsible for a loss of only 29 cents for every $100 in sales.

He urged them to keep adequate records of cost of production and distribution, stating that unprofitable operations frequently were concealed by the profits from other phases of the business.

REPORTS OF BOYCOTT HERE INVESTIGATED

Commission Men Said to Be in Opposition to Livestock
Co-operatives.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 9.—Agents of the Department of Agriculture are investigating reports that commission men in St. Louis are boycotting livestock co-operatives. While no formal complaint has been made, either to the department or to the Farm Board, the reports were considered of sufficient importance to warrant an investigation. This is being conducted by the division in charge of enforcement of the packers and stockyards act.

Officials of the department indicated today that the investigation would be completed by the latter part of this week, or early next week. In the event the reports, which in instances have included commission men in Denver, are found to be substantiated by fact, a formal complaint will be made to Secretary Hyde.

Following the procedure outlined in the packers and stockyards act, the Secretary would then call a hearing at which testimony would be taken. The law provides that if it is shown that discriminating practices are used on an open market, the offender may be penalized by revocation of license. There are also criminal clauses of the act.

Secretary of Livestock Exchange
Makes Denial of Reports.

Harold A. Powell, secretary of the St. Louis Livestock Exchange, said today the organization had not boycotted co-operatives here, and that he believed none of its members, acting individually, had established boycotts.

"The difficulty probably arises out of a natural conflict between private business and Government-supported business," Powell said. "There are two co-operatives doing business in the stockyards on the East Side, one the Farmers' Commission Co., the other the Producers' Association, which has the support of the Farm Board. A subsidiary of the Producers, the National Order Buying Co., started business about two months ago, and it may be that they feel they have been discriminated against." Powell pointed out that there had been no formal complaint and said the Exchange would welcome a public hearing if one is held. William A. Moody, president of the Exchange, is in Washington, and may confer this week with Secretary of Agriculture Hyde.

VERDICT WAITS ON BALL GAME

HASTINGS, Neb., Oct. 9.—District Judge H. G. Blackledge demonstrated yesterday that even judges appreciate baseball. After hearing a case that concluded at noon, Judge Blackledge gave the jurors their choice.

They could either receive instructions and get their dinners at the expense of the county, or they could pay for their dinners and come back after the end of the world series ball game. There was an unanimous choice for the ball game.

Storm Delays Trip Around World.
PROGRESO, Mex., Oct. 9.—Ernest Pollman and William Ulrich of Detroit, Mich., who are attempting to sail around the world in the small sail boat "Globe Trotter," have put into Progreso because of a storm. They will continue to British Honduras in a few days.

CHICAGO DAY CELEBRATED WITH W. R. HEARST AS GUEST

5000 Motor Cars to Be in Parade in Observation of City's Disastrous Fire.

By the Associated Press.

CHICAGO, Oct. 9.—Chicago Day was celebrated today, the anniversary of the great fire, with parade, pageantry and speechmaking and with William Randolph Hearst, the publisher, as official guest of the city.

A parade 25 miles long is to open the celebration at 1:30 p. m. Hearst arrived a few hours earlier. He was a luncheon guest of President Hoover at the White House yesterday.

A private luncheon with Hearst, Senators James E. Watson of Indiana and Smith W. Brookhart of Iowa, and former Senator James A. Rood of Missouri numbered among the guests was to precede the parade, in which there were to be 5000 flag-draped motor cars. In the parade were to be 50 bands on buses.

The parade was to finish at Soldier Field where arrangements were made for a crowd of 150,000 persons, with a band of 3000 pieces and a chorus of 2000 voices.

BLIND BOOTLEGGER'S PAROLE
REVOKED; TO SERVE SENTENCE

The parole of Harry Smith, rooming house proprietor of 4 South Eighth street, granted, because of loss of his sight, after he had pleaded guilty of liquor law violations before Federal Judge Davis Sept. 30, was revoked yesterday and Smith was taken to jail at Montgomery City, Mo.

Nine cases of home brew beer were found in Smith's house yesterday by Milton Weiffenbach, newly appointed probation officer, to whom Smith was paroled. In Judge Davis' chambers Smith said the beer belonged to his roomers.

Smith's case was continued twice before he became totally blind, but his sight was gone and his case pronounced hopeless when he was finally arraigned. He pleaded guilty to three charges of possession and was fined $250 on each count, the fines being stayed. Now that the fines have been reinstated and Smith is unable to pay them, he will be obliged to serve 30 days on each count, after which he may obtain his freedom by making a pauper's oath. He is 45 years old.

FIRST SEIZURE OF AIRPLANE
IN DETROIT ENDS IN FATALITY

DETROIT, Mich., Oct. 9.—The Detroit Police Department's first seizure of an airplane ended fatally last night when Julius Kelly, a pilot, who had been engaged to move it, died in a Mount Clemens Hospital of injuries suffered in a crash at Gratiot Airport. Detective Peter J. Spratt, who was in the plane with Kelly, suffered a fractured arm.

Lee Phelps of Madison, Ind., had reported to police that the plane was stolen and had asked the arrest of Raymond Robinson, who was operating it at Harper Field here. Robinson was taken into custody Tuesday, but was released on bond after he had explained he was part owner of the plane.

U. S. JURY FAILS TO AGREE

Ex-Convict Accused of Raising Money Order.

A Federal Court jury yesterday failed to agree in the case of Harry J. Gross, an ex-convict, charged with raising a $1 postal money order to $21 and cashing it. The disagreement resulted largely from the testimony of George Dausch, also a former convict, that he, and not Gross, had purchased the money order, altered it and cashed it.

Dausch himself is awaiting trial on the same charge. In conflict with his testimony, Postoffice inspectors and policemen testified that Gross had admitted committing the offense when he was arrested last May. Only a short time before the arrest he had been paroled from Leavenworth penitentiary after serving a term for a similar offense.

Veiled Prophet's Ball Impressive Style Show

Mode of Gowns Is Second in Importance Only to Matrons, Maids and the Queen Herself.

By MARGUERITE MARTIN.

ONE would not minimize the importance of the Veiled Prophet ball as a civic and social event by saying it is primarily a style show.

Nevertheless, when all the lights have been extinguished, all the confetti swept up, all the gorgeous trappings of the Prophet's retinue vanished whence they came, the most lasting impression, the least evanescent effect, is the influence left upon a new season's modes.

The Prophet would not have it otherwise. Always he has demanded certain standards in dress below which he will not permit his subjects to enter his presence. It is gratifying to him to know that while the masculine element among the courtiers have to have their memory jogged about these requirements, no admonitions are needed by the women. The newest and best she can afford is every woman's willing contribution to the spectacle. Then the powers behind the throne, taking the affair in hand, stage-managing it with the utmost in dramatic effect, see to it that as a fashion show nothing else in the world approaches it.

First there is the promenade of matrons of honor across the Coliseum arena to slow music so that no detail of costume is lost upon the audience. Then the maids of honor showing what the well dressed debutante shall wear on formal occasions.

Of course, there is interest in the identity of those who have been thus honored by the Prophet, but whether the wearer is known or not her costume makes its due impression.

The entrance of the retiring queen alone is a fashion event. A second year girl ought to know what to wear and Miss Jean Ford brilliantly fulfilled the tradition last night in a gown of turquoise blue lace all a-sparkle with diamante embroidery. Her gown was cut in Princess style clinging to the knees, then flaring in the circular manner. The pattern of the lace was liberally outlined in rhinestones. A chain of great length falling from a deep oval neckline was of turquoise velvet embellished with a fan and floral design wrought in rhinestones.

Then there is the separately heralded entrance of the four special maids of honor. While disclosure of each name causes a flutter of excitement next in interest is how she looks and what she wears. And lastly, there is the dramatic disclosure of the identity of the queen and the climax of her entrance in the most magnificent gown of all.

What New Queen Wore.

The new queen, Miss Jane Perry Francis, is tall and slender and of rather serious mien. Her gown was a shimmering robe of silver cloth, lightly veiled with tulle which was almost solidly embroidered with rhinestones. It was built in Princess style but straight lines were broken by a full overskirt of tulle encrusted with silver lace liberally bespangled with brilliant stones. From the bodice cut in a deep U at the back depended a long train of tulle and silver lace. Over this her court train embellished with more silver lace and brilliant stones covered her shoulders. She wore long white gloves and carried the marvelous bouquet of orchids grown especially for her by Shaw's Garden.

The gowns of the four special maids were more brilliant in color than ever before. Indeed, after the special maids were seated on the dais they were like a slice out of the rainbow. Jewels were the inspiration of the color scheme, one gown reflected the tones of the ruby, another the amethyst, another the topaz and another the emerald.

Miss Jane Wilkinson Blackmer, entering first, sounded the emerald color note in a gown of green tulle over silver moire. The bodice was long and solidly beaded in three shades of green rhinestones. The skirt of tulle was very full and was held out at the edge by a ruching. Her train like those of the other special maids was six yards in length and as in the case of each was of velvet matching the shade of the gown and elaborately embroidered in French bow knots done in rhinestones.

Topaz and Ruby Gowns.

Miss Adeline Ely Smith wore the topaz colors becoming to her fresh blonde beauty. Princess lines extending to deep points were filled in with fluffy flares of yellow tulle and the bodice was latticed in white with topaz jewels.

Miss Louise Blackmer wore the amethyst shades. Rhinestones covering the bodice shaded from delicate mauve to deep purple and the skirt flaring full and flaring from a low waistline was of orchid tulle sprinkled with more jewels.

Miss Betty Rathmann was arresting in the ruby shades. A volley of masculine hand clapping greeted this costume. Her gown was almost solidly rhinestones, shading from deep flame to light, where it was not tulle in the very full skirt which hung in straight lengths to the floor.

This processional must necessarily recede as much of pageantry as of actual style. So, to get back to the real, serious fashion show proceeding in the boxes, along the side lines where people stood rows deep and in the parade of the maids and matrons of honor.

Radical are the changes since last year. Where the long silhouette was accepted then with compromises in the way of uneven hem lines, now it is absolutely long all around, or sweeps into a train at the back. Diaphanous hem lines looked passé. Many of the gowns were reminiscent of a generation ago, tight to the knees and flaring stiffly below. Some actually were stiffened with hair cloth. Quaintness characterized the gowns of the debutantes where they were not extremely sophisticated in either case making the buds look older than their years. Indeed, it was remarked that the matrons, who looked only their age, looked younger than some of the buds. Or perhaps it was because the matrons of honor were selected from a younger group of women this year. There were few of the fluffy type of gowns generally associated with the debutantes. When sheer fabrics were used they had a tailored look. When white or delicate colors were employed, they were fashioned into severe lines. Nothing fluttered. Chiffons and net were weighted down with pallides and brilliants. More popular materials were heavy stiff silks, velvets and laces.

Several of the debutantes wore black. Typical was the frock worn by Miss Melissa McKay of black taffeta made with long princess bodice, bustle back and plain circular skirt. Wreaths of large pink flowers were attached at center back and trailed diagonally over the shoulders in lieu of shoulder

WOMEN HAVE LEARNED TRUTH ABOUT CHOOSING THEIR FACE POWDER

A few months back, skin types were unknown. A woman couldn't understand why the same face powder beautified her friend's face, yet looked streaky and unnatural on her own. Today it's different. Now women know that their skin belongs to one of three types—oily, dry, normal—and they insist on face powder made especially for their type.

That is why you see smart women everywhere using Plough's Face Powder. For Plough has created three distinctive powders—a powder for each type of skin—and one was made especially for you.

When you smooth on your own Plough's Face Powder you will be thrilled to see how evenly it goes on; how caressingly it clings; how cleverly it hides those little blemishes and brings out beauty and charm you never dreamed you possessed.

FOR OILY SKIN—Choose Plough's "Lace of Flowers" Face Powder, heavy texture in the oval box, 75c.

FOR DRY SKIN—Choose Plough's "Favorite Bouquet" Face Powder, light texture in the square box, 80c.

FOR NORMAL SKIN—Choose Plough's "Exquisite" Face Powder, medium texture in the round box, 50c.

Each of Plough's 3 Face Powders comes in White, Flesh, Pink, Brunette and Sun-Tan tints—and each is sensibly priced wherever beauty creations are sold.

Do you find cosmetics a considerable item of expense? Then you'll appreciate what America's wisest shoppers have learned: The striking similarity of women everywhere for Plough's 3 Face Powders has enabled Plough to offer you the finest quality at sensible prices.

VEILED PROPHET'S BALL IMPRESSIVE FASHION SHOW

with a berth falling off the shoulders and its long circular skirt had a ruffling of the taffeta heading an added circular flounce. Miss Mary Jane Baumes also wore one of the frocks—fashioned on 1830 lines, of dark blue taffeta. Miss Blanche Adams' gown was an example of the sophisticated mode, Constance Walther. It was made long, clinging and vampish, in old pink lame, while Mrs. Willard Bartlett's frock of red taffeta was an example of the smart, young style affected by the matrons.

Princess lines divided honor with the tight-belted bodice. Empire waistlines belted high beneath the bust were a new note. Also there was a suggestion of Greek sculpture in tied scarf effects and the treatment of heavy satin put together intricately in sections so that it swathed the figure until freed in godets below the knees. One characteristic of the new gowns is their intricacy of cut. A simple silhouette and elaboration in design are attained by the stitching together in odd patterns of many sections of material. The bustle back silhouette, harking back to the 80's, was achieved frequently by means of ruffles running up the back or by looped sash ends.

So much recalling styles of other days would seem to imply that fashion creators had run out of ideas and there is nothing absolutely new, but that is by no means one's impression. The extremely low back décolletage, cut to the waist line and even below in a few instances, brought us up-to-date with a start. Certainly it was like nothing our Victorian ancestors ever wore nor would dainty femininity of the age of innocence have dreamed of showing a broad expanse of sun-tanned back. The bathing suit back with straps crisscrossed is one of the treatments of the low cut evening gown. Cowl draped effects and revers also varied some of the backs, or absence of backs of the gowns.

Frequently a deep V was accented with a choux of fabricated flowers or looped sash effects. Lots of Rue de la Paix jewelry, so-called because it imitates only precious stones, in fantastic designs gave a modernistic touch. Hair worn severely brushed back only slightly waved and showing the ears produced a worldly-wise, rather blasé appearance as contrasted with frivolous curls of other days. Accents of color introduced by means of a sash or gloves and shoes contrasting with the rest of the costume afforded some lively notes. Long gloves, black, pale blue and pink ones, were infrequent enough to stand out in relief.

Altogether, though there was not the pack and jam other V. P. balls have witnessed, it was a more smartly dressed crowd than usual. There were fewer of those who only came to see in gowns too patently made by loving hands at home.

The dressing rooms where women laid aside their wraps disclosed many handsome ones. The long enveloping cloak or cape of velvet trimmed with fur seemed newer, but the short wrap is still popular, sometimes matching the gown, sometimes contrasting in color and matching the shoes or other accents, thus bringing the whole costumes into an ensemble.

Who's Who in the Veiled Prophet Court.

MISS JANE PERRY FRANCIS, Veiled Prophet Queen of 1929, is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Talton T. Francis, her mother having been Miss Elizabeth Coste, and her maternal grandmother being Mrs. Paul Coste. Her paternal grandfather, David R. Francis, was Governor of Missouri, 1889-92, president of the Louisiana Purchase Exposition, member of President Cleveland's Cabinet, and the last Ambassador of the United States to Russia under the reign of Czar Nicholas.

Miss Francis was named for her paternal grandmother, now deceased, who was Miss Jane Perry before her marriage. Gov. and Mrs. Francis had six sons, but no daughter, hence this is the first appearance of a Queen bearing the name of Gov. Francis, who was for many years prominent in the Veiled Prophet festivities.

Miss Francis was educated at the Community and John Burroughs Schools and spent one year at the French School for Girls in New York. Last year she studied art in Boston at the School of Fine Arts and Crafts, and she plans to resume her study of art later. She is fond of riding and swimming and has traveled abroad.

Miss Betty Rathmann, first special Maid of Honor, is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Walter L. Rathmann, and granddaughter of the late Carl G. Rathmann, for many years assistant superintendent of schools. She was graduated at Mary Institute in 1928 and attended Wellesley College for two years.

Miss Louise Augustine Goddard, second special Maid of Honor, is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Warren Goddard, and the granddaughter of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph W. Goddard and Mr. and Mrs. George H. Augustine. She studied in the Community and John Burroughs schools, graduating from the latter, and studied at the French School for Girls in New York and in the Clairbois School, Versailles, France. She has spent several summers in camps in the East, and is proficient in swimming and horseback riding. At John Burroughs School she headed the school hockey team, and represented the school in interschool matches.

Miss Adeline Ely Smith, third special Maid of Honor, is daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Luther Ely Smith, and granddaughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. Samuel M. Kennard. She attended Mary Institute and John Burroughs School, graduated in 1928 and entered Vassar College, where she spent two years.

Miss Jane W. Blackmer, fourth special Maid of Honor, is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. L. Guy Blackmer, her mother having been Miss Jane Wilkinson, daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. John Cabell Wilkinson. She was a student at Mary Institute and John Burroughs School, from which she graduated in June, 1928. She entered Vassar College the following autumn.

Miss Jean Ford, retiring Queen, is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James L. Ford Jr. of 54 Westmoreland place.

Clears Up Coarse Skin

Makes old-looking skin youthfully clear—refines large pores—corrects oily skin—removes irritations.

Poor-color complexion, oily skin and blemishes are due to acid-skin impurities. And, everybody knows there is nothing like magnesia to neutralize acid. That is why creamed magnesia helps the skin throw off even the most deep-set pore impurities. It corrects oily skin in the same easy way that milk of magnesia purifies the stomach.

Creamed magnesia rejuvenates the complexion so quickly that any face looks years younger in five minutes. It changes old-looking, poor-color skin to youthful clearness and fades out freckles better than a bushel of lemons. It's astringent; it reduces enlarged pores to the finest texture and smooths out the tell-tale lines of age.

It removes make-up better than soap or cleansing cream. And, because it's so mild, it's a blessing for fine, sensitive skin that soap so easily irritates and coarsens. All you do is apply it to the skin, massage, and rinse with water. It's as simple as washing your face.

To get genuine creamed magnesia, ask your druggist for Denton's Facial Magnesia. The dollar bottle contains twice as much as the sixty-cent size.

Guarantee: It's impossible for Denton's Facial Magnesia not to improve your complexion. But should it fail to delight you, your dealer will refund your money without question.

LOVED PASTRIES BUT SUFFERED IF HE ATE THEM

"I like pies better than most any food, but I used to suffer when I ate pastry," says M. J. Czik, well-known police officer, of 4037 Twenty-Third Ave., S. Minneapolis, Minn. "I would have sick headaches; feel stuffy; a sour taste in my mouth; suffered a lot with gas; had no appetite."

"I had indigestion like that for over two years. Soda didn't help, and I tried many things before I heard about Pape's Diapepsin."

"It took me right out of my trouble. I have a mighty hearty appetite, eat pastry or anything I want and have no after-effects. I am never without Pape's Diapepsin and recommend it to everyone I know."

If you suffer from indigestion, often or just occasionally, get a package of these candy-like tablets from your druggist. They relieve heartburn, gas, nausea, headaches or any other minor symptoms of indigestion almost as soon as the trouble starts. They are harmless; form no habit; can be taken as often as needed.

If you wish to try them before buying, write "Pape's Diapepsin," Wheeling, W. Va., for a FREE sample box.

DIES AFTER BEING HIT BY WOMAN DRIVER

Thomas Cleary Fatally Hurt by Mrs. Bernardine Werner, Who Is Held for Coroner.

Thomas Cleary, 3900 Natural Bridge avenue, died at City Hospital this morning of a fractured skull suffered last night, when he was knocked down in front of 4205 Easton avenue, by an automobile driven by Mrs. Bernardine Werner, 2326 St. Ferdinand avenue. Mrs. Werner was arrested for the Coroner.

Benjamin Cohen, a student, 3012 Dickson street, suffered a fractured skull when a machine in which he was a passenger collided with another car at Easton avenue and Webster street last night. The driver of the other car, a Negro, fled, leaving behind three passengers who identified his machine as that stolen from Herman Glick, 6217 Southwood avenue, last Friday. Police are seeking the driver.

Bernard Lincora, 2010 South Broadway, driver of the car in which Cohen was riding, was unhurt.

Harry A. Saunders, a painter, 1214 Aubert avenue, suffered a fractured spine and internal injuries when struck by an automobile at Seventh boulevard and Franklin avenue yesterday. The driver was Miss Margaret McDonald of St. Clair Country Club, Belleville.

When Henry C. Stangl, 3716 Oregon avenue, reached in the rear of his machine to pick up his carpenter tools, his machine collided with a street car in front of 2326 California avenue yesterday. His passenger, Jacob Selgrad, carpenter, 2157 Iowa avenue, suffered a lacerated scalp and Stangl a fractured collarbone and internal injuries.

NEGRO FATALLY STABBED BY WIFE WHOM HE HAD LEFT

She Strikes Him With Stiletto When Policeman Turns Back Momentarily.

When a policeman turned his back momentarily, Betty Batt, Negro, fatally stabbed her husband, Columbus Batt, 34 years old, in a room at 2609A Lawton boulevard, early today.

The woman had approached Patrolman Michael Leonard and asked him to accompany her to the room where she thought her husband was living since leaving her three weeks ago. Upon entering the room, the policeman started to investigate a door leading to another room. Hearing a muffled outcry, he turned to see Batt slump to the floor, stabbed through the heart with a long stiletto.

Batt was pronounced dead at City Hospital No. 2 and his wife was arrested. A revolver was found near where Batt had been sitting, but the policeman said he observed no attempt by the man to reach it.

3 GAS VICTIMS' BODIES TAKEN FROM MASSILLON, O., MINE

Death of Undertaker Leading Rescue Crew into Workings Brings Toll to Four.

By the Associated Press.

MASSILLON, O., Oct. 9.—The bodies of three miners, killed by gas when trapped by fire in a slope mine near Dalton early today, were recovered last night. With the death earlier of a rescue worker, the toll of the fire was fixed at four.

The dead miners were Russell Shanklin, 45 years old, part owner of the mine; Robert Douglas, 55, engineer, and Harvey P. Sword, 47, all of Dalton. Sword was the father of 11 young children. The three had died from monoxide gas fumes, which this morning caused the death of Rush D. Hillier, 47, Canton undertaker, who was overcome while leading a rescue crew into the mine.

GOULD INHERITANCE TAX PLEA

Jersey Supreme Court Reserves Decision on Heirs' Contentions.

By the Associated Press.

TRENTON, N. J., Oct. 9.—The Supreme Court reserved decision yesterday after hearing arguments to set aside an inheritance tax levied by New Jersey on two items totaling $2,625,000 in the estate of George J. Gould. The items included a $1,825,000 contribution by Guinevere Sinclair Gould to the estate of Jay Gould, her husband's father, and a $1,000,000 trust fund alleged to have been created by George J. Gould for his wife 56 days before he died.

The heirs seek to deduct the widow's contribution from George Gould's taxable estate. They declared taxing of the trust fund was not legal. New Jersey contended creation of the fund was made in contemplation of death and thus was taxable under state laws.

BARBARA BEDFORD TO REWED

Former Actress and Alan Roscoe Will Marry Again.

By the Associated Press.

LOS ANGELES, Cal., Oct. 9.—Barbara Bedford, 27 years old, former movie actress, and the man she divorced in 1928, Alan Roscoe, 43, actor, are to remarry.

"It takes a divorce as well as a marriage to make a man and a woman acquainted with each other," Miss Bedford said yesterday after they had applied for a marriage license. "We found there was no one else in the world for each of us," Roscoe said. "They were first married in 1921. Miss Bedford testified at her divorce trial her husband said he was 'not fit for the slavery of double happiness.' They have one child, Barbara, age 6."

5000 MEN IN CLEVELAND, O., APPLY FOR THREE-DAY JOBS

After Seeing Through, Mayor Says He Will Ask for $500,000 More for City Work.

CLEVELAND, O., Oct. 9.—Five thousand men thronged around City Hall and crowded out into the street as applications were received for the hall for the employment of 5000 men on three-day city jobs. Patrolmen were hard pressed to keep traffic moving and the public auditorium annex was thrown open to accommodate part of the crowd. Eighty clerks were rushed to the scene to handle the flood of applications.

The jobs were created a few days ago, when City Council approved a $200,000 bond issue for park repairs and improvements.

After looking at the crowd, Mayor John D. Marshall said he would introduce for an amendment to provide for an additional $500,000 for the city.

5000 MEN IN CLEVELAND, O., APPLY FOR THREE-DAY JOBS

After Seeing Throng, Mayor Says He Will Ask for $500,000 More for City Work.

CLEVELAND, O., Oct. 9.—Five thousand men crowded around the City Hall and crowded into the street as applications were received for the employment of 2,000 men on three-day city jobs. Patrolmen were hard pressed to keep traffic moving and the public from overcrowding the hall. Eighty clerks were rushed to the scene to handle the flood of applications.

The jobs were created a few days ago when City Council approved a $500,000 bond issue for park repairs and improvements.

After looking at the crowd, Mayor John D. Marshall said he would introduce legislation Tuesday night for an additional $500,000 fund to provide city work for unemployed.

RECEIVERSHIP SUIT FILED AGAINST LOAN COMPANY

Suit for a receiver for the Torchin Loan Co., was filed in Circuit Court yesterday by I. Gellman, 3306 Easton avenue, who owns eight shares of its stock. He charges mismanagement, asserting the company has made loans for a period of more than one year, and for two years failed to make a financial statement to him.

His attorney, Samuel White, recently obtained a statement, it was said.

The petition says the company has over $53,000 stock issued, with an authorized capital of $100,000. J. M. Smit is president.

49 SEIZED BY POLICE IN 18 LIQUOR RAIDS

Officers Find 192 Bottles of Beer When Hunting Pistol Toters.

In 18 liquor raids last night, police arrested 49 persons. The raids, as usual, were made without search warrants.

Upon information that several men carrying revolvers had entered a house at 3727 St. Ferdinand street, a group of policemen went there, found no armed men, but arrested a woman who said she was Mrs. Emma Leonard. Police said she admitted ownership of 192 bottles of home brew which they found.

Other persons taken in the raids gave the following names, according to police reports: Helen Schlatter at 1216 Chouteau avenue, with 10 guests. Beer, whisky and alleged cherry wine were seized, police reported. Mrs. Exie Walsh, rooming house at 4837A Page boulevard, another woman and three men, 260 quarts of home brew and two quarts of whisky. Rudolph White, saloon at 218 North Cardinal avenue, a pint of whisky. Earl Nichols, saloon at 921 South Grand boulevard, half a pint of whisky. Joseph Messier, 1019A Market street, 36 quarts of brew. Henry Faengler, 324 South Fourth street, one gallon of whisky.

Raid on Hotel Room.
At the St. Charles Hotel, 902 St. Charles avenue, a man who came out of Room No. 7 with a package was questioned. The package was found to contain a bottle of gin and police raided the room, finding, they reported, five bottles of Scotch whisky, 40 pints of Bourbon and 22 bottles of gin. The man, who was arrested, said he was David McDermott, 2114 North Sarah street.

Percy F. Day was arrested in a confectionery at 3754 South Broadway after police reported they found 12 bottles of brew on ice. Mrs. Pearl Palazzolo and a man accompanied were arrested in a grocery at 809 North Jefferson avenue. Police said they found a gallon of moonshine whisky there. John Nero was arrested in a saloon at 4616 Delmar boulevard, where the raiders said they found a pint of whisky. Michael Galli was taken into custody in a saloon at 4549 Delmar boulevard. Police stated they found 67 bottles of brew.

Whisky Found in Dresser.
In a smoke shop at 2911 Chouteau avenue, Graham White was arrested after police asserted they found five half-pint bottles of whisky in a dresser. David Reed was arrested in a saloon at 3416 Olive street. Police said they found seven bottles of brew.

Frank Byington, 68 years old, was arrested in a confectionery at 2951 Chouteau avenue. Police said he came out of a rear room, carrying a glass of moonshine whisky, as they entered, and asserted they found a quantity of moonshine in the basement. Bert Cull was taken into custody at 4117A Chippewa street. Police said they found 151 bottles of brew and two crocks of beer mash. Ten Negroes were arrested at 19 North Beaumont avenue. Police said they found a jug and four bottles of moonshine whisky.

Brew Seized in Shed.
Michael Brazell was arrested in a saloon at 4488 Clayton avenue, where police said they found 26 bottles of brew in a shed behind the place. Benjamin Crockett was arrested in a saloon at 445 North Sarah street. Raiders said he emptied the contents of a glass into the rinse water as they entered. Philip Parisi was arrested at 313 Carr street where police said they found a quantity of whisky and two bottles of brew. Six men also were arrested.

Two men were arrested after an automobile accident at Lawrence avenue and De Tony street when a woman turned over to police a pint of whisky which she said was thrown from their car following the collision. They identified themselves as Harvey A. Wright, 2052 Waverly place, driver of the automobile, and Bernard Droste, 4001 Russell avenue, owner of the car.

MARY GARDEN TO TAKE VOICE TEST FOR MOVIE OPERA

Later She Will Return to France; Gives Up Plan to Become American.

By the Associated Press. NEW YORK, Oct. 9.—Mary Garden arrived on the Bremen today, after a summer on the Riviera during which she spent much time swimming.

Miss Garden, long an advocate of open-air sun baths, said she felt younger than ever. She dared anyone to say she didn't look younger.

"On the fifteenth," she announced, "I'm going to sing all over the radio." And she pronounced it "radio." Someone asked if she had learned that from former Gov. Alfred E. Smith.

"Does he say it that way?" she asked. "What! He's been criticized for it! Well, he's perfectly right. He's always right. He's a dear."

After singing on the radio here Miss Garden will go to the West Coast to take a voice test and find out if she is equipped to star in a movie opera. Then she'll go to Chicago for a little while and then back to France, where she expects to spend most of her time from now on. She said she had given up the idea of becoming an American citizen, although she took out her first papers five years ago.

$10,000 DEED OF TRUST SET ASIDE AS FORGERY

Purchaser, Who Had Title Insurance, Says She Thought Document Genuine.

A deed of trust for $10,000 which was placed against realty of Mr. and Mrs. John F. Hines at 4324 St. Ferdinand avenue was set aside today by Circuit Judge Percy on evidence the transaction was fraudulent.

Mr. and Mrs. Hines said they did not authorize execution of the document which purported to be security for a loan and it was done without their knowledge last November when they were in California. Their purported attested signatures were declared to be forgeries.

The deed of trust, naming the Union-Easton Trust Co. as trustee was later acquired by Mrs. Rose Zatlín, 5027A Maffitt avenue. However, it appears Mrs. Zatlín was cautious and took out title insurance which protected her. She said she purchased the deed in good faith, relying on the attestation of a woman notary public.

The Notary Public testified that a man who apparently possessed proper credentials introduced a pair to her as Mr. and Mrs. Hines, stating they wanted to acknowledge a deed. However, the pair in court were not the persons who signed their names in her presence, she said. Suit to revoke was directed against Mrs. Zatlín. She did not appear in court, but filed a formal answer stating she was an innocent holder of the security. The counsel that represents the title insurance company which guaranteed the deed represented her.

It was said the company, through Mrs. Zatlín, has a claim to recover the loss against the Notary on her bond. Last May representatives of the insurance company made inquiry at Police Headquarters for the police record of one "J. C. Krebs" of Los Angeles. At that time, it was stated he had made a trade with Mrs. Zatlín by exchanging the Hines deed of trust for realty she owned at 3801 Laclede avenue. The name of "Krebs" was not brought out in the hearing. Lambert B. Walther, attorney for Mr. and Mrs. Hines, said he was only interested in proving that his clients neither signed the document nor received any money in the transaction.

JAMES SIMPSON JR.'S WIFE CHARGES HE DESERTED HER

Daughter of James Medill Patterson, Sues Son of Marshall Field Head for Divorce.

CHICAGO, Oct. 9.—Mrs. Allice Simpson, daughter of James Medill Patterson, part owner of the Chicago Tribune, filed suit yesterday for divorce from James Simpson Jr., son of the chairman of the Board of Marshall Field & Co. The petition charges desertion Sept. 20, 1928. The Simpsons were married in Libertyville, Ill., Sept. 27, 1927.

The Simpson marriage at her parents' country home was one of the outstanding social events of the 1927 season. They spent seven months in a honeymoon trip in Europe. Both are aviation enthusiasts, Simpson holding a private pilot's license and Mrs. Simpson has published a number of stories and magazine articles.

Immediately after the formal announcement of the engagement in August, 1927, friends recall, North Shore society was stirred by the announcement that a marriage license had been issued in Waukegan, Ill., for Miss Patterson and J. Ledyard Smith of Milwaukee. Mrs. Smith later explained that he had obtained the license without Miss Patterson's consent. It was later returned to the County Clerk unused.

AMERICANS ARE FAVORED BY LOW PRICE OF SUGAR

Most Nations Pay Much Higher Price for This Product

According to statistics, sugar is one of the cheapest food products bought by the American housewife day in and day out. In Australia and New Zealand, where the per capita consumption is thirty pounds more per year than in the United States, a higher price is maintained.

The standards of this country in refining sugar, not only insure uniform color, granulation, density and purity, but give it unlimited keeping qualities. Besides, Americans are offered sugar in many inviting forms, conveniently packed to suit their needs.

The low price of sugar, its many uses, and the important part it plays in the diet should not be overlooked. It is one of the chief ingredients in wholesome desserts, including puddings, custards and ice cream. It improves the taste-appeal of beverages, nutritious stewed and fresh fruits, also breakfast cereals. Used as a seasoning with salt, sugar heightens the flavor of vegetables rich in vitamins and minerals.

The healthy, well-fed United States Army consumes considerably more sugar per capita than those in civilian life. Inasmuch as the diet of these soldiers is constantly watched by medical and dietary experts, this consumption of sugar is significant. Good food promotes good health. The Sugar Institute.

ANCIENT IDOLS UNEARTHED Scientists Find Stone Statues in Ruins of City of Copan.

By the Associated Press. TEGUCIGALPA, Honduras, Oct. 9.—Archaeologists working in the ruins of the ancient city of Copan have found a large number of old stone idols supposed to be Mayan gods. The scientists say their discovery will aid in solving many mysteries connected with Mayan civilization of bygone centuries. The new relics, which include monuments and other objects in addition to the statues of idols, a were found in a large cave several miles from the famous Copan ruins. The Government has taken addition to the statues of idols, a deep interest in the discovery.

200 ENTER MILKMAID CONTEST AT THE ARENA

Women May Sign Until Midnight Tomorrow for Dairy Show Feature.

The entry list for the Milkmaid Marathon, one of the events of the National Dairy Show which will open Saturday at The Arena, will be closed at midnight tomorrow. W. H. Rice, director of the contest, which will result in the selection of American's champion milkmaid, announced today.

More than 200 women from 20 states have entered, Rice said, and additional entry applications contained in envelopes postmarked before midnight tomorrow will be accepted. The butter churning contests will be conducted throughout the show and may be entered at any time.

Dutch Belted cows from the herd of John L. Green, president of the Laclede-Christy Clay Products Co., will be used in the milking contests. These cows are descended from the first herd brought to this country by P. T. Barnum.

J. W. Ridgeway, Fort Worth, Tex., will judge the 339 Jersey entries at the exposition. Jerseys from 21 states and Canada, representing 50 exhibitors, will be shown.

The first poultry show exhibit arrived yesterday, consisting of a flock of 28 White Leghorns accompanied by the owner, W. S. Freeman, Hayward, Cal. Installation has begun of the United States Department of Agriculture's poultry show display, which will include a mechanical hen.

One of the features of the Women's Home Exposition, which will be held on the mezzanine of The Arena, will be an Oriental style show, presented every afternoon at 2:15 o'clock under direction of Mrs. Mabel Craddock, Glencoe, Mo., who lived in India for 27 years and is the mother of Roshanara, an Oriental dancer who died four years ago. Indian costumes will be displayed on living models.

MT. VERNON TO BE REPRODUCED BY U. S. AT PARIS EXPOSITION
President Hoover Approves Plan for Central Building at 1931 Fair.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 9.—Plans have been approved by President Hoover for the reproduction of Mount Vernon as the central building of the United States group at the Paris Colonial Exposition which will open May 1, 1931.

The room occupied by Gen. Lafayette on visits to Gen. Washington is to be reproduced as nearly as possible in its original form, including furniture similar to that in the mansion.

C. Bascom Slomp of Virginia, Commissioner-General of the United States to the Exposition, after obtaining the approval of the Chief Executive and of Ambassador Claudel of France, said, because of the special work involved, much of the building would be fabricated in this country and shipped to France to be set up.

The "New Mount Vernon" is to be used as an administration building. Slomp said. Other buildings will be constructed to house the exhibits of the Philippines, Hawaii, Porto Rico, Alaska, the Canal Zone and the United States.

PERNAMBUCO FELL AFTER 48 HOURS OF STREET FIGHT

Direct Reports From City of Northern Brazil Say 150 Casualties Were Suffered in Battle Won by Revolutionary Army.

HIGH SCHOOL BOYS IN REBELS' FORCES

They Are Hailed as Heroes and Red Flags, Emblem of Liberal Party, Fly Everywhere—Provisional Government Set Up.

By the Associated Press. PERNAMBUCO, Oct. 9.—This important northern city of Brazil today is in control of revolutionary forces which reported the insurgent movement against the central Government had been victorious in all states to the north.

The capture of Pernambuco followed a 48-hour struggle which broke out at 1 a. m. Saturday between revolutionary forces and part of the garrison and state military police who remained loyal to the Federal Government. Casualties in the fighting were reported to number 150.

The revolutionists took control of the arsenal and the surrounding streets. The police began counterattacks and there was fighting with rifles and machine guns. The insurgents then laid siege to the cavalry barracks, the two police headquarters, the jail and the Governor's palace. An armored car was captured and the last police stronghold was taken at 4 o'clock Monday morning. The police and soldiers adhered to the movement.

Governor and Staff Flee. Gov. Coimbra and his staff fled Sunday night, repeating a similar flight which he made when he was Governor in 1911.

Automobiles filled with shouting groups made their way through the city while the populace showed great enthusiasm. High school boys who took part in the fighting were greeted as heroes. The crowd shouted: "Viva revolution." "Viva the memory of Joao Pessoa, former President of the State of Parahyba and a candidate of the Liberals for the vice presidency in the March 1 elections, who was shot and killed here. It was reported the assassins of Pernambuco, who were being held in the city, killed themselves. Everywhere red flags, the color of the Liberal party, were displayed, the flags appearing on automobiles and houses.

Provisional Government. A provisional government has been established under the direction of Gen. Juarez Tavora, head of the revolution in the north. Gov. Cavalcanti has appointed officials to put down excesses and to re-establish order. Yesterday commerce was resumed.

It was reported the Governor of Rio Grande do Norte fled to Rio de Janeiro and that the Governor of the State of Parahyba was being held in jail. Gen. Lavigne, commander of the Federal forces which were stationed in Parahyba a week ago, died during the fighting. The acting Governor of Parahyba is now the former chief of the state police, who was a great admirer of Pessoa.

Federal Offensive in State of Santa Catharina.

By the Associated Press. RIO DE JANEIRO, Oct. 9.—Federal army forces, based on the strategic port of Florianopolis, in the state of Santa Catharina, today began an offensive against the revolutionary forces in that state. Gen. Costa, Federal army leader, notified officials in the state of Sao Paulo that a force of 2,000 Federal cavalry men had taken the field. This force was divided in five regiments of 500 men each.

Acting to preserve the capital's food supply, Government forces have continued an advance into the state of Minas Geraes, whence most of the capital's food comes. The mountainous character of the country and the necessity of repairing burned bridges and destroyed track are delaying progress of the administration troops.

A decree was promulgated regulating the foodstuffs trade in the city and establishing maximum prices. Infractions of the law will be punishable with fines up to $5000. The decree also provides that rice, butter, frozen meat, jerked beef, lard, potatoes, peas, condensed milk, maize and fodder shall enter Brazilian ports duty free during the next two months.

shouted: "Viva revolution," and paid tribute to the memory of Joao Pessoa, former President of the State of Parahyba and a candidate of the Liberals for the vice presidency in the March elections, who was shot and killed here.It was reported the assassins of Pessoa, who were being held in Pernambuco jail, killed themselves.
Everywhere red flags, the color of the Liberal party, were displayed, the flags appearing on automobiles and houses.Provisional Government.
A provisional government has been established under the direction of Gen. Juarez Tavora, head of the revolution in the north.
Gov. Cavalcanti has appointed officials to put down excesses and to re-establish order. Yesterday commerce was resumed.
It was reported the Governor of Rio Grande do Norte fled to Rio de Janeiro and that the Governor of the State of Parahyba was being held in jail. Gen. Lave-ra, commander of the Federal forces which were stationed in Parahyba a week ago, died during the fighting. The acting Governor of Parahyba is now the former chief of the state police, who was a great admirer of Pessoa.Federal Offensive in State of Santa Catharina.By the Associated Press.
RIO DE JANEIRO, Oct. 9.— Federal army forces, based on the strategic port of Florianopolis, in the state of Santa Catharina, today began an offensive against the revolutionary forces in that state.Gen. Costa, Federal army leader, notified officials in the state of Sao Paulo that a force of 2,000 Federal cavalry men was on the field. This force was divided into five regiments of 500 men each.Acting to preserve the capital's food supply, Government forces have continued an advance into the state of Minas Geraes, whence most of the foodstuffs trade comes.
The mountainous character of the country and the necessity of repairing burned bridges and destroyed track are delaying progress of the administration troops.A decree was promulgated regulating the foodstuffs trade in the city and establishing maximum prices. Infractions of the law will be punishable with fines up to $400. The decree also provides that rice, butter, frozen meat, condensed milk, and other foodstuffs entering Brazilian ports duty free during the next two months.Richest Territory in Brazil Is Stake of RevolutionistsNearly Fourth of Nation's Population in State of Sao Paulo and City of Rio de Janeiro.By the Associated Press.
Brazil's revolutionary movement, which is in progress all along the coast for 300 miles from the mouth of the Amazon to the border of Uruguay, involves chiefly cities and districts within 200 miles of the seaboard.At least two-thirds of the republic's estimated 23,000,000 inhabitants live on the cool eastern plateau which extends from Per-nambuco to Rio Grande do Sul.
In the Amazon area and the great western interior country the population is sparse.Nearly one-fourth of Brazil's population is concentrated in the State of Sao Paulo, the city of Rio de Janeiro and the Federal district in which Rio de Janeiro is situated. This area is firmly in the hands of the Federal Government, which expresses confidence
it can hold it in line for the Washington Luis administration.

Chicago of South America.

Sao Paulo, the capital of the State of that name, is the Chicago of South America and does more manufacturing than any other city south of the Equator. It has a population of nearly 1,000,000 and 6,000,000 inhabitants in the State of Sao Paulo, which is the center of the great coffee and agricultural district, which pours its products through Sao Paulo to the sea at Santos, 50 miles to the east.The wealth of Brazil is largely concentrated in this area adjoining Rio de Janeiro and Sao Paulo.
Political power is also concentrated here and the revolution is a protest by distant states against the control of the republic from this nucleus.Of the states which are disaffected, Minas Geraes has more than 6,000,000 inhabitants and is probably causing the Federal Government greatest concern because it adjoins Rio de Janeiro and is the chief source of food supply for the capital. Rio Grande do Sul, the southern state where the insur-gent movement started, has a population of about 2,500,000 and its capital,
Porto Alegre, a city of about 175-000, is a very progressive port, with a large sprinkling of German population, and its choice as the headquarters for the movement was doubtless prompted by the ease with which the leaders can communicate with Uruguay and keep contact with the outside world.Pernambuco State, which is the stronghold of the insurrectionary movement in the North, has a population of about 2,500,000 and its capital, Pernambuco, which the rebels now control, is a city of 350,000. The state of Bahia, where there is also disaffection, has about 2,500,000 population, and the capital city, Bahia, has a population of more than 300,000.The Progressive Immigrants.
But the population figures of the states near the Equator do not give an adequate idea of the importance of the districts, as the progressive immigrants have settled largely in the states south of Rio de Janeiro, especially on the plateau from 50 to 100 miles west of the coast, which provides a temperate climate.Rubber and other tropical products of the Amazon area have been largely neglected in recent decades for coffee, grain, cattle and other products of the more temperate regions to the south, consequently Brazil's more progressive area is largely south of Rio de Janeiro.Brazilian Railways are poorly coordinated and run chiefly parallel to the coast line, with short lines connecting the various port cities. Most of the passenger travel from Pernambuco and other northern cities to Rio de Janeiro is by steamer as the railway trains do not provide fast schedules and good connections. Sao Paulo is the greatest railway center of the republic and has a line to the Uruguayan border. But passenger travel between the center of Brazil and Montevideo is largely by steamer.CUBAN PRESIDENT EXPRESSES CONFIDENCESure He Will Be Able to Guide Republic Through Period of Unrest.By the Associated Press.
HAVANA, Oct. 9.—Addressing an assembly of more than 2000
persons gathered in the palace yesterday, President Machado expressed confidence in his own ability to see the republic through its present period of political unrest.
The President ascribed conditions to economic difficulties rather than dissatisfaction with the administration. He said it "was time for constructive action, not talk."Referring to his authorization by Congress last week to suspend constitutional guarantees during the remainder of the electoral period if emergency warranted, the executive asserted that Cuba had shown since then there was no need to suspend these guarantees.
The Oppositionists' request for postponement of the November senatorial and congressional elections was not in his power to grant,
he said, adding: "They are ordained by the Constitution to be held Nov. 1, and they will be held at that time."He announced that after the elections he would send a message to Congress asking for a new elec-tional census and a reorganization of political parties. He also will ask Congress to appoint a special commission to investigate the administrations of former Presidents Alfredo Zayas and Gen. Amario C.
Menocal. Both former chief executives recently aligned themselves against him, proclaiming his administration unconstitutional.
President Machado said that, following this investigation he would ask Congress for a re-affirmation of all constitutional steps taken by the republic up to the time his own administration began in 1925.Included among those who attended the "demonstration of loyalty" meeting were six provincial Governors of Cuba and 122 of the republic's 124 mayors.

TO REJECT EMPIRE
TARIFF PROPOSALSuggestion Made at London Conference by Canada,
Supported by Australia.By JOHN L. BALDERSTON, London Correspondent of the Post-
Dispatch and New York World.Copyright, 1930, by the Post and Pulitzer Publishing Cos., New York World
and Post-Dispatch.LONDON, Oct. 9.—Canada, supported by Australia, made formal and concerted proposals in the plenary session of the Imperial Conference here yesterday for tariff walls around the empire in furtherance of the unity idea, but at the same time declared that empire
free trade was impracticable.Chancellor of the Exchequer Philip Snowden, free trade proponent, who will be heard from later, sat throughout the session, in which the generalities of previous sessions were abandoned, in impassive silence. He heard R. B. Bennett, newly elected Conservative Prime Minister of Canada, tell the conference that Canada wanted to sell her wheat here under more favorable conditions than those accorded to the United States or other countries."I offer to the mother country," he said, "and to all other parts of the empire, preference in the Canadian market in exchange for like preference in theirs, based upon an addition of 10 per cent to prevailing general tariffs or upon tariffs yet to be created. In universal acceptance of this offer by other parts of the Empire, we would attain the ideal of empire preference."Opposes Empire Free Trade.
The Canadian Prime Minister just now in time in adding, with emphasis,
"In our opinion, empire free trade
is neither desirable nor possible, for it would defeat the very purpose we are trying to achieve. All that is helpful in empire free trade
may be secured by empire preference."Bennett explained that the proposed 10 per cent preferential duty on wheat and other products in favor of members of the empire could not be applied without flexibility, and suggested that each country in the empire set up a committee to study its applicability and that an economic conference of the empire to prepare a general plan meet in Ottawa early next year.These suggestions were unexpected in the concrete form in which they were put forward and made Bennett's speech the outstanding one of the plenary session.The Australian Prime Minister, J. H. Scullin, and Parker Moloney, Australian Minister of Transport, supported Canada, as did New Zealand. Moloney warned Great Britain that unless something were done to help the empire wheat growers the Australian wheat industry would be forced out of existence and Great Britain would have to depend on foreign wheat for food.Ireland and India Straddle.
The Indian and Irish representatives straddled the issue raised by Bennett's proposal, while South Africa, in the person of Finance Minister H. C. Heveness, agreed to reciprocate tariff arrangements within the empire, but showed much more caution than the Canadian Premier and committed South Africa to no definite suggestion.J. H. Thomas for Great Britain spoke of the "economic blizzard"
from which the world is suffering, and proved by statistics that Great Britain was in a much worse plight than the dominions, but made no concrete proposals. This it was afterwards explained, was because the British Government wanted to hear the ideas of the dominion spokesmen before defining its own attitude.Bennett's demand for a British wheat market and his offer in exchange of a 10 per cent tariff preference, obviously almost entirely directed against the United States, overshadows everything else that has come up in the Imperial conference.Problem for Labor Cabinet.
It raises at once for the Labor Government here the problem of whether it dare impose what amounts to a tax on food in Canada's favor, and the answer is almost certainly in the negative so far as MacDonald's Cabinet is concerned, although the Tories, if they win the next election here, may consent to such a step.The heads of delegations will discuss these matters and the proposals of Canada and Australia will be referred to the committee on Imperial economic co-operation.
It was noteworthy that the conference vetoed Australian Transport Minister Moloney's plan for a special committee to deal with the wheat situation on the ground that this would come up before the general committee on Imperial cooperation.The impression prevailing here is that the present political situation in England makes it impossible for the MacDonald Government to do other than shelve Canada's 10 per cent preference proposals.CUBAN PRESIDENT APPROVES SUGAR RESTRICTION PLANMachado Indorses Proposal to Aid Industry as Submitted by Thomas L.
Chadbourne.

By the Associated Press.

Oct. 9.—The Thomas
L. Chadbourne plan for the salvation of the sugar industry received the approval of President Machado last night. Steps were immediately taken to obtain the consent of American and Cuban sugar interests so that the plan may be formally adopted. Chadbourne is chairman of the Cuban-American Sugar Committee.Chadbourne, seeking to establish a balance between production and consumption of sugar, visited the cane in company with the Santa Clara Planters' Committee at the executive's invitation. He asked the President to appeal to the producers of sugar in Cuba to segregate in the hands of a single organization 1,500,000 tons—the estimated carry-over of the 1929-30 crop.He requested that this carry-over be disposed of in an orderly manner over a period not to exceed five years, the pay therefor to be the sum of $4 a bag, f. o. b. payment to be made in Cuban Government bonds to be issued under an appropriate law.In addition, Chadbourne asked the President to approve the giving of certificates to those so contributing sugar for segregation, these certificates to entitle their owners to a prorata share of the net proceeds of the sugar contributed after deducting necessary expenses and the amount of principal and interest of the bonds.Chadbourne said Machado was highly enthusiastic about the plan, pronouncing it the one way to solve the sugar situation. Telegrams were immediately sent the 25 American companies and the 50 Cuban mill owners, asking them to wire their approval.The American added that he expected to receive these approvals in 48 hours and then would sail for New York. He will go to Europe
Oct. 20 with Senator Viriato Gutierrez, Cuban sugar leader, to discuss a world restriction agreement with sugar interests there.WREATHS TO BE PLACED

LONDON, Oct. 9.—The British Isles and English Channel areas experienced wind and rain of unusual violence yesterday and last night but were quieter today. The wind at times reached a velocity of 65 miles per hour but there was no material damage.Tremendous seas were stirred up in the channel and shipping was driven to shelter after a severe buffeting. Some vessels were unable to make port, but so far as is known none was lost.Five huge seas struck the steamer Haverhill in rapid succession, staying in the fore hatch. The boat hove to for an hour to make necessary repairs. Its 190 passengers had a bad time but were not touched by the water, which swamped the steward's cabin.

ROME, Oct. 9.—Italy's stand for naval parity with France was reaffirmed last night by the Grand Council of the Fascist party at its second night session.The decision was taken with Premier Mussolini in the chair after Dino Grandi, Foreign Minister, had made a two-hour report on foreign affairs.The report was greatly applauded and was followed by the adoption of a resolution which fully approved Italy's foreign policy.
The resolution said the action "reaffirms the decision previously adopted that Italy cannot accept an agreed which does not first establish the principle of naval parity."Italy's stand for naval parity with France was one of the rea-

WASHINGTON, Oct. 9.—Demands by some members for an immediate report on prohibition were followed by an intense discussion in today's continuation of the meetings by President Hoover's Law Enforcement Commission.Chairman George W. Wickersham declined any comment on whether the commissioners had divided. Questioned after the morning session, he called attention to the secrecy of the conferences. The former Attorney-General told newspaper men they should not expect "to keep a finger on the pulse beat of the commission."The other commissioners referred all questions to the chairman. He refused to amplify his statement made after the long session yesterday that the commission hoped to report on enforcement conditions "early in December."Despite the policy of secret sessions, predictions of an early report on the dry laws in which there will be "no pussyfooting" have emanated from the commission itself.It has become definitely known that prohibition is now dominating the discussions of the commission and it also is known that virtually all of the day and night sessions of yesterday were spent in arguing the demands of an insurgent element of the commission for an immediate report on this question.Leaders of this insurgent element are understood to be United States Circuit Judge Kenyon of Iowa, and Kenneth S. Mackintosh.

I know that my retirement will make no difference in its cardinal principles; that it will always fight for progress and reform, never tolerate injustice or corruption, always fight for the rights of the people, never belong to any party, always oppose privileged classes and public plunderers, never lack sympathy with the poor, always remain devoted to the public welfare, never be satisfied with merely existing news; always be drastically independent; never be afraid to attack wrong, whether by predatory plutocracy, or predatory poverty.

Chicago's Progressiveness.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:
CHICAGO shows St. Louis the way to civic progress. So reads your editorial of Oct. 5. In that respect, Chicago shows the rest of the world. Years of enthusiasm on the part of the press and the Western Society of Engineers and individuals was bound to show impressive results.

Having worked on lake beautification for years, attention was turned to the river, circling the downtown business area where now monuments of engineering buildings are silhouetted against the sky, and where river straightening, relocation of railroad yards and the construction of single and double-decked boulevards go hand in hand.

It is here, more so than along the lake, that Chicago shows the sincerity with which the immense financial and technical problems are attacked. The slogan, "I will," contained more than just a desire to improve upon the exterior; Chicago wanted to raise the interior, as well.

Excess condemnation has shown wonderful results, and no city can have so much convenience for movement of automobiles in the downtown section as in Chicago. In comparison to St. Louis, a small number of 20,000 private automobiles leaves that area in the main rush hour per business day, as a result of eliminating parking in the downtown business area on week days.

The story, in black and white, of what that great city has done, and has started to do, and will carry through, is worth a frame.

"Soup magnate leaves hundred millions to family, nothing to charity."
"Detroit has doors to unemployed and fears 30,000 families there may lose their homes, due to lack of employment."

FACTS NOT FANCY.

The Compensation Law.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:
In your reprint from the Nation entitled "Where Workmen's Compensation Fails" we read of the harrowing case of Sam Jones, who was unfortunate enough to break his leg. If the editor of the article were really desirous of presenting the truth by citing a typical case he would have written something like this:

While Sam was recuperating in the hospital under expert care at the expense of the insurance company, he was receiving a fixed percentage of his wages each week. When he left the hospital he might or might not have been turned over to another doctor. If this is a typical case Sam remained in the hands of the doctor who treated him up to that time and at an expense of his wages. At any time put under the care of a so-called company doctor he was not turned over to a salaried employee but to a practicing physician who specializes in industrial surgery and who accepts cases on a fee basis. Any other doctor, as for the commercial clinic owned and operated by insurance companies, they simply do not exist in most states and certainly not in Missouri. Sam Jones would continue to receive his compensation each week and remain in the hands of a capable surgeon until he returned to work and that would be the end of it. If a disagreement did occur and it became necessary to present the case to the Compensation Board, the evidence was heard by a trained arbitrator empowered to appoint a disinterested physician to make an examination and bound to resolve all doubts in favor of the working man.

Corkhill Was the Somersaulting Fielder.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

I CAN supply the name of the baseball player requested by Riley Coffee of Columbia Falls, Mont., in a letter headed, "Glimpses of Old Time Baseball." Mr. Riley asks: "But who knows the Brooklyn player's name who, in chasing a fly ball, tripped and turned a complete somersault and caught the ball?" This was Corkhill, centerfielder of the Brooklyn team, playing against the St. Louis Browns at Sportsman's Park, July 4, 1919. I remember this incident as though it occurred but yesterday, as it happened during the first game of professional baseball witnessed by me.

Dave Doty, pitching, and Al Bushong (both formerly with the Browns) formed the Brooklyn battery; for St. Louis, Stivetts and Jack Boyle. The remainder of the Browns' team was made up of Charley Comiskey, first base; Robinson, second; Fuller, shortstop; Arlie Latham, third; Tip O'Neill, left field; Curt Welch, center field; Tommy McCarthy, right field.

I noted Mr. Coffee mentions Hugh Duffy as playing center field for the Browns. I believe he will find that Duffy was with Boston (American Association).

BRAZIL'S REVOLT.

The dominant factor in Brazilian economic development since the middle of the nineteenth century has been the coffee industry centering around the State of Sao Paulo. Brazil in current years ships over two-thirds of the supply offered on the world market. When coffee prices are favorable the country prospers; when they are low it suffers from hard times. Crops vary greatly from year to year, and in the endeavor to level off the price peaks the Brazilian state and Federal governments have come to the aid of the industry by giving it financial support. But the power to influence prompts its use to assure a high price level. It is a temptation which Brazilian interests have not been able to resist. High prices in turn have encouraged increased planting and have brought expanding supply.

Four times since 1906 valorization plans have been set up by public authority, and three times they have been successful. That was not because the plans themselves have been sound, but because once unfavorable seasons, another time an unprecedented frost and again a high post-war demand, created market conditions which carried off a surplus that threatened to be too great a financial burden for the Government to carry.

The 1929 surplus was overwhelming. It forced Brazil to arrange for a new valorization loan and to agree to sell the surplus on less favorable terms. This liquidation is still in process. Contemporaneously came the world-wide economic depression which, affecting coffee like other commodities, drove down the price, thus reducing the return to the planters, cutting down their purchases abroad and reducing the income of the Government from the tariff on imported goods. The wholesale price of standard grades in New York has fallen from an average of 23 cents a pound in 1929 to 10 cents a pound at the present time. Other standard Brazilian exports such as cacao and manganese have shown similar declines.

Economic distress has accentuated the critical attitude of opponents of the Government, which is alleged to have increased greatly the public debt, mismanaged public funds and manipulated national elections to secure control for another term. Outlying states have become restive under the alleged domination of national policy by Sao Paulo and regions of similar interest. These sections of the country are those which profit from the protection to the coffee industry, and these, it is pointed out, are the regions profiting by the high protective tariff which has made Sao Paulo the greatest American manufacturing city south of the United States. All this, it is asserted, is at the cost of non-industrial areas.

The ill will is accentuated by the fact that President Washington Luis is from Sao Paulo. He was formerly the Governor of the State. And President-elect Julio Prestes, for whom the elections are alleged to have been manipulated, comes from the same State.

As a result, when Prestes was declared elected in May rumors of revolt began to be heard, ripening to the movement which now seeks to prevent his inauguration on Oct. 15. If he goes into office his opponents declare he will continue the Luis policies and the same abuses.

Of all the recent disturbances of the peace in Latin America, that in Brazil may prove to be of the greatest importance. It is a revolution in the largest of the Latin American republics with an area as great as that of the United States and containing half the population of the South American continent. Unlike the usual uprising, it is not supported by a localized faction; as President Luis has declared, it is also serious because it is supported by dissatisfied state governments. Those now number nine out of a total of 20 and are scattered from Rio Grande do Sul at the extreme south to Ceara in the far northern part of the Republic.

THE VICTORIOUS ATHLETICS.

The Athletics have bested the Cardinals in the world series, and St. Louis congratulates them.

And what a series it was! The Cardinals came within a hair of taking the lead on Monday, and when they failed to do so they had little resistance left. The home run which Fox hit into the left field stands did more than win the fifth game; it broke the heart of the Cardinals and won the series. It has not been a disgrace to lose such a contest. After all, the Cardinals, while falling woefully from their splendid season's mark of .314 in hitting, are the first National League team to win more than one game in a world series since 1926. It is not to their discredit that for some strange reason they could not get going against the Athletics. Many fine teams have failed to get going in such a series, including the Athletics of 16 years ago. They lost four straight games to Boston, a team never afterward heard of, and Connie Mack scrapped probably the greatest machine that baseball has ever known.

The Cardinals have more serious business than to grieve. There is next year.

RAILROAD ELECTRIFICATION IN NEW YORK CITY.

While St. Louis awaits definite steps toward railroad electrification, it is interesting to note what is happening elsewhere in connection with this highly desirable form of civic improvement.

Arthur Sears Henning, who has been making a study of the subject for the Chicago Tribune, says: "The most profitable investment ever made by the New York Central Railroad was the electrification of its New York passenger terminal." The railroad was electrified 18 years ago at a cost of some $65,000,000, and that sum has been repaid several times in the increased volume of business made possible by advantages of electrified over steam propelled trains. That alone more than justified the wisdom of what was then a rather daring experiment, but other gains resulted.

By depressing and roofing over its tracks for a distance of several miles from the station, the New York Central converted a railroad yard into a magnificently profitable site for office and apartment buildings. As Mr. Henning puts it: "What was once an unsightly expanse of railroad yards, noisy with puffing, shrieking locomotives and hurtling trains beneath a sinister laden pall of smoke, is now the aristocratic Park avenue quarter of the metropolis. Acres of splendid office buildings and apartment palaces now tower above the New York Central's right-of-way, where the electric train glides out of sight and hearing of the man in the street."

It is estimated the New York Central derives a yearly revenue of $12,000,000, or one-fifth the cost of electrification, from the sale of air rights over its covered right-of-way. When electrification was begun in 1903 the assessed value of New York Central land in the Park avenue quarter was $18,000,000; in 1930, the assessed value of the same land and improvements is $179,000,000.

Electrification in St. Louis, and the placing underground of railroad tracks, will some day be an accomplished fact. There is no reason why the modern city should be defaced with the grime and noise of steam driven trains, and all railroad executives who have any vision at all know they are doomed.

AN OPPORTUNITY FOR MR. HOOVER.

Congressman Britten of the House Naval Affairs Committee thinks the United States should permit the export of helium, non-inflammable airship gas, of which the United States has a virtual monopoly. So does Rear Admiral Moffett, chief of the Navy Bureau of Aeronautics, who terms it inhumane to withhold this gas from other countries providing the United States has more than enough for its own use. They are joined by Frank A. Tichnor, publisher of the Aero Digest, and P. W. Litchfield, president of the Goodyear-Zeppelin Corporation, except that the latter favors certain restrictions, such as measures to insure that the gas is not hoarded abroad. Thus begins a powerful movement to avert future disasters like that of the R-101, hydrogen filled British dirigible, which burned in France with a loss of 47 lives.

As part of the national defense act, Congress some years ago forbade the export of helium unless authorized by presidential decree. The purpose was twofold: To conserve our then limited helium supply and to safeguard what would be in time of war a distinct military advantage. Since then—in 1929—a 15,000-acre helium field has been discovered in Colorado, containing gas with an exceptionally high helium content—7.07 per cent. It has been estimated that this deposit, with others, will meet our demands for approximately 100 years. The Government owns a helium field at Amarillo, Tex., from which army and navy needs have been supplied, and an unexploited field in Utah. As for the military reason for the embargo, helium exports can be checked and controlled to obviate the danger that the gas will be hoarded for possible use against us in time of war.

President Hoover should use the power granted him under the law and permit the Germans, French, British and others to buy this precious gas from us. It is a splendid opportunity for him to make a gesture which will promote international good will and which will probably save the lives of men whose experimentation with dirigibles has great possibilities for mankind.

Since books on backgammon are popular, no doubt a publisher will soon bring forth a volume on the technique of pygmy golf.

BEARDED.

On Aug. 22 under the caption, "A Double Dare, Ladies," we advised womanhood that the Paris predicted revival of the leg-o-mutton sleeve would result in the resumption of beards. Those puffy sleeves of the beard, dead '90s, we said, went arm in arm with chin screens—the one could not live without the other. Yesterday morning, between Eighth and Ninth street on the north side of Locust (on our Fifth avenue, in other words), we saw a leg-o-mutton sleeve going east. No, we saw two of them. The sweet young thing had one on each arm. Our prophecy came to mind. How long would we have to wait for the ineptive whiskers? No time at all, it turned out. Last night the rule of beards came in on both sides of the river. In St. Louis His Mysterious Majesty, the Velled Prophet, long famous for his patriarchal beard, took the throne, while over in East St. Louis the famed whiskers of J. Hamilton Lewis mounted the rostrum. The Compleat Inaugural, we should say. Barbers and razor makers may just as well get ready to join the depressed industries. Beards are back.

The real estate agent, then Colymunist Coolidge and now President Hoover. Really, there must be something in this owning your home business, after all.

DECEIVING THE CAR RIDERS.

The current Transit News, issued by the local street railway company, publishes the following dialogue:

Question: How can Chicago have home rule over its street cars, as you stated in your digest of that plan, and can St. Louis?

Answer: The Illinois State Legislature passed a special act to permit Chicago to establish a local body to control its utilities. This act excepted Chicago from the control of the Illinois Commerce Commission, which corresponds to the Public Service Commission in this State and which formerly exercised control over Chicago's utilities.

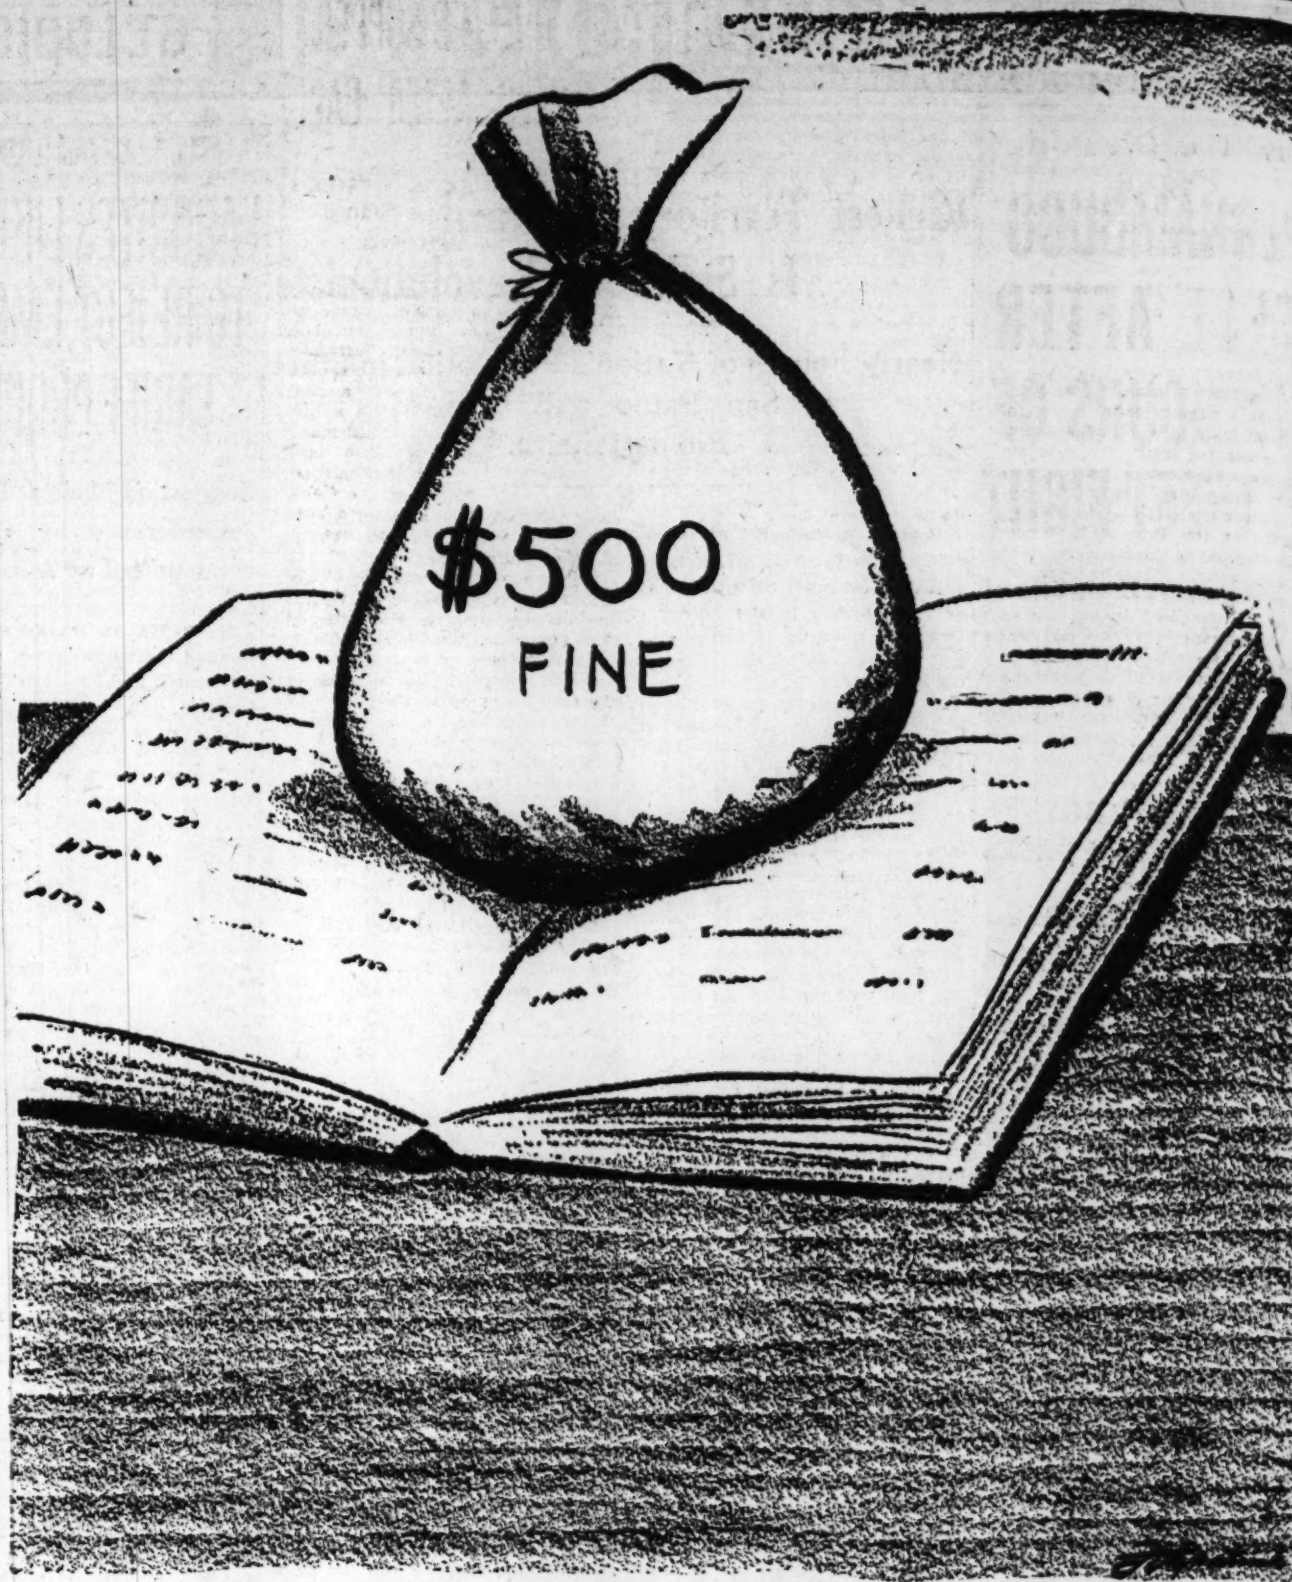

A similar act for the Missouri Legislature is suggested by the Transportation Survey Commission here, and under this act, which forms the basis for Plan 2 (identical with Chicago's new franchise) of that commission, St. Louis would be empowered to appoint a local body to take over certain powers now exercised by the State Public Service Commission.

The company is trying to deceive the car riders. There can be no home rule over any utility, whether in Chicago or St. Louis, so long as that utility has a franchise. We have explained this many times, and we are surprised that the company could hope to deceive anybody by repeating such a falsehood. To say that there can be any local control over a utility which has a franchise is to utter an untruth. The Illinois law is meaningless, and a similar law in Missouri would be meaningless. The Transportation Survey Commission was in no better faith when it made the same recommendation that it was when it backed the notorious terminable permits bill. So long as the utility has a franchise the courts will allow it a "reasonable return" on the fantastic "reproduction new" valuation regardless of whether it is regulated by a state or a city commission.

Home rule means only that a city which refuses to grant franchises retains the right to say whether it will let a utility operate in the municipality. Detroit established in the United States Supreme Court her right to exclude from the city a utility whose franchise had expired and with which she could not come to terms. That is all that home rule can mean, and it is quite enough.

To speak of local regulatory bodies exercising home rule where there is a vested right or franchise is sophistry, and the street car company knows it.

When the police are called to preserve the peace at a W. C. T. U. meeting, as was the case in Colorado the other day, the dray may safely be said to be falling out among themselves.

A PUBLIC ENTRY IN THE HANDBOOK.

Water Power Grants and Conservation

Attorney-General Mitchell, ruling on Cumberland Falls, pointed out that U. S. commission could not consider scenic or recreational factors in decision on building dam; to remedy this deficiency, Isaac Walton League proposes amendment to Federal Power Act; urges due attention to wild life and fishes in granting permits.

From American Forests, Organ of the American Forestry Association

ASSERTING that the Federal Power Commission should have authority to consider esthetic, scenic, recreational and other like public values in passing upon applications for power development, the National Executive Board of the Isaac Walton League of America has voted to sponsor legislation in Congress providing this authority.

The legislation proposed would also make it incumbent upon the Federal Power Commission to secure from the Government scientific bureau expert opinion as to the effect of each project on wild life and migratory fishes. It would also require all licensees to cut clean and remove all timber and tree growth from the entire flowage area; to remove hazards to users of such impounded waters for recreational purposes; to allow a sufficient flow of water in the natural stream bed below all dams to maintain not less than the normal 10-year low water flow, and to open impounded water to public recreational uses.

The action of the league in sponsoring this amendment of the Federal power act followed the opinion rendered recently by Attorney-General Mitchell in the case of Cumberland Falls, Kentucky. He held that while the Federal Power Commission has jurisdiction to entertain the application of the Cumberland Hydro-Electric Power Co. for a license to carry out its project on the Cumberland River, the United States under the Federal Power Act has no power to prevent the erection of a dam at Cumberland Falls, unless the effect of the dam would be to impair substantially the navigable capacity of the lower branches of the river. "It could not prevent," the Attorney-General held, "the erection of the dam because it would interfere with the scenic or recreational facilities at that point and Congress has not by the terms of this act attempted to confer upon the commission the power to refuse a license because of such considerations. . . . The commission must look only to the effect of construction upon interstate and foreign commerce."

How Dairy Income Grows

From the New Orleans Times-Picayune.

CURRENT farm depression has failed to affect a few certain states in the nation's farm belt, and for an excellent reason. The complaints have been loudest from the one-crop states—those in the South, producing cotton, and in the Central West, producing wheat and corn. On the other hand little is being heard from Wisconsin and Minnesota, the pre-eminent dairy states, or from Missouri, whose live stock resources account for more than half of its farm activities.

Gov. Reed of Kansas, in a recent issue of the United States Dairy, analyzing certain figures from the yearbook of the Department of Agriculture, paints an impressive picture of the stability of the dairy and poultry business.

In 1912 the nation's grain farmers had a gross income of $1,005,000,000, which in 1928, the last year for which complete figures are available, had dropped to $1,540,000,000.

In the 10-year period since 1919, a peak year for agriculture, the value of the cotton farmers' output dropped to 65 per cent of the peak; the fruit and vegetable farmers' revenue dropped to 82 per cent, and even the live stock producer in 1928 showed a decrease of 10 per cent in his gross earnings, as compared with 1919.

Dairy and poultry profits, however, reversed this trend. Their total value in 1919 was $2,598,000,000, while in 1928 the total rose to $2,840,000,000, a gain of 7 per cent. It is true that in the past year prices for dairy products have been rather low, but a rising tendency is again in evidence. The total receipts of the dairy farmer and poultry raiser do not tell the entire story of his present-day prosperity. Production per unit has rapidly increased in the 10-year period, so that the average receipts today probably represent a much larger margin of profit.

A Program for Social Justice

From the Annual Message of the Central Conference of American Rabbis.

THE spectacle which has been unfolding before us of the deadly effect of unemployment, not merely upon material possessions but upon all the values of life, raises the struggle against unemployment to a sacred duty. Weighty is the obligation to consider the various expedients deemed helpful; for instance, the steady raising of the age below which children are kept in school and out of industry; mother's pension to reduce the number of women and minors seeking work; old age pension for those no longer acceptable to a machine industry which rejects age, with its fidelity, for youth, with its vigor; a perfected system of employment exchanges eliminating waste, delays and errors in the linkage of workers needing situations with situations that need workers; unemployment insurance, already tried in foreign lands and in some American industries with good results; prosperity reserves on the part of the Government, and the planning of public construction in such wise as to offer a maximum of public employment when there is a slackness of private employment; and, finally, the observations as will issue timely warning against the approach of economic decline, and counsel measures of forestalling it. Add to this ample educational facilities and inculcation of the care for those temporarily or permanently incapable of work.

The Central Conference of American Rabbis has commended the five-day working week which has already been adopted in various industries with success. If our constantly improving machinery with its displacement of human workers is not to produce unemployment before it produces wealth, not only must the number of working days a week be reduced; there must also be a diminution of the number of working hours a day with corresponding increases of wage rates, enabling all workers to earn sufficiently.

Corollary to this is sympathy with the cause of organized labor, perhaps the most potent of all forces for securing hours and wages requisite for neutralizing unemployment and for the civic and spiritual development of the worker. The issue of organized labor brings to mind the disheartening developments at Elizabethton, Marion and Gastonia as well as the spirit of social endeavor with which Jewish, Protestant and Catholic religious leaders have, during the past year, joined in applying to the turmoil their common principles of brotherly love. It is our profound hope that these principles may soon be accepted and applied in all industry.

The social creed of the Rabbis suggests yet other ways of aiding those who toll. It urges investors to put humanity first, not dividends first, when deciding where industries to favor. Investments should be withheld from enterprises in which reasonable standards of hours, wages and working conditions are ignored and should be directed to those whose standards are high. Attention should also be given the white list provided for certain industries. By means of the white list, we can, as consumers, bestow our patronage where humane conditions prevail and divert it from ventures which lack scruple in the matter of overwork, underpay and unhygienic shop conditions.

How the Shooting Began

HIS formidable work, which we are told cost its author "10 years of intense study," is said to contain "the fullest account in any language of the immediate origins of the war," and even a cursory examination of the great mass of well-ordered material presented without exception the statement without question. "more than 35,000 documents (bearing on the subject) are now at the disposal of the historian, and the end is by no means reached. In addition, nearly every politician, diplomatist, General or Admiral of consequence in the pre-war years has written his memoirs." The impression is given that the author has actually waded through all this material and, in addition, viewed the principal specialists on the subject in the various countries concerned. Considering how much unconscious misrepresentation, rationalizing and plain lying there must be in this enormous mass of data, it is clear that the author's logical mind would hardly find 10 years too long for the sifting process involved, although the inquiry is concerned chiefly with only a little more than a month of European history.

Only an expert in history is competent to say how great an achievement it is to be attributed to Bernadotte E. Schmitt. However, a layman may be permitted to wonder, in his admittedly woody way, just how much the complicated mechanism of diplomatic lockstep really matters in the final analysis, so far as a vital understanding of the real cause of the tragedy is concerned. To put the layman's thought simply, imagine a group of men playing draw poker with guns on their hips. Every player is "sold" on the idea that "he may take who has the power and he may keep who can," although they all talk like men who really believe in honor and justice, and each does this while scheming how best to go about the business of stealing another's. Naturally, wrangles develop, each insisting upon the highest principles of human intercourse and each well aware of the pretense. Thus wrangling becomes a complicated, reach for the jackpot, the shooting begins naturally enough. It is at this point that the poor woody

THIS formidable two-volume work, which we are told cost the author "10 years of intense study," is said to contain "the fullest account in any language of the immediate origins of the war," and even a cursory examination of the great mass of material presented in this statement without question, "Altogether," says the author, "more than 35,000 documents (bearing on the subject) are now at the disposal of the historian, and the end is by no means reached. In addition, nearly every politician, diplomat, General or Admiral of any consequence in the pre-war years has written his memoirs." The impression is given that the author has actually waded through all this material, and in the process has interviewed the principal specialists on the subject in the various countries concerned. Considering how much unconscious misrepresentation, rationalizing and plain lying there is in this enormous mass of data, it is clear that the author would hardly find 10 years too long for the sifting process involved, although the inquiry is concerned chiefly with only a little more than a month of European history.

Only an expert in history is competent to say how great an achievement is to be attributed to Bernadotte E. Schmitt. However, a layman may be permitted to wonder, in his admittedly woody way, just how much the complicated mechanism of diplomatic lockstep really matters in the final analysis, so far as a vital understanding of the real cause of the tragedy is concerned. To put the layman's thought simply, imagine a group of men playing draw poker with guns on their hips. Every player is "sold" on the idea that "he may take who has the power and he may keep who can," although they all talk like men who really believe in honor and justice, and each does this while scheming how to go about the business of stealing another's. Naturally, wrangles develop, each insisting upon the highest principles of human intercourse and each well aware of the pretense. The wrangling becomes highly complicated, and when somebody is about to reach for the jackpot, the shooting begins naturally enough. It is at this point that the poor woodymined layman would venture to ask the experts, busy with the details of the wrangling, what vital importance attaches to the complicated mechanism of rag-chewing and see-sawing which led up to the bloody row, since the real cause is to be sought in the character of the economic game that was, and still is, being played and in the belief, dominating all the players and even the vast majority of the people indirectly concerned, that the game was and is a quite proper one.

ON HOME SOIL WITH BOB DAVIS. By Robert H. Davis. (D. Appleton & Co., New York City. $2.00.)

A year or so ago, Bob Davis, a prince of raconteurs and regular fellows with a genius for making himself beloved, set out from New York in March to "pursue spring across the continent," traveling by car down the Atlantic Coast, through the southern and southwestern states, up the Pacific Coast into the Northwest, and Northern states and back through New England to Manhattan. On the way he picked up 63 items of Americana which he here sets forth in as many brief yarns told in the best Bob Davis manner. It's a warm, warm-hearted book and full of chuckles.

V. P. QUEEN'S SUPPER HELD AFTER BALL

Fourteen Hundred Persons Honor Miss Jane Francis at Hotel Jefferson.

ANOTHER queen's supper passed into more than 50 years of Velled Prophet history with last night's party at Hotel Jefferson honoring Miss Jane Perry Francis, immediately following the annual ball at the Coliseum. It is a history replete with memories of many other attractive queens who have celebrated in like manner their coronation to the throne of the Velled Prophet Monarch to reign for a year over his court of Love and Beauty. It is the queen's own part of her perfect evening, hours not to be shared even with the Prophet, but in which to be acclaimed anew by her people, less formally than at her coronation.

The arrangements for last night's festival were similar to those of the preceding year. Under official escort, the new queen and her four special maids of honor, accompanied by their mothers, left the scene of the ball through enthusiastic hundreds of subjects who had just seen her crowned, to find many of the less fortunate crowding the entrance to the hotel to speed her on to new honors.

Entire Floor Necessary. The entire mezzanine floor was given over to the royal party and their invited guests. The Gold ball room and the Crystal room near by, ablaze with lights, were filled shortly after 11 o'clock with beautifully gowned women and attentive men, awaiting the entrance of her majesty and her attendants.

There was a tenseness in the atmosphere. Corridors were roped off with crimson. A protective tarpaulin was laid as the procession formed. The orchestra struck up the triumphal march from Aida, and the promenade to the queen's table had begun.

The young women made their appearance in the same order as at the ball. Each was on the arm of an escort and each followed by her special trainbearer. Miss Jane W. Blackmer was escorted by Oscar Whitelaw Rexford, Miss Adeline Ely Smith was with Robert McKittick Jones II, Miss Louise Goddard was on the arm of Edward K. Love Jr., and Miss Betty Rathmann was with John Powers.

Accustomed to Spotlight. Miss Francis, regal in her coronation robes and carrying a huge bouquet of roses in lieu of the orchids, which were rushed to the Missouri Botanical Gardens for display, came in on the arm of Ingram F. Boyd Jr. Fourteen hundred persons rose and applauded. It was a spectacle second only to the coronation ceremonies themselves. The principals seemed to have become accustomed to the glare of the spotlights and had gained assurance, for they smiled graciously as they bowed to the applause.

The Gold Room was dominated by the Queen's table, which was set as last year, on the stage at the far end, in full view of the immediate members of the new Queen's entourage. Low bowls of yellow roses and royal purple dahlias with tendrils of asparagus fern almost covered the silver not with which the table was draped, and at either side the walls were concealed by great yellow chrysanthemums, palms and autumn leaves. A back drop of draped silver cloth with a silver shield bearing the Prophet's insignia, caught and reflected the glow from hundreds of lights about the brilliant room. The table was laid in two sections to facilitate seating the guests, for all the chairs faced the center of the room. Then the central section, formed from a huge Imperial crown of yellow pompom chrysanthemums studded with floral festoons, a tribute to the Prophet, was laid before the Queen.

Another Note of Silver. About the balcony railing more silver was introduced into the decorations by silver light reflectors interspersed with royal shields.

On a slightly raised platform were the parents of the five specially honored young women, the guests of Mr. and Mrs. Talton T. Francis, parents of the queen, at their table. Smaller tables, seating from four to 20 guests, bedecked with smaller crowns of purple and yellow blossoms, filled all the available space.

Supper was a brief affair, and with the first strains of the dance

SOCIAL ACTIVITIES

MISS MARTHA BLUDER, daughter of Mrs. Greenfield Sluder, 4255 Maryland avenue, has chosen Dec. 27 as the date of her marriage to John J. Glesner II of Cambridge, Mass. Further announcement of the wedding plans will be made later. Mr. Glesner is the son of Mrs. J. George M. Glesner of Bethlehem, N. H.

Miss Sluder and her mother returned home a few days ago from Boston, where they have been visiting following summer spent at their home in Annisquam, Mass. Another daughter is a graduate student at Radcliffe College this winter. Mrs. Sluder's son, John Cochran Sluder, preceded his mother and sister home.

Miss Grace R. Jones, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Hugh McKittick Jones, 4255 Maryland avenue, will be presented to society at a dinner dance which her parents will give for her the evening of Nov. 8 at the St. Louis Country Club. Miss Jones was a maid of honor at the recent Prophet ball, and will be a member of the group of honor at many social affairs during the season. She spends the summers with her parents at Annisquam, Mass.

Mrs. Everett W. Pattison, 4214 Olive street, arrived in St. Louis Saturday following an extensive trip abroad. She sailed in the summer for a Mediterranean cruise, after which she traveled in Rumania. She stopped in Vienna and Salzburg, where she attended the musical festival. From Salzburg she motored to Oberammergau for the Passion Play, then visited in Munich. Mrs. Pattison spent the last month of her trip in France, most of the time in Paris.

Returning on the same ship with her daughter, Mrs. Morrison Fuller and her daughter, Mrs. Fuller, Mrs. Patterson spent the summer, who had been in Europe since early summer. They stopped in Boston and will return to St. Louis soon.

music played in the dimly lighted ivory room, dancing was the order of procedure, and lasted until the night was far spent. The queen cast aside her robes of state, and, assisted with the enthusiasm of just what she is, an attractive young woman making her bow to society.

Among the Guests. The guests included Mr. and Mrs. Albert T. Perkins, who entertained a large group of friends, Mrs. Anne Farrar Semple, a former queen, who was the center of an animated group; Mrs. Louis A. Hager Jr., another of his majesty's former consorts, who, with Mr. Hager, brought a party including Mr. and Mrs. Clarence E. Maloy, Mr. and Mrs. William D. Orthwein, Miss Katherine McCluney, Frederick Orthwein and Dr. L. D. Kelley. Others were Miss Elizabeth Ferguson, Mr. and Mrs. Ley Peterson, Mr. and Mrs. Arthur W. Reinhold Jr., Mr. and Mrs. Julius W. J. A. REED TO DELIVER EULOGY AT FUNERAL OF E. L. MORSE

Services for former G. O. P. Leader at Excelsior Springs, Mo., on Sunday.

EXCELSIOR SPRINGS, Mo., Oct. 9.—E. L. Morse, a former Republican leader of Missouri, will be buried here Sunday. Former Senator James A. Reed will deliver the eulogy at his funeral. Morse died of heart disease at his home near here early yesterday at the age of 66.

Although they belonged to opposing political parties, Morse and Reed were friends for many years. It was Morse's wish that Reed deliver the eulogy at his funeral. When Reed successfully sought reelection to the Senate in 1922, two years after the State Democratic convention repudiated him for opposition to his late President Wilson, Morse joined the Reed cause.

New York Day by Day

By O. O. McIntyre

NEW YORK.

MODERN vagaries of an unseasonable age have not entirely obliterated New York. The golden past peeps faintly through here and there. The old Murray Hill district, more than any other, symbolizes how tenuously many cling to subdued and oppressive mid-Victorian propriety.

In this area may be found dignified gentlemen who take infinite pains in trimming their beards, cultivate a rather melancholy habit of mind and who wear hats straight on their heads instead of at rakish angles. They make sweeping bows to ladies and otherwise epitomize perfect behavior.

The old Murray Hill Hotel, center of the district, droops in a somnolent gloom. In its enormous lobby are venerable aristocrats who carry gold knobbed canes and meet any unseemly overtures of strangers with quickly lifted eyebrows and hearty garumpha. A few still indulge in a pinch of snuff.

There are Murray Hill men who take an afternoon off now and then to dress in frock coat and high hat and pay brief, respectful calls to the brown stone mansions of old friends. Once a month they go far downtown for similar visits with the family lawyer.

Many ladies, as frail as frost, recall long black half-mitts and stately minuettes. On pleasant days they depart in closed carriages, horse drawn, for a circle of Central Park. A fleeting glimpse of their faces suggests old ivory and you somehow think of the quick, sad strokes of church bells.

While the Morgans live on Murray Hill, not all are rich as New York judges wealth. But they are the last of the vanishing blue bloods. Uniforms of their coachmen are shabby. Butlers are flabby and gouty from age. Any number of residents still have 8 o'clock dinners in the half light of patrician basement dining rooms.

These are the thinning line of gentle folk to whom the tabloids, isms, saxophones, sex novels, pagan plays and other off-shoots of a roystering generation are mysteries. Their amusements are learned lectures at Town Hall and a few auspicious symphony concerts at Carnegie.

I STILL think, however, nothing looks quite so out of place in the New York hurrah as one of those pointer hunting dogs with beautiful coat and pleading eyes.

Polo Player's Death Suicide.
By the Associated Press.
RUGBY, England, Oct. 9.—Harry Rich, famed international polo player, who was found shot to death yesterday, committed suicide, according to the Coroner.

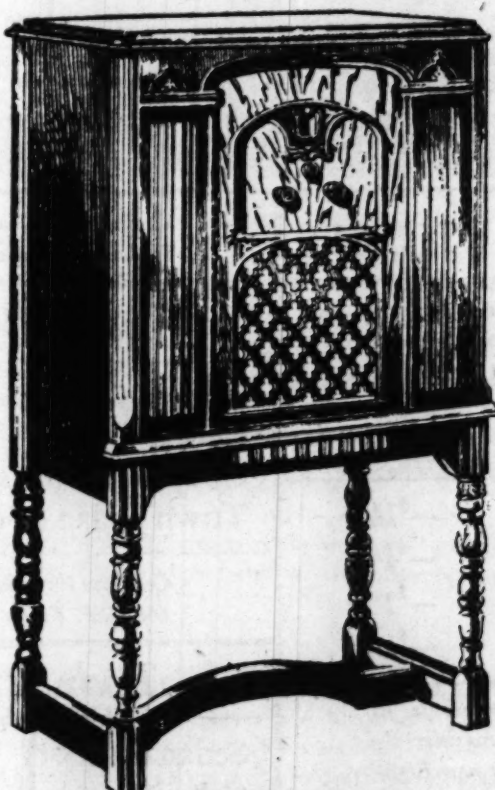

A circular illustration in a woodcut style. It depicts three men in a garden setting. The man in the center stands, wearing a light-colored sweater and shorts, holding a wine glass. He is flanked by two seated men, both also holding wine glasses. The man on the left is wearing a jacket and shorts, while the man on the right is in a light shirt and shorts. In the foreground, a small table holds several bottles and glasses. The background shows foliage and a trellis. The entire scene is enclosed in a circular frame.

NASH

Announces 3 new EIGHTS and a new SIX

NEVER was such motor car quality offered at prices so sensationally low. The literally startling difference becomes at once apparent when you contrast the prices of the new and finer Nash series, with prices of corresponding models a year ago.

Coming at this time, these wholly remarkable values constitute an achievement of special import, not only to those who buy—but to those who manufacture motor cars, as well.

This unique example in value-giving was planned last November. At that time, C. W. Nash and the strong group of executives surrounding him, clearly foresaw present conditions. They at once began to design cars affording value so great, so unmistakable, as to overcome all buying reluctance.

The result is instantly apparent. Even casual inspection of the four new Nash cars establishes the fact that nothing even remotely approaching them in downright dollar value has ever been available in their respective price fields.

The low non-productive Nash overhead, the fact that Nash operates entirely without the heavy financial burden of borrowed capital, and the foresightedness of the Nash organization, alone enable Nash to offer so much for so little.

These three factors have combined to produce in these cars beauty and luxury and performance so notable, at prices so low by contrast, as to win for Nash a still larger place in the minds and the hearts of the motoring public.

Whatever style of car you desire, there is a Nash suited to your needs. Come in at once—drive one of these thrilling new cars—let us appraise your present car.

SENSATIONALLY PRICED!

STUDY THESE SENSATIONAL PRICES!

Compare what is probably the most remarkable achievement of Nash in greater value-giving—the New Six—with the Single Six it succeeds. The New Six offers a multitude of superiorities—at prices which range from $160 to $140 below the prices of the Single Six.

Body Style	The New Six W. B. 114 1/4"	Last Year's Six W. B. 114 1/4"	Price Difference
Sedan (4-door)	$845	$1005	—$160
Coupe	$795	$940	—$145
Coupe (rumble seat)	$825	$980	—$155
Sedan (2-door)	$795	$935	—$140

Compare the New Eight-70 with its two additional cylinders, its longer wheelbase, its larger, more luxurious body, with the six-cylinder car it replaces. Then consider the remarkable fact that there is actually a basic price differential in favor of the new Eight!

Body Style	The New Eight-70 W. B. 116 1/4"	Last Year's Six W. B. 114 1/4"	Price Difference
Sedan (4-door)	$995	$1005	—$10
Coupe	$945	$940	+ $5
Coupe (rumble seat)	$975	$980	—$5
Special Sedan (4-door)	$955

Compare the New Twin-Ignition Eight-80 Series with the 6-cylinder car it replaces. The Eight-80 is larger, longer. Design, appointments, upholstery are finer—prices are radically lower.

Body Style	The New Twin-Ignition Eight-80 W. B. 121"	Last Year's Twin-Ignition Six W. B. 118"	Price Difference
Sedan (4-door)	$1295	$1415	—$120

IMPORTANT SHARES
DROP 4 TO 8 POINTS

Market Is Forced to Absorb the Largest Volume of Selling Since June—Rebounds of 1 to More Points in Late Session.

By the Associated Press.
NEW YORK, Oct. 9.—Leading shares crashed through the panic levels of last November today as the wobbly stock market received a crushing blow in the announcement of the failure of Prince & Whitley, members of the Stock Exchange for half a century.

Although counsel for the firm states that creditors would probably be paid in full, the combination of this unsettling development, on top of disappointing business news early in the week, caused wholesale liquidation. Total sales of more than 5,000,000 shares were the largest since June.

A long list of leading shares closed 2 to 8 points lower, and many were around the day's lowest at the finish. Although rallies of a point or more were numerous, American Telephone, after recording a new low at 19 1/2, compared to the November low of 19 1/2, closed 19 1/2, off 4. Other shares closing 4 to 8 lower included American Can, Consolidated Gas, North American, Bethlehem Steel, Eastman Kodak, Westinghouse Electric, and American Water Works.

Steel Through November Low.
The action of U. S. Steel in dropping through its November resistance level of 150 during the morning was regarded as indicating that bad news was hanging over the market. The Prince & Whitley suspension was announced from the exchange rostrum at 12:30, bringing a fresh flood of selling.

Although substantial orders for U. S. Steel at 150 appeared during the morning, it went through that price with sales of only 25,500 shares, a small block in contrast to the 150,000-share buying order which was understood to have been placed for the stock at that price last November. Supporting orders were apparently designed to insure an orderly market rather than maintain any particular resistance points.

No Demoralization.
It was notable that signs of demoralization were almost entirely lacking, and that the market was kept on an even keel. While speculative sentiment has been impaired by failure of the expected autumn business improvement to make substantial progress, and has grown somewhat slightly over foreign news such as that from Brazil, which many brokers believe would scarcely rattle the market in normal times, it managed to withstand the most important stock exchange casualty of a decade without getting panicky.

Some observers viewed as significant the fact that Stock Exchange seats rose in price today. A seat sold during the morning at $275,000, a gain of $17,000 from the previous transaction.

Two seats sold subsequently at $255,000, which was well above recent levels.

The grain markets reacted along with stocks. Wheat dropped about 2 cents a bushel, with selling swelled by reports of renewed large exports from Russia. Corn dropped 2 to 3 cents, reflected larger Argentine shipments. Cotton closed steady.

Foreign exchanges, in contrast to stocks and grains, were firmer. The German mark moved up 1/4 point on announcement of the higher Reichsbank rate. Sterling cables ruled at 14.55 15-16, up 1-16.

Loans to brokers and dealers held by New York Reserve Member Banks for the week ending Oct. 8 were announced by the Federal Reserve Board today as $2,805,000, representing a decrease of $128,000,000 as compared with the preceding week.

Business News Meager.
The day's business news was meager and not of a character to influence the market, although there was probably some further disappointed selling caused by yesterday's uncheerful steel trade news. Money was a little tighter, with the longer maturities of time loans at a fraction higher. Call loans held at 2 per cent.

...for here is bedroom happiness that says "Step right in." It is an arrangement of good, stylish, medium-priced furniture that proves there is such a thing as perfect comfort in an ordinary size bedroom. In convenience and service, it is as adequate as it is decorative.

This particular bedroom suite and many others of like character are shown in all United Home Furnishers' stores. Many can be had at a more economical figure. Then there are others of as fine a quality as any home could want. For United Home Furnishers stores are complete stores—complete in the lines they carry and complete in the service they give. Their policies do not permit of the well known "high pressure" methods. You can come and look for ideas as often as you wish and as long as you wish, without feeling obligated in the slightest. At least one of these stores is available close to your home.

All United Home Furnishers' stores are strictly St. Louis institutions. All furniture displayed and sold at these stores bears this

This Emblem Means:

1. That the quality of every piece of furniture you purchase is everything that is claimed for it. It will live up to every sales point.

2. That the price asked is absolutely fair. It is the right price to pay for the quality. Any more would mean exorbitant profit. Any less would mean shoddy merchandise or service.

3. That whatever you purchase bearing this emblem will give you the service you have a right to expect. One and all, we absolutely guarantee it.

Venetian Mirror Bedroom Suite

The quality of a bedroom suite is hard to judge except from appearance. And appearance can be made very deceptive. In this suite, however, this is not the case, for throughout every piece it is ear-marked "quality". The frames, drawers, and all interior woods are oak. Drawer tops and bottoms are dust-proof. The drawers themselves are boxed-in construction, dove-tailed for sturdiness. The wardrobe is lined with cedar. Tops and fronts of all pieces are 5-ply panel walnut. Figured Oriental Walnut is used on the surface, with Tamo trim. The overlay on the dresser center drawer is walnut and Tamo. Drawer pulls are metal. Vanity and Dresser have Venetian mirrors of plate glass. The four pieces are priced at the very low figure of... $179 Term Price

Wife of the Governor of New York; a descendant of one of the oldest and best known American families; welfare worker; mother; social leader.

MRS. JAMES J. DAVIS, Chairman

Wife of the Secretary of Labor, mother and homemaker... chosen by soap manufacturer to head Committee of Seventeen.

MRS. OLIVER HARRIMAN

The well-known social leader, member of New York's aristocracy, distinguished representative of a distinguished family.

NELLIE TAYLOE ROSS

Former Governor of Wyoming, one of the first women to gain national prominence through political activities.

Distinguished Committee of 17 Reveals New Discovery

Mrs. James J. Davis, Ethel Barrymore, Anne Morgan Mary Roberts Rinehart, members of Committee to view tests of new product in action

MME. ERNESTINE SCHUMANN-HEINK. America's most widely known and best loved prima donna. One of the celebrated women whose interest was captured by this new form of soap.

A distinguished gathering

Never before has there been a meeting of prominent women for a similar purpose. The well-known manufacturer who is to introduce this new product conceived the idea of demonstrating it to a group of representative women for their unbiased approval or criticism before going to the public. It was felt that such women as Mrs. Franklin Roosevelt, Miss Anne Morgan, Ethel Barrymore, Mary Roberts Rinehart, would be representative of other women in the class each represented. Thus he hoped to assure himself that it would meet the demands of every woman in every position.

Made of olive and palm oils

In telling of his creation the inventor said he considered the most important feature to be that it is made of olive and palm oils instead of tallow. "For years," he said, "the finest beauty soaps have been of olive and palm oil base. Obviously what cannot injure lovely complexions cannot harm fragile materials nor reddens and roughen women's hands."

The other revolutionary feature, according to its discoverer, is the fact that the new soap is in the form of tiny hollow beads. The instant these beads touch water they dissolve. This not only saves time, but it protects fabrics from the harmful action of undissolved soap particles which usually remain after the most thorough rinsing where ordinary chips or flakes are used. As these bits of soap are ironed into stockings, lingerie, etc., "soap rot" results, with stains and faded spots.

Dissolve instantly—rinse completely

The new "Beads" dissolve so thoroughly, so completely, that rinsing in one water leaves materials entirely soap free. They dissolve in water 20 degrees cooler than ordinary soaps require. Reports received from the country's greatest silk manufacturers, who had previously tested the new soap, stressed the tremendous advantage of these two factors in washing delicate silks.

Dr. McGowan, Antoinette Donnelly, Suzanne Pollard, Lillian Edgerton and Nellie Tayloe Ross watch the new soap dissolve in interesting tests.

Surely, there can be no greater authority on the right soap for silks than the silk manufacturers themselves. They analyzed Palmolive Beads in their own laboratories. They tested them again and again in washing tests on the silks which they manufacture. And now all of them recommend Palmolive Beads for safe washing of silks.

leaving, "that after all these years there could be a soap so totally different from anything on the market. It is truly phenomenal."

"The name of the new soap, 'Palmolive Beads,' reveals the secret of why this new soap gives such vastly better results," said chemists who had helped create this discovery.

Silk manufacturers, leading stores, designers of smart women's wear, came to the makers of Palmolive Soap—told them that modern hasty washbowl laundering was working havoc with beautiful fabrics—and asked them to create a soap as gentle and protective for fine fabrics as Palmolive is for lovely complexions.

Large box 10c

And so Palmolive Beads were made. The first soap for fine silks ever made in the form of tiny, hollow, instantly dissolving "beads." The only fine fabric soap ever to be made of olive and palm oils... oils hitherto reserved exclusively for complexion soaps.

Palmolive Beads are for sale everywhere at 10 cents the box—no more than you pay for ordinary flakes and chips. Get a box at your dealer's today.

WORK ON U. S. BUILDING AWAITS TITLE TO SITE

Treasury Official Replies to Message Urging That Excavation Begin.

Giving the Government a clear title to the block chosen as the site of the new Federal building, facing Memorial Plaza, is the next necessary step toward beginning construction of the $15,000,000 building. Lawyers are working for an agreement that will give such a title, and a settlement may be reached this week.

Ferry K. Heath, Assistant Secretary of the Treasury, and chairman of the Commission on Buildings, has replied to Congressman Dyer and Cochran, who recently sent him a message urging that excavation for the building begin at once.

Heath's telegram said that the work could not proceed until title to the ground is vested in the Government, and that the Government can pay no money until a clear title is reported, with the approval of the Attorney-General's office.

"Site drawings and specifications will be made by a private architect after title vests in Government," Heath's message said.

1886 Contracts This Year.

Heath said he would be in St. Louis within a short time. In connection with his reply to the St. Louis Congressmen, Heath issued a statement to show that public building work throughout the country is not being held back unnecessarily.

Since January, he stated, 1886 contracts for public building work have been let, amounting to $43,000,000, and contracts amounting to about $30,000,000 will be let in the remaining months of 1930.

Cost of the land, not included in the foregoing figures, will bring the total building program for the year to $100,000,000. This will be a record, Heath said. The Treasury Department estimated that about $40,000,000 of the intended expenditure would be for labor.

Rival claimants to two-thirds of the site yesterday reached an agreement to sell the ground to the Government at the price agreed on two years ago, $898,105 for their part of the block.

The price fixed recently by Federal Court viewers for the entire block, including the one-third not owned by the Peper-Bushman-Barlow claimants, is $1,055,395. The block is bounded by Twelfth, Market, Eleventh and Walnut streets. The more valuable part of the block, including the Twelfth-Market corner, is in the Peper holdings.

Division Awaits Litigation.

H. H. Haeussler and C. J. Maccauley, attorneys for Mrs. Estelle Peper-Bushman Barlow, announced that all the Peper heirs, and Oren E. Scott, who claims title to a part of the land, had signed a deed that will make it possible for the Government to take title on placing the money in escrow, leaving the distribution of the amount to wait on litigation now pending.

If the Government accepts the proposal, condemnation proceedings will be unnecessary for this part of the ground. This matter is now in negotiation between the claimants' lawyers and John C. Dyott, special counsel for the Government, who conferred today.

The price named, $898,105 for the Peper ground, was fixed at a conference of Government officials. Mrs. Barlow and Scott, two years ago. The claimants' agreement says that the sale is to be for the amount named "for other price to be agreed on by the parties."

Exceptions filed by the Peper heirs to the price fixed by the viewers will be withdrawn if the expected agreement is reached. Some of the owners of other parts of the block have filed exceptions, and it is part of Dyott's task to reach an agreement with them. A hearing on the exceptions is set for tomorrow before Judge Faris.

SENATE INQUIRY TOMORROW INTO CHARGES IN DELAWARE

Bayard Forces Would Speed Investigation Involving Democratic State Delegates.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 9.—The Senate Campaign Funds Investigating Committee will open hearings tomorrow at Wilmington, Del., into charges made against the forces of Senator Bayard in that State and will send a subcommittee to West Virginia to investigate the situation there as soon as possible.

Senator Nye, Republican, North Dakota, chairman of the committee, said the Bayard forces were anxious to have the inquiry made because of the nature of the charges, which involve delegates at the State Democratic convention.

Nye said a situation was developing in West Virginia which "in all probability will necessitate a change in the committee's plans."

The change calls for an inquiry by a subcommittee before, instead of after, the November general elections.

10 INDICTED IN ALBANY INQUIRY Accused of Having Manipulated Tax Payments.

ALBANY, N. Y., Oct. 9.—Seventy-four indictments were returned against 10 individuals today by the grand jury investigating the Albany tax scandals.

The bills were returned against Deputy City Treasurer William J. Hughes, two employees in the City Treasurer's office, and seven residents of the city who are charged with having manipulated tax payments. The indictments were returned after three weeks of inquiry by the grand jury.

Don't Blame Your Radio if a program sounds FUZZY

Prove to yourself what a difference the right tubes can make

A free demonstration, in your own home, without obligation, of what Eveready Raytheon 4-Pillar Tubes will do for your radio

"WHEN you hear the musical note" . . . unless it is musical, it's time to change your tubes! If your radio has developed a hoarse tone or a nasal voice . . . ten to one the trouble is not your set at all, but the tubes. For worn-out or faulty tubes cause the majority of all radio troubles.

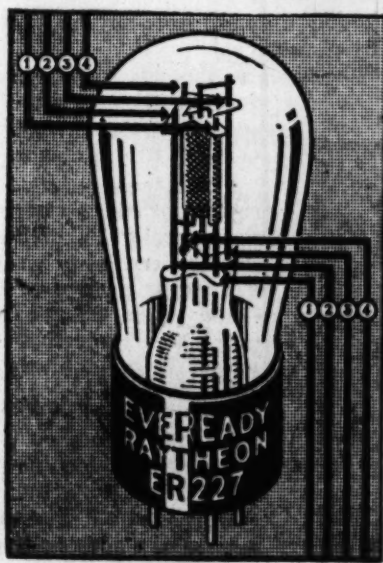

Right now is the time to check up on your tubes, and here is why: National Carbon Company, Inc., and Eveready Raytheon dealers want you to hear what a world of difference the right tubes can make. So, for a limited time, you can have a free demonstration of Eveready Raytheon 4-Pillar Tubes, in your own radio, at home. There is a revelation in store for you! In the true, rich beauty of your radio's tone. And in the startling, breath-taking realism of reception with Eveready Raytheon Tubes.

You can hear the difference and see the reason

Eveready Raytheon superiority is easy to hear, and just as easy to understand. It lies in the exclusive, patented 4-Pillar construction, a sound improvement. Based on an engineering principle older than the Pyramids of Egypt, it is here turned to advantage for the first time in radio tubes. Notice a transmission-tower for the electric power-lines that span the country. Because it stands on four "feet," it is firm, stable, rigid, able to weather a cyclone or an earthquake. If it were supported at fewer than four points . . . then it would be like the elements in an ordinary radio tube . . . vulnerable!

The elements in an Eveready Raytheon . . . the fragile, working parts of the tube . . . are anchored at four points. Protected against jolts; safeguarded against vibration from dynamic speakers. Held true to the watch-making accuracy of their position! The 4-Pillar construction which makes this possible is patented . . . no other tube can use it.

Until you try Eveready Raytheons in your radio, you cannot realize fully what a fine musical instrument you have. Call any Eveready Raytheon dealer for a free home demonstration.

EX-PRISON GUARD HELD IN $5000 POSTAL FRAUD

Jacob Smith Arrested at Little Rock — Woman Said to Be St. Louisan Detained.

The propensity of a former convict for beating his young woman companion on an automobile tour when she did not fall in with his way of doing things, today led Postoffice inspectors announced, to the arrest of the last of a group who have obtained approximately $5000 by cashing fraudulent post-office money orders in the last month.

A telegram this morning from Little Rock, Ark., informed Chief Postoffice Inspector Fred Reuter of St. Louis that the pursuit of the group was over, with the arrest of Jacob Smith, former Leavenworth penitentiary guard, and the finding of 50 stolen postal money orders blank in his possession.

With him were arrested Miss Hazel Williams, said to be a St. Louisan, and John Walter Bowman, whom Little Rock police describe as Smith's "new pal."

Jacob Smith Arrested at Little Rock — Woman Said to Be St. Louisan Detained.

The propensity of a former convict for beating his young woman companion on an automobile tour when she did not fall in with his way of doing things, today led Postoffice inspectors announced, to the arrest of the last of a group who have obtained approximately $5000 by cashing fraudulent postoffice money orders in the last month.

A telegram this morning from Little Rock, Ark., informed Chief Postoffice Inspector Fred Reuter of St. Louis that the pursuit of the group was over, with the arrest of Jacob Smith, former Leavenworth penitentiary guard, and the finding of 50 stolen postal money order blanks in his possession.

With him were arrested Miss Hazel Williams, said to be a St. Louisan, and John Walter Bowman, whom Little Rock police described as Smith's "new pal."

Other prisoners in the case, held in Jacksonville, Fla., are Vernon Boring, the ex-convict with the active fists, and Miss Maxine Kane, who turned him over to the police when the beatings became too frequent. Smith, whose tactics among Leavenworth convicts earned him the nickname "Hard-boiled Smith," was discharged from Federal service last February. Postoffice inspectors say prison authorities suspected him of knowing of narcotic traffic between prisoners and the outside world.

Robbed Lodi (Mo.) Postoffice. Smith, inspectors have learned, waited until the late summer for the release from prison of James Swasey, who had served a term for postoffice robbery. On Sept. 5, Swasey subsequently admitted, Postoffice inspectors said, he and Smith robbed the postoffice at Lodi, Mo., taking $10,000 in real estate securities, the property of the Postmaster, and postoffice money order blanks serially from 5769 to 6000.

After the robbery the pair stole an automobile in Edwardsville and brought it to St. Louis. Swasey was arrested when he attempted to cash one of the money orders, forged in the amount of $37.50, in a Washington avenue credit clothing store.

At the time Swasey told police, Smith was waiting outside but in the meantime Smith had fled. With Hazel Williams he met here, he went to Kansas City and there joined forces with Vernon Boring, who had just been released from Leavenworth.

Boring took Maxine Kane, a Kansas City waitress, as his companion and the quartet, in the stolen automobile, started for a tour in which Boring passed forged money orders, using Smith's credentials as a prison guard and representing himself as Smith.

With Postoffice Inspector Fred R. Mayer always a few steps behind the group, fraudulent money orders of the Lodi series appeared in Topeka, Kan., Miss Kane's home town, and in Des Moines, Ia.; Kansas City; Fremont, O.; Buffalo, Erie and Jamesport, N. Y.; Philadelphia and Cleveland.

Gave Woman Black Eye. At Cleveland, inspectors have since learned, Boring and Smith parted company when Smith failed to pass a forged money order and insisted that Boring continue as the passer. Miss Kane demurred against going South with Boring, but after he had blackened both her eyes in a comprehensive beating, she consented to go alone.

She revolted when the beatings continued. Enclosing two blank money orders as proof of her statement, she wrote of her plight to a detective in Topeka, Kan., and gave the letter to the landlady of a boarding house in Jacksonville, Fla., to mail.

The curiosity of the landlady asserted itself. She opened the letter, read it and promptly called in the Jacksonville police. Boring and Miss Kane were arrested and told of the split with Smith.

Meanwhile, Inspector Mayer had picked up the trail of Smith in Charleston, W. Va., where one of the money orders had been cashed. He followed him to Nashville and Memphis, Tenn., following a broad trail of forged money orders, and surmised the next stop would be Little Rock, since Smith seemed to prefer the larger cities.

A warning to Little Rock police brought about Smith's arrest today.

G. O. P. CITY COMMITTEE TO OPEN CAMPAIGN TONIGHT

R. W. Dunlap, Assistant Secretary of Agriculture, to Address Main Meeting.

The campaign of the Republican City Committee will be formally opened tonight with a mass meeting at North St. Louis Turner Hall, Twentieth and Salisbury streets, where Renick W. Dunlap, Assistant Secretary of Agriculture, will speak.

Because of the Velled Prophet parade, the meeting will not open until 8:30 o'clock. Dunlap will speak half an hour later. Eugene J. Sartorius, Democratic nominee for Prosecuting Attorney, and Kenneth Teasdale, nominee for Judge of the St. Louis Court of Appeals, will address a meeting of the Women's Democratic Club at 4562 Natural Bridge road Tuesday evening. The Thirteenth Ward Democratic organization will meet at 4200 Gravois avenue tomorrow night, and workers of the Twenty-seventh Ward will meet at 5355 Easton avenue next Tuesday night instead of tonight as previously announced.

Can't PLAY
Can't REST
—child needs Castoria

WHEN a child is fretful and irritable, seems distressed and uncomfortable, can't play, can't sleep, it is a pretty sure sign that something is wrong. Right here is where Castoria fits into a child's scheme—the very purpose for which it was formulated years ago! A few drops and the condition which caused the trouble is righted; comfort quickly brings restful sleep.

Nothing can take the place of Castoria for children; it's perfectly harmless, yet always effective. For the protection of your wee one—for your own peace of mind—keep this old reliable preparation always on hand. But don't keep it just for emergencies; let it be an every-day aid. Its gentle action will ease and soothe the infant who cannot sleep. In more liberal doses it will effectively help to regulate irregular bowels in an older child. All druggists have Castoria; it's genuine if you see Chas. H. Fletcher's signature and this name-plate:

Be sure
when you buy sanitary pads specify Kotex

No sanitary pad can give you
the same wonderful absorbency, perfect fit and lasting softness.

TAKE no unnecessary chances in this important matter of sanitary protection—specify Kotex.

Kotex—first of all sanitary pads—remains best of all sanitary pads. Every month, every year, scientists add details to perfect its comfort, to give you the feeling of being well groomed, at ease; to offer you inconspicuous protection.

First, its amazing absorbency

The absorbent of which Kotex is made—Cellucotton (not cotton) absorbent wadding—is unique. It is five times more absorbent than surgical cotton, by actual test. Five times more lasting for that very reason.

Kotex is guaranteed to last longer, to stay soft longer than any other sanitary pad.

It is not only soft and downy at first, but it remains that way even during use. Its comfort is lasting comfort.

Hospitals use it

Do you know that 85% of our leading hospitals use Kotex absorbent today? Yes, they specify Kotex, they insist on Kotex absorbent in cases where the utmost safety and delicacy are necessary.

You can have the very same sanitary care that world-famous hospitals give their patients. You should not be satisfied with anything less. Never is safety more vital, never is comfort more essential. Specify "Kotex." Accept nothing else.

Kotex Company, Chicago, Illinois.

KOTEX IS SOFT...

- 1 Not a deceptive softness, that soon packs into chafing hardness. But a delicate, lasting softness.
- 2 The Kotex filler is far lighter and cooler than cotton, yet absorbs 5 times as much.
- 3 In hospitals... The Kotex absorbent is the identical material used by surgeons in 85% of the country's leading hospitals.
- 4 Deodorizes, safely, thoroughly, by a special process.
- 5 Disposable, instantly, completely.

By J. Roy Stockton.

George Earnshaw and Robert Grove, two great pitchers, have won a second successive world championship for Connie Mack and Philadelphia and the defeat of the Cardinals accomplished by taking four games out of six, was decisive, but nevertheless Manager Gabby Street and the Redbirds insist there would be a different story to tell if it hadn't been for an unfortunate blister that developed on the important pitching finger of Bill Hallahan.

The Old Sergeant risked everything, all the Redbird chances of remaining in the title struggle, on the southpaw's ability to stop the slugging American League champions, and just when it seemed that the important left arm was in rare form and when Bill was burning strikes over the plate with greater ease than he had shown, even in beating the enemy Saturday, something happened to the index finger on Bill's left hand. A little blister formed. Bill doesn't know whether he pinched the end of the finger catching a ball, or in delivering a curve.

At any rate, there was the blister. Bill tried to forget it, but the blister grew and finally burst and the pain of trying to deliver curves and fast balls with the injured finger was such that, try as he would, Bill couldn't find the strike zone consistently.

The First Attack.
Before he was taken out, the Athletics used base on balls and two of their day's seven earned runs to produce two runs and inasmuch as Earnshaw of the rubber arm was so stingy with safety that the Cardinals manufactured only one tally all afternoon, those only first inning runs were enough to beat Hallahan and the Cardinals and send them home with the losers' end of the world series spoils. And the additional runs that the slugging Mackmen produced at the expense of Sylvester Johnson and Jim Lindsey, merely helped to make the score more one-sided. The final count was 7 to 1. To some of the spectators in the park it seemed that Hallahan was proving that he should not have been sent to the mound with only three days' rest. But Street insisted that Bill was in fine form and would have beaten the enemy

Street's Pitching Selection Is Justified; Johnson Is Pounded

Any criticism that might have been aimed at Manager Street for his decision to pitch Hallahan, despite the fact that he had only three days' rest, is silenced by the fact that Johnson, the man picked by the volunteer managers as the one who should have started, was pounded by the fence-busting Athletics.

Al Simmons greeted Johnson in the third with a home run into the upper deck of the left field stand, and in the fourth, after Bishop walked, Dykes hit a four-bagger into the lower right field seats. Fox nicked Johnson for another extra base hit, a double, in the fifth and a sacrifice bunt and a sacrifice fly turned that safety into a run.

Thus Johnson was punched for four hits and four runs in four innings, vindicating the judgment of Manager Street, who said that Hallahan was his one hope and the logical man to be sent to the slab in the emergency.

The Cardinals need not be ashamed in defeat. They fought valiantly all the way and went down fighting against odds and bad breaks in the final inning of the final game. Andy High started that last Cardinal attack with a single to right and Watkins walked. The Mackmen were seven runs ahead and out there in the bull pen, as though to discourage the Cardinals if they thought to rally, was the strong-armed Rob-

Bottomley and Hafey Not to Be Traded by Cards

By a Staff Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

PHILADELPHIA, Oct. 9.—UNDoubtedly a few of the members of the 1929 Cardinals will be traded. But if you expect Bottomley or Hafey or Frisch or Douthitt or Wilson or Hallahan to be swapped, you're mistaken. The Cardinals have just won a pennant and taken more world series games than any National League pennant winner has captured since 1928.

Messrs. Breadon, Riskey and Street don't have to tear down and rebuild. All they have to do is strengthen the reserves and the Cardinals of 1931, they believe, will be even a greater team than the one that captured the flag in a spectacular drive.

Over Grove, the fire ball left-hander, who is the last southpaw used in the American League. Grove was pitching a good game out there himself. He warmed up each inning, regardless of the score, regardless of the ease with which he was winning.

THE LION AND THE GOAT

Jim Bottomley (left), who batted .045, is generally regarded as the biggest disappointment of the series; while Earnshaw, who won two official victories and unofficially won a third, was the undoubted standout of the title struggle.

WRAV'S COLUMN

Hero and Goat.

THE world series goat is almost as easy to name as its hero. While the cheers are voiced for Earnshaw, the whispering campaign and the "trading" conversation involve Jim Bottomley, who struck out nine times, made one hit in 22 AB's for an average of .045 and failed to advance a runner during the entire series, except by a base on balls.

For a slinger of home-run reputation this pitiful exhibition undoubtedly ranks as the all-time weak-hitting championship of past world series.

However, one series doesn't make a season; nor is hitting the only asset a player possesses. Bottomley in the series just closed, played a remarkable defensive game and achieved one of its standouts plays. His handling of throws to first was a great stealer for the infield.

It therefore seems safe to say, in the face of the current rumors that if Bottomley is to feel the heat, it will not occur until the Cardinals will be up there next year fighting the Pirates, the Cubs and the Giants for first position, and with a better team than they owned this season, if injuries do not handicap the club.

Once More the Cry.

EVIDENTLY, despite the fine showing of the Cardinals in games where their pitching was good, there remains the belief that the National League has not entirely cleared itself of the charge of pitching weakness as a whole. Three victories out of a total of 19 world series games, four consecutive world series defeats and a total of only 10 world series victories as against 17 for the American League form the statistical foundation for the charge.

They are saying that the Cardinals' wonderful all-300-hitting team faded to a whisper because, for the first time this year, it looked at some real pitching in the world series. The debaters advance to the immediate conclusion that the superiority in pitching is general throughout the league.

It is far more probable that the Philadelphia superiority was due to two unusual pitchers and three unusual hitters; and that the Cardinals would probably have rapped the twirlers of almost any other club with normal severity.

The fact is that Grove and Earnshaw—Grove especially—did rival American League clubs just what they did to the Cardinals.

The Real Hero?

GEORGE EARNSHAW undoubtedly stole the world series show of 1930. He not only held the Cardinals helpless for three games, with the exception of Watkins' one home run, but he made them appear pitifully weak. He gave an exhibition of pitching mastery that has seldom been equaled in world series of the past.

His feat almost parallels the greatest world series hurling effort of history in which the mighty Christy Mathewson in 1905 faced the Connie Mack elephants in three games and won them all without a run being scored against him!

Three-Game Heroes.

MATTY was the first of the three-game world series heroes of whom, so the history of modern baseball records shows, there were only six, as follows:

1905—Mathewson of the Giants defeated the Athletics 3-0, 9-0 and 2-0, pitching all his games within five days.

1909—Babe Adams of the Pirates defeated the Detroit Tigers 4-1, 8-4 and 8-0 within eight days.

1910—Jack Coombs of the Athletics defeated the Chicago Cubs 9-5, 12-5 and 7-2 in five days.

1912—Joe Wood of the Boston Red Sox defeated the Giants 4-3, 3-1, 3-2. Wood pitched four games, being beaten 11-4 in his third effort, but winning the next day in his fourth attempt.

1917—Faber of the White Sox pitched four games against the Giants and won three of them, 7-2, 8-3 and 4-2.

1920—Stanley Coveleski of Cleveland defeated the Brooklyn club, 3-1, 5-1 and 3-0. As related, Earnshaw did not officially get credit for three

CARDINALS WERE DEFEATED, BUT NOT DISGRACED, STREET THINKS

By Gabby Street.

Manager of the Cardinals.

PHILADELPHIA, Oct. 9.—We were defeated in the world series by a great club, but we were not disgraced.

Connie Mack has one of the finest teams ever put together. It seemed to play with more confidence than I had a great club, but the Athletics, by their victory proved me better. The American League pitchers were favored by the breaks in several instances, it is true, but in the sixth and final game, George Earnshaw, though making his third start, pitched an excellent game. He held us to two runs and 14 hits in 25 innings and proved the outstanding pitcher of the series. He showed fine speed and a great curve ball. He seemed to weaken a bit in the ninth inning, but not enough to do us much good. And at that time we were working under a handicap.

games; but every fan knows that he won that many. His effort was more brilliant than that of any three-game winner except Mathewson's.

Looking Forward.

WE still allude to the post-season baseball spectacle as a world series, although we are the only nation in the world to play baseball professionally.

Only two or three countries have taken to this pastime in any form, Japan of course being the premier imitator of America in exploiting it. Australia and England have hardly more than dabbled in it experimentally, while Mexico is progressing slowly along amateur lines.

The chance of having a really international world series is extremely remote. Japan has made amazing progress in collegiate baseball. The Chicago University nine is now returning home from a series of 15 games played against Japanese university nines. It is worth noting that the first five games played were won by Japanese opponents and when the 15 games were completed Chicago had won seven games, Japanese teams had won three.

There is, however, not the slightest chance that any country can match the minor league system of development to develop a high standard of play.

GROVE PITCHES NINE INNINGS IN "BULL PEN"

By Babe Ruth.

PHILADELPHIA, Oct. 9.—I have taken so many swings against George Earnshaw on days when he had the speed and control which he had in the world series final showed that I know just how those Cardinals must have felt. They must have known in the second or third inning that they were up against too much of a task. After that it was only a matter of hustling and hoping. But it was a forlorn hope.

To men who play in the American League Earnshaw's work in the series has been no surprise. Nor was it any surprise when he came back yesterday after pitching seven great innings in St. Louis Monday and having only a day of rest in between. He is a horse for work and when he has his control, the other team has to come close to shutting pitching to have a chance. When the Athletics came through with three runs for George in the first three innings, I figured it was all over.

I want to say that the Cardinals have no reason to hang their heads over anything that happened in this 1930 world series. They were up against two of the great pitchers of the past few years. I said before the series that I would not be surprised if the name of either Grove or Earnshaw would be found in every box score. I missed it by one game, as neither one figured in the third game of the series.

It was plain in the ninth yesterday that Earnshaw was tiring and I was no wonder. In a world series a pitcher puts everything in every pitch, never knowing when trouble will break loose. Earnshaw was in a position to ease up after the fourth, but he kept on bearing down and I figured he might not last. When you pitch as he did for seven innings Monday, you need a little more rest than one day between games. That is true of the average pitcher, but I guess everybody will agree that Earnshaw is some degree above this rating.

Connie Mack was taking no chances. He didn't want the game to go against his team and carry the series into another game, even though this would mean many thousands of dollars to his club, as you know, is more than a manager under salary. He owns a half interest in the Athletics. But he worked overtime to win, sending Grove to the bull pen in the first inning and keeping him warmed up all through the game.

Mack knew his own mind and charges that the players were letting it go to a seventh game, and he made sure that there could be no occasion for such talk.

ROUGH PUPILS BREAK THEIR TEACHERS RIBS

EVANSTON, Ill., Oct. 9.—Coaching football at Northwestern is getting to be a dangerous occupation.

Pat Hanley, Northwestern line coach, jumped into a scrimmage Tuesday and was battered badly by the charging backs. Today, an X-ray revealed two cracked ribs.

of seven runs. A fine catch by Frisch, who turned in a double play, kept us from getting more tallies in that final inning.

Gave Athletics Best We Had.

I gave the Athletics the best we had in the sixth game. But Hallahan evidently had not had enough rest. He was wild and when he did get the ball over, the Athletics batted him hard. Syl Johnson and Jim Lindsey also were batted hard.

But we did not quit. We fought the Mackmen until the last man had been retired. That is shown by the way we tried to rally in the final inning. We just met a club that was better—at least in a short series, such as the world championship struggle. Over a season's play, there probably would be little difference between the two clubs.

One thing which impressed me forcibly during the series was the sensational pitching. Hurling from both sides was brilliant, with Mack showing two real stars in Earnshaw and Grove. Then I alluded some fine exhibitions by Hallahan, Haines and Grimes. It was a great series and the Athletics know they have been through a fight.

There were several stars in the series and there was one on my team. He was Charley Gelbert, the young shortstop, who did everything that could be expected of a player, especially in a world championship series. He handled 23 chances cleanly and several of them were truly sensational. Then Frank Frisch made a wonderful stop in the last game when he went far back on the grass to stop Cochrane's smash and followed with a fine throw to Bottomley to catch the catcher by a step.

Connie Mack Gives Credit To His Two Great Pitchers For Winning the Title

By Connie Mack.

Manager of the World Champion Athletics.

PHILADELPHIA, Oct. 9.—The Athletics may be pardoned if they feel proud just now.

Just as I felt would happen when coming back from St. Louis on the train, the Athletics were fighting madcaps in the sixth game, and won their only easy game of the series by downing the fighting Cardinals for the fourth time and thereby capturing the world championship for the fifth time and the second straight year.

I take my hat off to the Athletics for their skill, fighting qualities and spine in this series, which ended in six games.

George Earnshaw suffered a stone bruise late in the pennant season and this leg bothered him a great deal during the last three innings, which accounted for the great right-hander being a little wild at the finish.

His arm, however, was just as good as it was when he started the game. On the return trip from St. Louis I had a big problem to solve. CONNIE MACK I had to sink or swim with Earnshaw and Grove for the rest of the series.

Earnshaw had pitched seven hard innings on Monday, while Grove had worked two innings on the same day, following a full game Sunday.

Great Tribute to Pitchers.

I talked with both pitchers on the train and both volunteered to pitch. After a conference it was agreed that if Earnshaw felt all right, he was to start the game, and in case of any necessity, Grove was to keep his arm limber in the bull pen and subject himself to an emergency call.

Grove is famous as a finisher and I felt that, in mid-game or after if we had a one or two-run lead, I could safely substitute the lefthander for Earnshaw without taking the slightest risk.

As it turned out, Earnshaw was alright, just as he was on the other two afternoons he pitched and it was never necessary to take him out.

In all my years in baseball I have never seen two pitchers more willing to work at all times than

Practice scores, as a whole, again

ran high yesterday.

Two of the best were recorded by Glenna Collett, the champion, and Mrs. Gregg Lifer of the California Country Club, Culver City. They had 55.

Bernice Wall of Wisconsin had an 86 and Miss Virginia Van Wile of Chicago an 87, along with Mrs. W. W. Campbell of the Los Angeles Country Club.

Mrs. Stewart Hanley of Detroit shot the first nine in 38 but found trouble on the incoming journey and took 48 for an 86.

Let me say here, without attempting to alibi for anyone, that with a bit of luck in two of the games, the championship would have gone to the National League. I refer to the first game in Philadelphia, and the final in St. Louis. But that is what makes baseball the great game it is. That is why I never have lost its grip on the American public.

Frankie Frisch proved himself more a great money player. His play on Mickey Cochrane yesterday afternoon was easily the greatest of the series. It was one of the great plays in the entire history of baseball. He dove for that ball Cochrane slashed toward right, knocked it down and coming up like a cat, made a fine throw for the putout. Cochrane kicked, more in anger and disappointment over being robbed of a hit than in hope of having a decision reversed. I got a great thrill out of that play.

Charley Gelbert set himself up as a money player of the true type. If he isn't the best shortstop in the country before many months pass, he has been history. He never once "waivered," never slipped and never gave the slightest indication of slipping. He was a masterly player in every move and in every essential. And while we are applauding, let's not forget the fine game played by Jesse Haines, the sturdy right-hander of the Cards, and Burleigh Grimes, who lost two of the toughest games that I've seen lost in any season or world series.

It was a splendid series from every angle. Earnshaw won two games and Grove won two, capturing the one in which he relieved Earnshaw.

That was the game Fox finished with a home run.

Earnshaw takes his place among Cochrane's iron men with Jack Cochrane, who in the Chicago times in five days back in 1910, he pitched almost as well as Mathewson pitched in 1905, but not quite.

I don't if we shall ever see the equal of Mathewson, in my opinion, the greatest pitcher who ever lived.

Jack Cochrane, the gambler with the glove of two great pitchers, George Earnshaw takes his place among the great iron men of the classic. In 25 innings he allowed the Cardinals only two runs. There is the story of the 1930 series.

Credit Goes to Two Pitchers.

Lefty Grove pitched great ball. He was Mack's pitching ace and his hopes for victory. He led the burden squarely up to him and they gamely fought enough. All the credit in the world to them.

Not only did Connie have two great pitchers working faultlessly, he had a great outfielder in Al Simmons and a great catcher in Mickey Cochrane. The last two named the bulwarks of the Mack back and defense. They hit the ball pitching the Cardinals could not while Earnshaw and Grove filled the Cards' bats.

A combination of a great team, which is what I mean, who leader saved too much for a fighting team, even such a team as the Cardinals. It was the fourth consecutive World Series victory for the American League, but this time I was no walkover for the victors.

Jimmy Dykes comes in for credit. He came back splendidly for the me-time crowd with a home run and a double along with a couple bases on balls.

Jimmy handled himself perfectly in this final crusher.

The Cards banked on the ability of Wild Bill Hallahan to come back. He did try his best but his control was bad and for this time he was not good enough to carry the load.

Despite the fact that the National League once more bowed to the power of the American League representatives, full credit must be given to the Cardinals. They carried the fight through six games and losing the first two here in Philadelphia.

Ample League Has Won Four Consecutive Series And 16 Out of 19 Games

By Herman Wecke.

In the greatest pitching world series decided in several campaigns, the Athletics of the American League defeated the Cardinals at Philadelphia four games to two, to retain the baseball supremacy for the junior circuit. It was the fourth straight victory for representatives of Barnard's league. They now have won 16 games and suffered but three defeats in the last four seasons.

Connie Mack had two sensational pitchers in the 1930 series and he won. The pitchers in question were George Earnshaw and Lefty Grove. The men won a pennant for Mack and they went on to win the world series for him. Including the series battles, the pair won 55 games for the year and lost 22 decisions. While Grove was the bigger star in the regular campaign, Earnshaw stole all the thunder in the world series and Cardinals players rate him as better pitcher than Grove. They say that his fast ball is just as good, while he also owns a wonderful curve ball, something that Grove does not possess.

There are those among the Redbirds who claim that Earnshaw's curve has faster break than the one pitched by Dazzy Vance, the great Brooklyn right-hander. Earnshaw completely subdued the Redbirds. He was credited with two victories and he would have won three had not Connie Mack taken him out for a pinch hitter in the last game at St. Louis. In the series he pitched a total of 25 innings. In that time, the St. Louisans were able to score only two runs, one a home-run smash. The rest of the big right-hander totaled 12. Some pitching, especially in these days when the "rabbit" ball is supposed to have wrecked twirling science in favor of knockdown and dragout slug-

Grove, who won the other two games for Mack, was not far behind. He worked 11 innings and in that time yielded five runs, two of them unearned, while he was found for 15 hits. T. us in facing Mack's two pitching aces, the Cardinals were able to score only eight runs and punch out 29 hits in five complete battles. Which is enough to beat any team, especially in a short series. It was easily the greatest exhibition of hurling in a championship struggle, since the lively ball came into existence. But all the pitching was not on the side of the Athletics, though it much truthfully be said that Earnshaw and Grove stood out. The Cardinals had a bit of it them-

What Earnshaw Did in Helping Athletics Win

AS credited with two victories. Pitched 22 scoreless innings. Allowed 13 hits and only two runs in 25 innings of pitching. Pitched seven scoreless innings in fifth game, the victory in which was credited to Grove. Pitched final game with only one day of rest. Struck out 19 men in 25 innings. Walked only six men in 25 innings.

Cards Outbatted Athletics.

For the series, the Athletics were outbatted 200 to 196, but the difference is found in the extra bases. These figures show that of the 25 safeties for the Mackmen 13 or more than half of the number were good for extra bases. The Cardinals on the other hand had but 13 extra base walkups out of 38 safeties. The Athletics' extra base raps included nine doubles, two triples and six home runs, whereas the count for the Redbirds was 10 doubles, one triple and two four-baggers. That difference in homers was the big story of the series, outside of the superior pitching.

In the six games, the Cardinals were able to score only 12 runs, an average of two a game. That will not win many contests and this instance it won two. The American Leaguers crossed the plate on 20 occasions, or an average of 3.3 a battle. Which was enough the way Earnshaw and Grove pitched.

Cardinals' Heavy Hitters Failed While Those of the Athletics Came Through

One of the reasons why the St. Louis entry was not more successful is found in the work of the players who were expected to hit. For instance, Jim Bottomley made but one hit in 22 trips to the plate in the series. Except by a base on balls, he failed to advance a runner. Doubtful but two hits, while Adair chalked up the same number. Frisch had five blows and Hasey six.

Against this, the men on the Athletics who were expected to hit, did just that little thing. Simmons, Fox, Cochrane, Miller and Dykes came through with telling wallops. And then Max Bishop, the lead-off man, was on the bases 12 times, or an average of two in each game. That gave the big gun something to shoot at and in few instances did they fall down.

But when all is said, the pitchers must be given the full credit. Both teams will hit close to .300 for a season's play. But in the series, so effective was the work of the rival hill staffs that there was not a single hit inning. Two runs was the highest total scored in any one frame.

Series Sideline.

The capacity of Shibe Park, although announced at 33,000, is not more than 32,295. That number of persons witnessed each of the three battles at Philadelphia. The receipts for the final battle totaled $122,735, with the commissioner's share $22,910.25. The remainder was split four ways between the contending clubs and the two leagues. Thus the Cardinals share was $32,456.18, or a total of $121,

My 50 Years in Baseball by CONNIE MACK Manager of the Philadelphia Athletics

Umpire Silk O'Loughlin's Decision Costs Athletics Pennant in 1907, Detroit Finishing First.

By Connie Mack. No. 28.

URING the season of 1906, the Athletics made some changes. Lave Cross was released and Simon Nicholls, who afterward died, took his place.

Jack Coombs, who was to glitter for me as a pitcher, also joined us. After winning the pennant the previous year, the best we could do was to finish fourth.

The White Sox carried off the 1906 pennant and dazed everybody by defeating the Cubs in the world series that fall.

When I saw that I had no chance to win the pennant that season, I commenced to try young players. I became convinced that I would have to get a lot of young blood on my team.

I started in 1901 with a lot of veterans who were all right at the time and helped me win two pennants, but they were now beginning to show signs of wear and tear because of advancing years.

The players of the 1901-05 era, with some notable exceptions, had to be displaced and I kept on the outlook at all times for suitable players who had years ahead of them.

At the start of 1907, I acquired Outfielder Rube Oldring and also swapped Jack Knight, the high school boy, to the Red Sox for Jimmy Collins, who had managed Boston and played third base with rare success.

Knight was a product of Central High School in Philadelphia and did good work for me. I regretted to part with him, but believed that the experienced Jimmy Collins would do better.

Jimmy played excellent ball for me that year, although suffering with an injured knee. As detailed in the previous chapter, Eddie Collins also joined us after being graduated from Columbia.

Tight Race of 1907.

THE 1907 American League pennant race was a thriller and not decided until a day or two before the close. With the Athletics and Tigers almost neck-and-neck in Philadelphia late in September.

The two teams were booked to play three games and it was generally conceded that the winner would also be the pennant victor. Detroit won the first game 4 to 3, and the next afternoon a double-header was booked.

The late Wild Bill Donovan pitched for the Tigers and Jimmy Dygert for the Athletics at the start of what was to be a double bill.

Donovan started badly and the Athletics were off to a good lead. Dygert weakened in the second inning and was replaced by Rube Waddell, who had not been pitching much that season.

Cobb Hits Waddell for Homer

I N starting the ninth, the score was 8 to 6 in our favor, and enthusiasm was high. The first Tiger up was Sam Crawford, and he hit Waddell for two bases. Then Ty Cobb lofted the ball over the right-field wall for a home run and the score was even. I quickly dismissed Waddell, and Plank got the side out without further trouble.

The game went into extra innings.

CLEVELAND FRESHMEN WIN FROM CHAMINADE YEARLING ELEVEN, 6-0

Salles, left halfback on the Cleveland High School football team, scored a touchdown after receiving a pass, enabling his team to defeat the Chamina de yearlings, 6 to 0, yesterday afternoon. The touchdown was made in the second period.

Cleveland, Pa. Chamina de yearlings, 6 to 0. Chamina de yearlings, 6 to 0. Chamina de yearlings, 6 to 0.

Several of the players, including Charley Gelbert, Jimmy Wilson, Hallahan, Earl Smith and Frankie Frisch, went direct to their homes after the game.

Jimmy Manion's 70 Best Card of The Day at Tulsa

By the Associated Press. TULSA, Ok., Oct. 9.—Favorites survived opening-round competition in the annual International Petroleum Exposition golf tournament at the Tulsa Country Club, but one of them, either Logan L. Van Zandt, Tulsa, defending champion, or Tom Cochrane, Wichita Falls, Tex., former title holder, is due for elimination today when the two meet.

Van Zandt disposed of E. C. (Kitty) Mead, Tulsa, 3 and 1, in the first round, while Cochrane scored a three and two victory over R. E. Adams, Tulsa. Both matches were even at the end of nine holes.

Jimmy Manion, St. Louis, former trans-Mississippi champion, turned in the best performance of the day, stroking his way around the 18-hole course in 70, one under par, to beat C. A. Stover, Pittsburg, Pa., 2 and 1.

We made a sharp protest with league authorities, but as the controversy involved an umpire's judgment, it was not sustained. Hundreds of Philadelphians and business organizations sent their protests to President Johnson in Chicago, but in vain.

We lost the 1907 pennant by the slim margin of six points, so it is easy to fathom how devastating this arbitrary ruling was to us. It made a sour finish to an otherwise glorious season.

BILLIKENS LOOK FOR AIR-RAID BY TIGER FOOTBALL TEAM, SATURDAY

MISSOURI USED PASSING ATTACK REPEATEDLY IN COLORADO GAME

By James M. Gould.

In expectation of a football air-raid when they meet the Missouri Tigers at Walsh Memorial Stadium Saturday afternoon, the St. Louis University Billikens are devoting these last few days to a defense against passes. Missouri employs a variety of pass-formations and are not particular at what stage of the game or in what part of the field they employ this method to advance the ball.

Many observers have called the Missouri pass system unorthodox because the Tigers refuse to wait until it is the obvious "third down and nine to go" stage and also because they are apt to heave one close to their own goal line.

"Of course," said Head Coach Chiles Walsh today, "we are preparing for an air attack. Much of our practice lately has been against this form of offense, but we are not overlooking the possibility that Missouri may switch methods and employ the running attack for which their present line material is so well fitted. In fact, you might say that so far as Missouri goes, we are looking for anything and hopeful we can stop it."

Tigers Use No Shift.

The St. Louis-Missouri scrap will be between a team which depends on a smooth-working shift for much of its offense and one which does not employ the shift at all. The Missouri system for several years back has been "shiftless" in a manner of speaking, while the Billikens use a Walsh adaptation of the Notre Dame shift.

The Tigers go from set formations with one backfield man "fading" back from the center and either passing or running with the ball. Of course, there is always the possibility that the "fader" may not get the ball, one of the short men behind the line receiving the leather. So there is plenty of deception in Coach Quinn Henry's method without the shift.

Against Colorado, last Saturday, Missouri used a pass attack almost exclusively; hence, the preparation of the Billikens for this form of play. The defeat of the Tigers by Colorado hasn't served to make the Billiken coaches a bit overconfident. In fact, it has had the reverse effect because they know "old Mizou" will be a better team this week than it was last.

Walsh Favors Rocking System.

Coach Walsh still leans a bit to the "rocking-in" idea. While most of his first-stringers will be in against Missouri at the opening whistle, a conspicuous absentee will be Charley McKinney, regarded as one of the best quarterbacks seen in this section for some time. McKinney, scheduled for the sidelines for the first few minutes, will be an active "scout" of the Missouri defense and attack. What he learns he is expected to work to the Billikens' advantage as he enters action.

Harry Bockrath, a giant sophomore tackle, will start the game in place of the more-experienced Rufe Schultz and McGowan will be at left end with Kennedy shifting to the right flank. It is probable that Captain "Snakes" Gasselle will not get into the game. He hurt his knee in the Oklahoma City U. contest and the soreness has spread to his ankle. As in the game with Cornell, it is altogether likely that Billiken reserves will be used freely.

Today, hard blocking practice and dummy scrimmage will be taken and, tomorrow, only light work will be asked of the St. Louis players. Yesterday, in a long scrimmage against the freshmen who use Missouri plays, the varsity was uniformly successful though one or two weak spots in the line developed.

La Presta at Fullback.

Benny La Presta who will start at fullback Saturday distinguished himself in this scrimmage by his fine defensive play.

Followers of the Billikens are hoping that clear weather will prevail for the game. It is known that the Tigers will be the heavier, much of the difference in weight being in the line. A heavy field, therefore, would naturally give the Tigers an added advantage.

With Governor Canfield and other State officials present, the game will be a colorful event and a large crowd is expected, the seat sale having been thus far most encouraging.

St. Louis University officials believe it eminently fitting that Missouri should aid in officially dedicating the new stadium. The two teams have not met in seven years. At their last meeting, the game resulted in a scoreless tie.

which Earnshaw was turning back the Cardinals.

But Street's men didn't give up. This ninth-inning single and walk looked like the opening they had been waiting for, and Frisch went up to the plate and dug his spikes into the dirt. Frank swung at the first one Earnshaw put over and connected solidly. But, alas, his drive sailed straight into the hands of Jimmy Fox, who had to make the catch in self-protection. The runners, of course, were off with the crack of the bat, and Watkins was doubled off first without having a chance to get back.

Even this slap in the face from Lady Luck didn't kill the Cardinal fighting spirit. Hayef battled with Grove until he found one to his liking and spanked a double down the left field line, scoring High. It might have made a difference if that Frisch drive had gone safe. It would have been good for two bases at least, and the Cards would have had three runs with nobody out after Hayef's double. Street insists that that double-play break was fatal and that, despite the seven-run lead, the Cards would have been in the game if Frank's hit had gone through. At any rate, Hayef's double ended the scoring. Bottomley walked, but Wilson filed to Miller and Earnshaw was through with his work, with a long winter to rest ahead. And then, and only then, did Grove stop warming up.

"Of course it hurts to lose," Gabby Street said this morning. "But I'm proud of my team, and I think our ball club is as good as any in the world, and the gamest bunch of men I ever saw together. We could beat those Athletics in a series starting tomorrow. They couldn't get the breaks again like they did in this series. But I wouldn't change a thing that I did. We gave our best and we lost. We couldn't do any more."

Sam Bredon, owner of the club, said he was proud of the Cardinals. "They went down fighting and they showed they were game to the core," Bredon said. "I have only the highest praise for the team and the way it fought and for Gabby Street and the way he ran the ball club. We'll win the pennant next year and if the Athletics are lucky enough to win their league, we'll beat them sure. We have a better balanced ball club, and more good pitchers. But Connie Mack has two great pitchers in Earnshaw and Grove."

Street's men took their defeat quietly and without any apparent grief.

Detroit U. Has Fast Eleven This Year, But May Be Lacking In Defense, Asserts Tad Jones

By Tad Jones.

(Member, All-America Board of Football.)

DETROIT, Mich., Oct. 9.—There may be bigger and stronger football teams, but few will be smoother and more finished than the eleven which will represent Detroit University this year. And if speed alone could win football games then Detroit would have nothing to fear. But speed and ability to score are only a part of it. Coach Dorais' problem is hardly an offensive one for the strength and speed of his attack will prove itself this year as in past seasons.

The big obstacle which he must overcome will lie in what may develop into a lack of ruggedness and power defensively. The squad is comparatively light, but is exceptionally well balanced on a football field. He is a strong runner, holding his feet well, and has a fine change of pace. He is tremendously handicapped by lack of experience, however, and should be a reserve team of ability far above the average and in this Dorais will be exceedingly fortunate. The varsity will be made up largely of reserves from last year's eleven and promises to be very fast and not entirely lacking in experience.

Dorais was Rockne's teammate. Dorais and Rockne learned their football at Notre Dame and both have continued with the same style of attack which they played as undergraduates on the same eleven in the Indiana institution. Speed and deception are the essence of the attack, which starts from a shifting backfield. Dorais is a master of detail and timing. His eleven swing into action with beautiful precision.

Just at present Whetzel and Hackett have the first call at the end positions. Under and Clotte are promising candidates, however. Schimmer and Massucci are the regular tackles, but the reserve pair, Metras and Beer, may find their way to the varsity before the season is well under way. Schimmer is the largest man on the squad, but lacking in offensive drive. If he can develop aggressiveness he should be a great tackle, for he is strong defensively. Massucci makes up in drives what he lacks in weight. Metras and Beer are sophomores. They appear to lack nothing but experience. Weiss and Nader are veteran guards and should be stronger this year than last.

Fitzpatrick Favored at Center.

Fitzpatrick seems slated for the center berth with Howell running a close second. Both are great fighters and inspiration players. It is in the backfield that Detroit looks most impressive. Captain Storen, Berg and Parsaka with Shearer at quarterback make up one backfield combination with a second to be drawn from O'Neil, Cogan, Ross and White. Shearer is hardly a finished quarterback, but he has real possibilities. He handles the ball nicely, is a good pass receiver and runs well. He appears to lack confidence and drive in directing his team—but this is probably due to the fact that he is a sophomore. Experience will correct these weaknesses. Berg looks like one of the best. He is regular, especially fast and a very deceptive and powerful runner.

Parsaka at left is the triple threat. He is a good passer, a good punter and a good ball car-

TAD JONES

DR. SHARPE HAS BEARS ON EDGE FOR WM. JEWELL, SATURDAY NIGHT

By Harold Tuthill.

The spirit of the Velled Prophet hovered about Francis Field yesterday afternoon and watched the Washington University Bears run through their football practice. Afterwards he was heard to make the forecast that the Bears should defeat William Jewell College by at least six touchdowns, Saturday night.

The distinguished gentleman's prediction was not without basis of fact, because the Bears are as strong now as they can hope to be. Gus Butts spent the largest part of the afternoon under violet rays, treating an ankle which is bothering him, but which is becoming stronger daily. Butts' 200 pounds at center give Washington a line average of 191.

Scott Hornsby, who was hampered by a strapped right leg in the game against Illinois College, punting for a while and announced that he felt no ill effects. Hornsby, whose kicking is a vital part in the Bears' defense, will hold down the fullback job.

The only other injury that causes concern is that to Clarence Blake's hand, but with Butts back, Clarence can rest a week. Blake is a capable center and provides Dr. Al Sharpe with an alternate pivot man.

Saussele on Edge.

Ted "will-o-the-wisp" Saussele cantered about the field catching and throwing long forward passes with ease, indicating that Ted is in even better condition now than he was in the opening game, when he scored four touchdowns. Saussele will be at right halfback Saturday night, flanked by Bob Cochran at left half. Red-haired Max Tyrrell will again call signals.

The Bears' backfield is exceptionally light. Hornsby weighs 155, Saussele 172, Tyrrell 153 and Cochran 153. The team average is 132 pounds.

Practice yesterday consisted of group instruction. Dr. Sharpe took the two backfields in one quarter of the field and showed them how to smuggle the ball as they ran their formations. Dr. Sharpe has given Tyrrell a list of deceptive plays to use if straight football won't defeat William Jewell and if they are executed the fans will have a hard time following the runner.

Anticipating the Thrust.

Gale Bullman in another corner barked at the linemen, attempting to get them to change properly. Later Bullman took the first stringers and had the second freshman team run signals in a mock scrimmage. Before each play Bullman asked the varsity where the play was coming and the answer came promptly.

The second string varsity battled in the first string freshmen on Liggett Field for a time, the varsity being always in possession of the ball. No startling runs were forced to field ground.

Signal drill today and tomorrow should put the Bears in prime condition for Saturday night.

SPORT SALAD

by L. Dennis

All Over.

OUR batters lost their batting eyes. Their fielders made few blunders. Our boys, to every one's surprise, were simply hitless wonders.

The slants and curves, so deftly thrown, escaped the smashes brutal. The pitchers came into their own. The batters' swings were futile.

The lively ball, oh, where was it? It seemed to have no "rabbit." For every time the ball was hit some "A" was sure to grab it.

They figured that the A's would find it pretty hard to shake them; The Cards were coming from behind, But couldn't overtake them.

A Long One.

That home run hit by Jimmy Fox in Monday's game was probably the longest hit on record. It was caught by a Santa Fe Railroad conductor.

Bob Quinn says Joe McCarthy wants to manage a ready-made ball club and therefore doesn't fit in with the Red Sox. We can see where they are both right.

See where Gallant Fox, the biggest United States winning horse, has been retired. And the customers at Sportsman's Park would like to have seen Jimmy Fox retired in the ninth inning of Monday's game.

But Jimmy faced the pitcher's box and proved to be a Gallant Fox.

That's Different.

POWERS TO MEET CHICAGO BOXER ON MALLOY CARD

By W. J. McGoogan.

Mique Malloy's fight card at the Coliseum, Friday, Oct. 17, is rapidly taking on the aspect of a St. Louis vs. Chicago affair for, aside from the main event in which Mickey Walker of points east meets Tiger Johnny Cline, Los Angeles, every bout arranged or under consideration has a St. Louis boy and a Chicago product as the principals.

The latest contest Malloy is trying to arrange is that between Frank Powers, Kid Bandy's heavy-weight hope, and Nick Taft, Chicago battler. Malloy claims Taft is a hard-working boxer who should make Powers step lively to gain the verdict. Taft told Malloy that he has not been well lately, but will decide soon if he can take the fight. If not, Powers will meet some other Chicagoan.

Powers has been putting on weight since he recovered from his operation and Bandy claims he will weigh around 180 pounds when he goes into the ring. Frank has only lost one professional fight, that to Al Stillman, which Taft received the popular decision in a close contest.

In the semidivision John Schwake is to do battle with Harvey Mortensen in Chicago while for the two preliminaries Mike has under consideration, Buddy Schlereth and Freddie Terry, local boys, for bouts with two Chicago boxers.

Schlereth looks like a million dollars in the gymnasium but his ring appearances haven't been satisfactory, at least not up to the time of his last bout in which he knocked out Tut Seymour. That night Buddy looked good and George Wislman claimed that is Schlereth's normal gait. Malloy has a tough opponent picked out for Schlereth and if the bout is arranged Buddy will have to be good to win it.

Prices From $1 to $5.

All told, five bouts, with about 36 rounds of boxing if all go the route, will compose the program. The prices will be $1, $2, $3 and $5. The top price will be for only the first five rows about the ring-side.

Malloy plans to stick to these prices for the numerous shows he hopes to hold in the Coliseum this winter, and when it is necessary to increase the stake, only the number of $5 seats will be increased.

Walker is due to arrive here from Des Moines, Ia. next Tuesday. He has a bout there on Monday night.

Fred Windsor, manager of Cline, arrived this morning and stated that Cline would be here tomorrow afternoon. Johnny will begin his final workouts for the bout with Walker at the National Gymnasium Saturday.

Windsor has handled several other boxers who have appeared in St. Louis rings, among them Dummy Mahan, who defeated Meyer Grace, and Al Walker, who gave Johnny Kaiser a good battle.

Cline, a good, rugged boy, should give Walker plenty to do, Windsor contends.

With Windsor is Wesley Ketchell, a middleweight, who, his manager asserts, is ready for a bout with Walker right now and is anxious to get it.

CHAPTER 43.

BEDFORD, who had been removed from the hospital to a suite in a hotel, learned, quite naturally, of Stephen's voluntary change of fortunes. He frowned over the news a little. But it was perfectly clear to him, of course, why Dane had left the place he had found for him.

He would have to see him. But not yet. He began communicating with certain people in Chicago. He commenced investigating Harry Stoddard's recent activities. He pulled wires, from an easy chair in the hotel bedroom. Stoddard, he stipulated, was never to know of his activities in his behalf.

It appeared to him as incredible, as inordinately and ironically amusing, that he should be taking a hand in the financial affairs and marital future of his divorced wife's erstwhile lover. Such things, he reflected, sardonically, only happened in real life. They were unbelievable.

But Eve must have her chance. She must find her tired feet set on a path which would lead her, if not to happiness—surely that was too much to ask of life?—for anyone—then to peace. And it was not necessary to indicate to her the hand that had set them there. The main thing was to get Charlotte Dane safely married and that burden lifted from Stephen's shoulders.

So he went on writing discreet but powerful letters to his many important connections and pulling the various wires. And eventually Harry Stoddard wired to Charlotte Dane in an expensive, wordy blase of triumph, and followed his wire to New York.

He stood once more with her in her little room. The last time they had been there, the future had seemed very uncertain and their chance of happiness very far away. Now both future and happiness were within the reach of their united hands.

"Collins and Wilkins... biggest firm in Chicago... manager of the bond department... good record—social connections. Charlotte, do you mind leaving New York?"

MIND? She was grateful beyond words! To leave the town where she had lived, in boredom and resentment, with Stephen Dane! To leave the town where she had cast in her lot with Helene Carter and feverishly tried to believe that freedom was the end in itself—not the means to an end! To leave the town in which, in all probability, that strange woman who had loved Harry was now living! To leave the town in which she had learned humiliation and suffering!

She put her arms around his neck and the tears ran down her cheeks. Always a pretty woman, even when she cried, as Stephen could have told him, But Stephen's successor was not thinking of him. He was thanking whatever vague gods he worshipped that they had brought this desirable woman into his arms... to have and to hold forever.

For like most men who have lived lightly and who have loved illicitly, Harry Stoddard was equipped with all the sentimental yearnings for Real Love, and once those yearnings would endure, once fulfilled, was up to life—and Charlotte.

He kissed her, deeply. He vowed himself, he dedicated himself to her service. He was hers, forever—all he was, all he had, and she believed him as woman must believe if the race is to go on. And she was quite justified. For he meant what he said. Meant it with every fiber in his being. It was not necessary for lovers to look beyond the present; it is even futile. There is only one factor that will prove them wrong or prove them right—and that is Time.

They were married, as soon as possible, in New York City, by a pleasant clergyman who had no uncomfortable scruples about the remarriage of the divorced.

And then Charlotte and Harry Stoddard went to Chicago to begin, literally, a new life. And news reaching the god from the machine in his hotel suite, he smiled; ironically, and struck them off his list of entanglements.

NEWS reached Stephen through Max Wertheim, who was looking forward to his own coming marriage. Max was impressed with his winning of Helene Carter and with himself for this major accomplishment. He was quite in love with her.

What Helene herself thought of her new alliance is another matter. But Max seemed easy to guide, simple to manage, and she liked him and was tired of her frittering, unsettled life. She realized that he, mentally, exaggerated the importance of her social position, but that did not worry her in the least, as she felt she was marrying beneath her and thus conferring an inestimable favor upon her future husband.

HOW TO PLAY

Backgammon

By J. VAN CLEFT COOPER

This is the third of a series of articles on how to play backgammon, the game that promises to be the winter's most popular parlor diversion.

Scoring. SCORING backgammon is very simple.

A bowl of ordinary matches may be set near the players and one match placed on the bar at the beginning of a game, since a "single game" counts 1.

At the first double, another match is placed on the bar, the game now being worth 2. A third double puts four matches on the bar, a fourth, eight, and so on.

The number of matches on the bar at any time thus shows the value of the game at that moment. At the finish of the game the winner takes all the matches on the bar.

Some prefer to keep only the net score.

Here, in case a player holds matches previously won and then loses a game, the winner's score for that game is deducted from the matches held by the loser.

Thus, if White has won 16 matches and Black then wins 4, the four on the bar are returned to the bowl plus four from White's holding, leaving him with 12, his net score.

Another way of using matches is to place one on the bar for every double. Taking one as the unit of play, the score for a "single game" would be 1 doubled as many times as there are matches on the bar. A gammon doubles and a backgammon triples this score.

Assuming no doubles, if White wins he scores 1. If he backgammons Black he scores 3. If he gammons Black he scores 3.

Doubles are applied before considering gammons and backgammons. If White wins a single game with three matches on the bar, indicating three doubles either automatic or optional, he scores 1 doubled three times, or 8.

If he gammons Black with three doubles he scores 18 and if he backgammons him he scores 24.

In Chouette if White in the box wins from Black and Red with a score of 24, the score sheet would show, "White 48+, Black 24-, Red 24-." If he loses the score would be, "White 48-, Black 24+, Red 24+."

Every household should have a low table so that whatever member of the family is 90 may dine in comfort. Small tables just large enough to hold a tray are done in enamels with clever painted designs amusing enough to entertain children. For adults such a table comes equipped with blotter and holders for match box and cigarettes, a very convenient piece of furniture, since it may be used upon many occasions and for various purposes while one is resting.

A new adjustable table and a portable sort is one that folds and packs in a case. This may be adjusted to the standard height for bridge or to short-legged height for the sick room. It is a table for the motorist to carry to beach and picnic grounds, and is colorful in various enamels, jade, ivory, silver, mandarin red, green, black.

An entirely different method of scoring omits games, gammons and backgammons and scores: 1 point for each man in loser's inner table.

2 points for each man in loser's outer table.

3 points for each man in winner's inner table or on the bar.

4 points for each man in winner's inner table or on the bar. This score is doubled according to the number of matches on the bar.

Tomorrow—Principles of Play.

New Household Helps

To accent the color theme of the kitchen the sturdy base pot that more often holds cookies than it is utilized for baking beans, now comes in black glazed wear. It is much the same form as the small squat jars with double handles and its bulging sides are highlighted in black.

DAILY STORY FOR CHILDREN
By Mary Graham Bonner

Flying Beacons

ONCE again the pilot had come for the children and the Little Black Clock.

The Clock had turned the time ahead, and they were going up in the pilot's plane and it was dark, just as it had been on their adventure the evening before when the Little Black Clock had turned the time back so many, many, many years.

As they flew through the night sky they could see great beacons of light which guided their way. "They've had some of these for quite awhile," the Little Black Clock said, "but now they are having them everywhere."

"Wherever there would be danger of fog or buildings or wires these beacons of light make flying safe, and routes for night travel are marked out in this way, too."

"That is why there are so many of them, and why it almost seems like riding through a bright city at night," John asked.

He had had a ride through a bright city at night only a little while before.

"The same idea," said the Little Black Clock.

"I wonder if the stars are jealous?" Peggy asked.

"I don't believe so," the Little Black Clock laughed. "If you look up you'll see that they are twinkling as merrily as ever."

"I'm planning quite a trip for tomorrow night," the Little Black Clock said.

"Are we to see another wonder?" Peggy asked.

"You'd like to, wouldn't you?" John returned.

"Oh, we want to see all of them," John replied, and Peggy said: "We certainly do."

"That's what I thought," the Little Black Clock exclaimed, "and that's what we're going to do."

Lamb Souffle. A savory dish that will use up the remains of Sunday's leg of lamb. Put cooked lamb through the grinder until you have 1½ cups. Season with paprika, salt, celery salt, chopped parsley and onion juice. Then add one-half cup of cream sauce and the well beaten yolks of two eggs. Cool and fold in the stiffly beaten whites of the eggs. Turn into buttered baking dish and bake until it rises and is brown. Serve as soon as removed from the oven, as, like all souffles, it will fall when removed.

Sprinkle borated talcum powder into the new shoes for foot comfort.

ETIQUETTE

Bethothal Cards.

WILL you please tell me if betrothal cards are considered good form?

2. In case a married couple receives one through the mail—from out of town—or from the same town—what response should be made?

In both cases the couple to be married are much younger than we are, and the bride-to-be in one case is entirely unknown.

M. A. R.

1. No; betrothal cards are not in good form.

2. These cards, if we wish, should be acknowledged by a short note of felicitations and best wishes. You write to the one whom you know, if you do not know both.

To Clean Paint Brush

THE secret of cleaning a paint brush that has become stiff and hard with dried paint is not so much in the material that is used as in the way it is used. Usually a person attempting to clean a brush uses an old paint can more or less filled with dried paint, and mixing his paint softener according to directions subjects its action, as he fondly imagines, to the work of softening the brush. Whereas, in fact, the mixture is working to soften the paint on the can as well as in the brush and, not being powerful enough to do both, it softens neither.

If a brush is suspended in a clean tumbler containing a solution of one part of crystallized sodium carbonate (sal-soda) in three of water, in such a manner that it hangs several inches from the bottom of the container, the softening operation can be carried on entirely upon the brush. If allowed to work in a temperature of 170 degrees for 12 to 36 hours the dried paint will usually be softened so much that it can be easily washed out with soap and water.

Brushes which have become as hard as stone can be restored by this process.

Sal-Soda or washing soda can be obtained at the grocers, and the proper soap for washing brushes is to be had there also. Borax soap may be used, as well as carbolic soap. The soap must be washed out of the brush before drying, otherwise it will dry stiff and unpleasing.

Rest and the Child

TO reason by analogy is a fascinating though hazardous practice.

Yet within limits the "picture idea" expressed by the analogy often helps to make a complicated matter easy to understand.

The human body, for example, has been frequently compared to a machine.

The fact is that there is no single machine that even remotely approximates the human body.

In many respects the human body is a machine, and that many of its functions and processes are rendered more comprehensible when thought of in terms parallel to the workings of a man-made machine.

Where the human machine differs most radically from all others is in its capacity to grow and to repair its "wear and tear."

This phase of human life and function is most intense in the early years of life, and it is during this period that thought and attention should most urgently be given to the matter of growth and re-creation.

In children adequate growth is promoted chiefly through the agencies of good food and rest.

Food supplies the raw material out of which energy and building substances are abstracted by the body.

Time also enters into this picture, for growth cannot be rushed. Time taken from rest and sleep is time taken from growth. Every parent should learn what is the normal rest schedule for their children and insist upon close adherence to this schedule.

TO reason by analogy is a fascinating though hazardous practice. Yet within limits the "picture idea" expressed by the analogy often helps to make a complicated matter easy to understand. The human body, for example, has been frequently compared to a machine.

The fact is that there is no single machine that even remotely approximates the human body. In many respects the human body is a machine, and that many of its functions and processes are rendered more comprehensible when thought of in terms parallel to the workings of a map-made machine.

Where the human machine differs most radically from all others is in its capacity to grow and to repair its "wear and tear."

This phase of human life and function is most intense in the early years of life, and it is during this period that thought and attention should be most urgently given to the matter of growth and re-creation.

In children adequate growth is promoted chiefly through the agencies of good food and rest.

Food supplies the raw material out of which energy and building substances are abstracted by the body.

THE SCARAB MURDER CASE
—SANDVINE—

CHAPTER XVI.

MARKHAM gave a perceptible start, and his eyes narrowed. "Good Heavens! You don't believe . . . ? I'll confess I thought of it, too. But then came all that other evidence . . ."

"Thought of what, sir?" Heath was frankly exasperated, and his tone was irritable.

"Both Mr. Markham and I," explained Vance soothingly, "noted the dared condition of Doctor Bliss when he appeared this morning in answer to my continued pounding on the door."

"He'd been asleep. Didn't he tell us so?"

"Quite. And that's why I'm so dashed interested in his maternal coffee."

Vance walked to the end of the desk upon which rested a small silver tray containing a rack of toast and a cup and saucer. The toast had not been touched. The cup was practically empty. Only the congealed brown drops of what had evidently been coffee remained in the bottom. Vance leaned over and looked into the cup. Then he lifted it to his nose.

"There's a slightly acrid odor here," he remarked.

He touched the tip of his finger to the inside of the cup and placed it on his tongue.

"Yes . . . Just what I thought," he nodded, setting the cup down.

"Opium. And it's powdered opium—the kind commonly used in Egypt. The other forms and derivatives of opium such as laudanum, morphine, heroin, thebaine, and codeine are not easily obtainable here."

Heath had come forward and stood peering bullishly into the "cup."

"Well, suppose there was opium in the coffee," he rumbled. "What does that mean?"

"A. H. who knows?" Vance was lighting a cigarette, his eyes on space. "It might, of course, account for the doctor's long siesta this morning and for his confused condition when he answered my knock. Also, it might indicate that someone narcotized his coffee for a purpose. The fact is, Sergeant, the opium in the doctor's coffee might mean various things. At the present moment I'm expressing my opinion. I'm merely calling Mr. Markham's attention to the drug. . . . I'll say this, however: as soon as I saw the doctor this morning and observed the way he acted, I guessed that there would be evidences of an opiate in the study. And, being fairly familiar with conditions in Egypt, I surmised that the opiate would prove to be powdered opium—opium pulvis. Opium makes one very thirsty; that is why I wasn't in the least astonished when the doctor asked for a drink of water." He looked at Markham. "Does this discovery of the opium affect the doctor's legal status?"

"It's certainly a strong point in his favor," Markham returned after several moments.

That he was deeply perplexed was only too apparent. But he was loath to forgo his belief in Bliss' guilt; and when he spoke again it was obvious that he was arguing desperately against Vance's new discovery.

"I realize that the presence of the opium will have to be explained away before a conviction can be assured. But on the other hand, we don't know how much opium he took. Nor do we know when he took it. He may have drunk the coffee after the murder—we have only his word that he drank it at 9 o'clock. No, it certainly doesn't affect the fundamental issue—though it does raise a very grave question. But the evidence against him is too strong to be counterbalanced by this one point in his favor. Surely, you must see, Vance, that the mere presence of opium in that cup is not conclusive evidence that Bliss was asleep from 9 o'clock until you knocked on the study door."

"The perfect public prosecutor," sighed Vance. "But a shrewd defense lawyer could see many found seeds of doubt in the jurors' so-called minds—eh, what?"

"True." The admission came after a moment's thought. "But we can't overlook the fact that Bliss was practically the only person who had the opportunity to kill Kyle. Everyone else was out of the house, with the exception of Hani; and Hani impresses me as a harmless fanatic who believes in the supernatural power of his Egyptian deity. So far as we know, Bliss was the only person who was actually on hand when Kyle was murdered."

Vance studied Markham for several seconds. Then he said:

"Suppose it had not been necessary for the murderer to be near Kyle anywhere near the museum when Kyle was killed with the statue of Sakmet?"

Markham took his cigar slowly from his mouth.

"What do you mean? How could that statue have been wielded by an absent person? It strikes me you're talking nonsense."

"Perhaps I am," Vance was troubled and serious. "And yet, Markham, I found something on top of that end cabinet which makes me think that maybe the murder was planned with diabolical cleverness."

As I told you, I want to make an experiment. Then, when I have made it, your course of action must rest entirely on your own conclusions. . . . There's something very terrible and subtle about this crime. All its outward appearances are misleading—deliberately so."

"How long will this experiment take?" Markham was patently impressed by Vance's tone.

"Only a few minutes. . . ."

Heath had taken a sheet of newspaper from the basket and was carefully wrapping up the cup.

"This goes to our chemist," he explained sullenly. "I'm not doubting you, Mr. Vance, but I want an expert analysis."

"You're quite right, Sergeant."

Vance's eye at that moment caught sight of a small bronze tray on the desk, containing several yellow pencils and a fountain pen. Leaning over casually, he picked up the pencils, glanced at them, and put them back on the tray. Markham noted the action, as did I, but he refrained from asking any question.

"The experiment will have to be made in the museum," Vance said; "and I'll need a couple of sofa pillows for it."

He walked to the divan and tucked two large pillows under his arm. Then he went to the steel door and held it open.

Markham and Heath and I passed down the spiral stairs; and Vance followed us.

Vance went direct to the end cabinet before which Kyle's body had been found, and dropped the two sofa pillows on the floor. Then he looked again speculatively at the upper edge of the cabinet.

"Dash it all! I'm almost afraid to carry on. If I should be wrong, this entire case would come toppling about my head. . . ."

"Come, come!" Markham was growing impatient. "Sufficiently have gone out of date, Vance. If you have anything to show me, let's get it over with."

"Right you are."

Vance stepped to the ash-tray and resolutely crushed out his cigarette. Returning to the cabinet, he beckoned to Markham and Heath.

"By way of prelude," he began, "I want to call your attention

NEW YORK, Oct. 7.

JACK DONAHUE is dead. That makes everybody who ever saw him a little older. From now on there are two kinds of people in this country, those who have seen him dance and those who haven't.

Dancing fast, slithering, tapping, slow and fast, coming out along the forestage with the ingratiating cockiness of a boy from the back streets of Boston, who knew he had the world licked; hesitating, wavering, flickering around the girl, Lily Damita, Mary Hay or Marilyn Miller, as a hummingbird reconnoiters before a flower; closing in for the awkward, half-morous, apologetic kiss, while those long shovel hands wiggled in triumph and surrender; then four feet singing a love song in American, soft, tentative, impulsively direct, Donahue always leading, putting in trills, close harmony flicks and swipes that were half-stuttering and half-bidding of himself, the girl and the fact of life that put them there together; finally the interruption, always the interruption, the break, Donahue left standing alone, hands helpless up in the air, glued there while he smiled and scraped and wriggled, trying to work his hands down, down to his sides, to his pockets, to safety and respectability.

Two brownstone houses, owned by Kyle, wealthy art patron, had been so thrown together as to form one building. In one was the museum, in the other lived Dr. Bliss and his household, including Robert Salveter, Kyle's nephew, a Harvard graduate, who was an Egyptologist. Mrs. Bliss, who was half Egyptian, was much younger than her husband.

Kyle had arrived at 10:00 a. m., an hour before the time of an appointment with Bliss, who was to submit a statement of expenditures of the last expedition.

Half an hour later, Salveter found the body, the head badly battered and lying on it a heavy two-foot statue of Sakmet, Egyptian goddess of vengeance. Just before Sergeant Ernest Heath arrived from the Home Office, Vance found beside the body a modern scorpion pin, set with a scarab, which had been the state seal of a Pharaoh who lived 1650 B. C. It belonged to Dr. Bliss.

In a pool of blood surrounding Kyle's head Heath found a foot-print made by a rubber-soled tennis shoe, such as Bliss wore at times. Similar prints were on the floor and on the stairway leading to Bliss' study. After repeated knocks, Bliss appeared at his study door, seeming dazed.

After examining the top of a cabinet where the statue of Sakmet had stood directly over Kyle's head, Vance put some small object into his pocket with a satisfied grin. When Salveter returned from the Metropolitan Museum, where he had had instructions to bring up the cup, from Bliss to go, Vance borrowed his lead pencil and noted the brand name and number.

Heath found in a waste-basket in Bliss' study the rubber-soled shoe that had made the foot-prints. The sole was covered with blood. Markham ordered Bliss' arrest.

Vance argued that all the clues were too obvious to be left by a man of Bliss' mentality. He asked ten minutes in which to make an experiment, also sent Heath to look in Bliss' bedroom for the other tennis shoe. He found it there. Vance then suggested that Bliss had been drugged.

For the first time I noticed that the small ring on the corner of the curtain was not strung on the rod, and that the left edge of the curtain sagged correspondingly.

"You will also observe," Vance continued, "that the curtain of this cabinet is only half drawn. It's as if some one had started to draw the curtain and, for some reason, had stopped. When I saw the partly-drawn curtain this morning it struck me as a bit peculiar, for obviously the curtain should have been entirely closed or else entirely open. We may assume that the curtain was closed when Kyle arrived here—we have Hani's word for it that he had pulled shut the curtain of this particular cabinet because of the disorder of its contents; and Doctor Bliss mentioned to Kyle on the telephone that the new treasures were in the end cabinet—the cabinet with the drawn curtain. . . . Now, in order to open the curtain, one has only to make a single motion of the arm—that is to say, one has only to take hold of the left-hand edge of it and pull it to the right; the brass rings would slide easily over the metal pole. . . . But what do we find? We find the curtain only half drawn! Kyle unquestionably would have opened the curtain half-way to inspect the contents of the cabinet. Therefore, I concluded that something must have halted the curtain at the half-way point, and that Kyle died before he could draw the curtain entirely open. . . . I say, Markham; are you with me?"

"O. O. O.," Markham had become interested. Heath, too, was watching Vance with close attention.

"Perpend, then, Kyle was found dead directly in front of this end cabinet; and he had died as the result of having been struck over the head by the heavy diorite statue of Sakmet. This statue, as we know, had been placed by Hani on the top of the cabinet. When I observed that the curtain of the cabinet had been only partly opened, and then discovered that the first brass ring of the curtain was on the extreme left end—was not on the rod, I began to speculate—especially as I was familiar with this particular cabinet. Had that ring been off of the rod last night when Dr. Bliss came into the museum, you may rest assured he would have seen it."

"Are you suggesting, Vance,"

"Yes!" At some time between Dr. Bliss' phone call to Kyle last night and Kyle's arrival this morning, I believe that some one removed that ring from the rod—and, as you say, for a purpose!"

"What purpose?" Heath put the question. His voice was aggressive and antagonistic.

"That remains to be seen," Sergeant. Vance spoke with scarcely any modulation of tone. "I'll admit I have a rather definite theory about it. In fact, I had a theory about it the moment I saw the position in which Kyle's body lay and learned that Hani had placed the statue atop the end cabinet. The partly drawn curtain and the unstrung brass ring substantiated that theory."

Now, in order to open the curtain, one has only to make a single motion of the arm—that is to say, one has only to take hold of the left-hand edge of it and pull it to the right; the brass rings would slide easily over the metal pole. . . . But what do we find? We find the curtain only half drawn! Kyle unquestionably would have opened the curtain half-way to inspect the contents of the cabinet. Therefore, I concluded that something must have halted the curtain at the half-way point, and that Kyle died before he could draw the curtain entirely open. . . . I say, Markham; are you with me?"

"O. O. O.," Markham had become interested. Heath, too, was watching Vance with close attention.

"Perpend, then, Kyle was found dead directly in front of this end cabinet; and he had died as the result of having been struck over the head by the heavy diorite statue of Sakmet. This statue, as we know, had been placed by Hani on the top of the cabinet. When I observed that the curtain of the cabinet had been only partly opened, and then discovered that the first brass ring of the curtain was on the extreme left end—was not on the rod, I began to speculate—especially as I was familiar with this particular cabinet. Had that ring been off of the rod last night when Dr. Bliss came into the museum, you may rest assured he would have seen it."

"Yes!" At some time between Dr. Bliss' phone call to Kyle last night and Kyle's arrival this morning, I believe that some one removed that ring from the rod—and, as you say, for a purpose!"

"What purpose?" Heath put the question. His voice was aggressive and antagonistic.

"That remains to be seen," Sergeant. Vance spoke with scarcely any modulation of tone. "I'll admit I have a rather definite theory about it. In fact, I had a theory about it the moment I saw the position in which Kyle's body lay and learned that Hani had placed the statue atop the end cabinet. The partly drawn curtain and the unstrung brass ring substantiated that theory."

Rest and the Child

human body, for example, is frequently compared to a machine. The fact is that there is no machine that even remotely approximates the human body.

many respects the human body is a machine, and that many functions and processes are more comprehensible when thought of in terms of parallel workings of a man-made machine.

the human machine differs radically from all others in its capacity to grow and to its "wear and tear." The phase of human life and on is most intense in the years of life, and it is during this period that thought and action should most urgently be directed to the matter of growth and maintenance.

children adequate growth is best chiefly through the agency of good food and rest. It supplies the raw material which energy and building forces are abstracted by the body.

also enters into this picture growth cannot be rushed. Taken from rest and sleep is taken from growth. Every child should learn what is the best schedule for their child and insist upon close adherence to this schedule.

Tricornes and Bicorne Find Favor in Paris

By DIANA MERWIN.
Hat shopping in Paris evolves into a sort of chant with a theme of "tricornes, bicorne, bonnet or beret." All are important forms of autumn millinery of the brimless variety. Tricorne and bicorne fit right into the picture with the modified coachman coats, double breasted bicorne and tricorne emphasize with wide lapels, which will undoubtedly have a big following among the young and slender. Such coats and a basque bodice suit or dresses require small, saucy hats turned up off the face. There is more than a smack of 1930 quaintness in many autumn costumes. The bonnets and baby coachman coats, double breasted bicorne and tricorne emphasize it and bring it up to date at the same time.

Berets, of many types and materials, permeate the whole range of smartness, sport, tailored, afternoon and evening. Parisians prefer their tricorne small and shiny. Black hatter's plush or panne velvet are prime favorites. The smartest tricorne are the shallowest and their upturned brims are a scant three inches deep, folded back closely against the head. Tricorne are worn at a jaunty angle. Bicorne, or two-cornered hats, are less military and fall readily into draped velvet forms. There are many shirred velvet bonnets in the smartest millinery collections.
